DORSETSHIRE.

DORSETSHIRE takes its name from the shire town, or from he tribe of the Dorsættas, and lies on the south coast of England, being in the west, between Hampshire and Devonhire. On the north-east it is bounded by Wiltshire, on the ast by Hampshire, on the south by the English Channel, on he west by Devonshire, and on the north-west by Someretshire. The shore line is the only natural boundary; ts shape is something like a pyramid, with the head to the vest, but having a spur on the south side, which forms the sle of Portland. The breadth, from east to west, is 54 niles; and the length, from north to south, varies from 5 to o miles; its area is 1,000 square miles, or 627,265 acres. n 1700, the population was 90,000; in 1801, 114,452; in 851, 184,207; in 1861, 188,789; in 1871, 195,537; and in 881, 191,028; viz. males, 93,736; females, 97,292. The umber of houses were, inhabited, 39,789; uninhabited, ,542; and building, 204. Dorset lies between 50°30′ nd 51°5′ north latitude, and between 1°48′ and 3°7′ west ongitude.

The south shore is in two lines, a wide sweep trending outh-easterly from Lyme Regis to the Bill or Beel of Portnd, and the western part, which forms a deep bay within he Isle of Portland, called Weymouth Bay, and then runs asterly to St. Alban's Head and Durleston Head, having n it Lulworth Cove and Kimmeridge Bay. From Durleston Iead the shore runs north, along the east of the Isle of Pureck, and forms Swanage Bay and Studland Bay, and then he mouth of Poole Harbour.

The Isle of Portland is a long narrow headland, running outh-easterly into the sea, and joined to the mainland by a pit 10 miles long, called the Chesil—that is to say, the hingle—Bank. The Isle of Purbeck is a large tract joined o the mainland on the west, but on the other side bounded y the river Frome, Wareham and Poole Havens, and the ea. Poole Haven is a large inlet in the south-east of Doretshire, having many arms running up into the land; on ne is Wareham, at the mouth of the Frome and Piddle, and n another Poole.

The rainfall of Dorset is about 30 inches in the year, but ather less in the northern part. Daily measurements are aken by means of rain-gauges at 13 places. The climate is nild, especially along the coast.

The great rivers run across from north-west to south-east; ney are the Stour, Piddle and Frome. The Stour, comes n at the north, passes Gillingham, takes the Shreen ater, then the Cale from Wincanton, and the Lyd, or yddon, from the south, winds through Sturminster Newon (taking the Ewern), to Blandford Forum, below which all in the Tarrant Bourne from the north, and the North Winter Bourne from the west; the course is then to Wimourne, where the Wim, or Allen, joins, and the river then uns south-easterly to Christchurch, in Hampshire; it is nore likely that the Wim, or Allen, was the Alauna of the Romans, than that the Stour was.

The Wim is the only considerable stream; it works a aper mill. The Piddle, Puddle, or Trent, lies between the tour and the Frome, and is a small stream running in parallel direction with the Frome, about 4 miles off, nd falling into Poole Harbour; it gives its name as n affix to many villages. The Frome, anciently named he Varia, rises in the north-we t, and flows to Dorchester, here the Churn Bourne comes in from Cerne or Churn bbas; the South Winterbourn is another feeder; from orchester the Frome runs easterly to Wareham; it is n these western shires we meet with the class of streams alled winterbournes, because they flow chiefly in the winter. ther streams are—the Wey, 5 miles long, falling into he sea at Weymouth; the Purbeck, 7 miles long, runing from Corfe Castle to Swanage; the Fleet, flowing beween the Chesil Bank and the main land; the Breedy, or ride, 7 miles long, falling into the sea near Bridport Harbour; he Brit, or Bride, rising at Beaminster, flowing through ridport into the sea, and having the Asker and other small reams as affluents; the Char, falling in at Charmouth; nd the Lyme at Lyme Regis. In the north-west parts the Parret, Ivel and their headsprings rise, but their course in Dorsetshire is short. Near Broadway is a sulphureous spring named Nottington Spa.

The land is hilly, but well watered. The vale of Blackmore, or that of the Frome and Piddle, is a fruitful grazing ground, nearly 20 miles long and 14 broad; on the Downs sheep are fed. The soils are of many kinds, from rich loam to hard stone. The chalk formation covers the greater part of the shire, the north downs beginning at Cranbourne and running to Beaminster, and the south downs running from Beaminster to Melcombe and Swanage. Between these are the upper formation of plastic, potters' and pipe clay, and sand called the "Poole Trough." Here a light earthy coal is found, like Bovey coal; in the south, chalk, marl, greensand, weald clay and iron-sand are found, and in Purbeck and Portland the oolite formations; westward of Weymouth Bay are the oolites, which form a "saddle," and are repeated; in the north the greensand is found. Dorsetshire yields Portland stone, Purbeck marble, lime, founders' sand, iron-sand, copperas, alum, pottery clay, pipeclay, firebricks, bituminous shales, salt, sheep and cattle, wool, corn, hay, potatoes and cider. It is best known for its Dorset, Portland and South Down sheep; it has also a small breed of ponies. The dairy is much looked to, a large proportion of the land is in pasture, and the butter and cheese of Dorsetshire are much esteemed in the London market. In Cranborne Chase and in Sellwood, to the north of Shaftesbury, some timber is grown; but most of the woods have been cleared.

Lime, sea-weed, and fish are to be had in most parts for manures, and for meadows the catchwater plan is used. Barley is more grown than wheat; hemp and flax are likewise grown.

The railways are the Southampton and Dorchester, belonging to the London and South Western Company; the Somerset and Dorset line from Burnham, Somerset, to Wimborne and Poole, passing through Stalbridge, Sturminster Newton and Blandford. The London and South Western Extension to Exeter and North Devon has stations at Gillingham and Sherborne, and skirts the north of the county. The Dorsetshire line enters from Ringwood, in Hampshire, and passes Wimborne (with a branch to Poole and West Bournemouth), Wareham (with a branch to Swanage), Wool and Moreton to Dorchester, thence to Weymouth and Portland. The Great Western Company have a branch to Dorchester and Weymouth, connected with their line at Yeovil, and from thence to Bristol; another branch from Maiden Newton to Bridport; and a short line from Upway, on the Weymouth branch of the South Western line to Abbotsbury.

The manufactures are sail-cloth, sacking, nets, shoemakers' thread, paper, silk and agricultural implements, carried on at Bridport, Beaminster, Blandford, Bourton, Gillingham, Sherborne, Wimborne and Dorchester; with malting and brewing. The potteries are of some importance. In some of the large towns are iron foundries. Ships and yachts are built at Poole. The chief fisheries are those of mackerel; oyster beds are likewise kept up. In the rivers, salmon, trout, jack and eels are caught. The fishing towns are Poole, Swanage, Lulworth, Weymouth, Bridport and Lyme.

The import trade is in the supply of coals, timber and wine, with some Newfoundland trade. The exports are Purbeck and Portland stone, clay, many thousand tons of which are annually sent to the potteries, Portland cement, bricks, sheep, wool, butter, poultry, cheese, ale, cider and mackerel.

The inhabitants on the coast depend on the fisheries, quarries and visitors to the watering places. These latter are Weymouth, Swanage, Lyme Regis and Parkstone. The havens are Poole, Wareham, Swanage, Weymouth, Bridport, Lyme and Studland Bay; but Lyme has much fallen off. A breakwater has been made in Portland Bay, so as to form a great harbour of refuge over against Cherbourg; it is one mile and three-quarters long; the works were executed by a large convict establishment.

The county contains 290 civil parishes, and part of one other.

Dorsetshire is in the Western Circuit, province of Canterbury, Salisbury diocese, and forms an archdeaconry, subdivided into the rural deaneries of Bridport, comprised in the Abbotsbury, Bridport, Lyme and Beaminster portions; Dorchester, in the Dorchester, Weymouth and Purbeck portions; Pimperne, Blandford and Wimborne portions; Shaftesbury, arranged in Shaftesbury, Stalbridge, Sherborne and Sturminster Newton portions; and Whitchurch (Beer Regis, Poole, Cerne and Milton) portions.

The town of Poole is a county of itself. Quarter sessions are held at Dorchester and Poole. Dorsetshire forms nine petty sessional divisions—Blandford (North and South), Bridport, Cerne, Dorchester, Shaftesbury, Sherborne, Sturminster, Wareham and Wimborne. The Poor-law Unions are twelve—Beaminster, Blandford, Bridport, Cerne, Dorchester, Poole, Shaftesbury, Sherborne, Sturminster, Wareham and Purbeck, Weymouth and Wimborne.

The municipal boroughs are, Blandford, population in 1881, 1,373; Bridport, 7,567; Dorchester, 7,567; Lyme Regis, 2,047; Poole, 12,310; Shaftesbury, 2,312; Weymouth and Melcombe Regis, 13,715; and Wareham, 3,024. Other towns are Beaminster, population in 1881, 2,130; Bere Regis 1,284; Cerne Abbas, 925; Corfe Castle, 1,777; Cranborne, 2,317; Gillingham, 3,293; Sherborne, 5,636; Stalbridge, 1,816; Sturminster Newton, 1,859; and Swanage, 2,357.

Dorsetshire had formerly many rich and old abbeys of Benedictines and Cistercians; among those were Shaftesbury, Sherborne, Cerne, Abbotsbury, Bindon, Cranborne, Horton and Mitton; likewise priories at Dorchester, Bridport, Wareham, Loders, Frampton and Spettisbury. Sherborne was the see of a bishop from 705 to 1075. There are still some Catholic nunneries and chapels well endowed by the wealthy members of that communion.

Dorsetshire seems to have been taken from the Britons by the Belgian Durotriges, likewise called Morini, which words are said to mean "dwellers by the sea." Of the Britons and Belgians there seem to be many remains—as Agglestone and Puckstone, near Studland, in the Isle of Purbeck; Portisham Cromlech, called Hellstone, a circle of stones near Winterborne St. Martin; another near Pokeswell, and another at Little Breedy; perhaps Badbury Rings and Maumbury belong to this period.

Under the Romans it was a part of Britannia Prima, and they had many settlements, as Durnovaria (Dorchester), Morinio (Wareham), Vindio Gladia (Wimborne), Canca Arista (Charmouth), Londinis (Lyme Regis), Bolclanio (Poole), and Clavinio (Weymouth). Other settlements were—Alcester, Stoborough, Charborough, Chelborough Gainsborough, Bedcister, Horchester, Hogchester. A great road, named by the English the Ikening, or Ikenield way (Via Iceniana), comes in by Woodyates, passes through Durnovaria, and goes to the west. At Durnovaria, the most famous remain is the amphitheatre. The part of Ikening way, near Dorchester, called Ackling Dike, is in fair preservatlon.

On the downs and cliffs are many camps and barrows, British, Belgian, Roman or English; among these are Badbury and Maumbury, those on the Stour between Sturminster and Bradford, Weatherbury, Eggardon, Loosebarrow, Rowbarrow, Shaftesbury, Melbury, Hazelbury, Spettisbury, Chalbury, Abbotsbury, Netherbury, Symondsbury, Hamilton Hill, Worbarrow, Woolbarrow, Churchbarrow, Flowersbarrow, Wardstonebarrow, Blackbarrow, Woodbury, Boltonbarrow, Banbury, Westbury, Figbury, Lushbarrow, Conquerbarrow, Laurencebarrow, Churchbarrows, Seabarrow, Poundbury, Knapbarrow, Bullbarrow, Dodsbury, Broadfordbarrow, Barrow Hill, Henbury, Strawbarrow, Kingbarrow, Ballbarrow, Greatbarrow, Egertonbarrow, Boorsbarrow, Longbarrow, Stablebarrow, Powbarrow, Bridwellbarrow, Mawerbury, Buzbury, Eastbury and Westbury, near Tarrant Gunville, Thorncombe, Bealon, Mowlamsbarrow, Tadnollbarrow, Lordsbarrow, Endbarrow, Youbarrow, Cernebarrow, Stonebarrow, Swyrsebarrow, Cholbury, Hakebury, Swan Knoll, Round Pound, Five Meersbarrow, and Mawerbury. Many tesselated pavements, also pottery and Roman coins, have been found. The whole number of Roman camps has been reckoned at 25.

After the fall of the Romans and Britons this shire became part of the kingdom of the West Saxons, and the see of a bishop; the kings dwelt here at Corfe Castle and Kingston, and in the minsters many of them are buried. On the shore near Wareham, Portland, and Charmouth, many fights took place with the Danish rovers. In the Parliamentary War the gentry took part with the King, and held out in many sieges and fights, in which their castles were ruined; the townsmen sided with the Parliament; but the country people held aloof from both King and Parliament, and formed companies of "clubmen" to keep them off.

The objects of interest are many; the fossils of the Isles of Purbeck and Portland and of Lyme Regis: the shore scenery, Lulworth Cove, and Chesil Bank (the curious sp which joins the Isle of Portland to the main); the amph theatre at Dorchester; Agglestone, Puckstone, Hellstone Badbury Rings, Maumbury; the pits on Bladen Heath the earthworks surrounding Wareham; the figure on th Giant's Hill near Cerne, which is an ancient figure cut i outline on the chalk, 180 feet long; at Osmington is similar figure of a horse and rider covering an acre ground, representing George III. on horseback; th churches at Shaftesbury, Sherborne and Wimborne; ar the remains of the abbeys and priories.

The Superintendent Registrars' districts are:

The Old Dorset County Pauper Lunatic Asylum is situated at Forston, 2½ miles north-west from Charminster : it will hold 150 patients : it was formerly the seat of the late Francis John Browne, who gave it to the county for this purpose and was opened in 1832 ; it has been enlarged by the erection of additional wings ; it now forms an extensive range of buildings, with grounds and orchard adjoining. The New County Asylum, very extensive and well suited for the purpose, has been erected one mile from the old asylum it was opened in 1864, and is capable of holding 320 patients and it cost, including 56 acres of land, about £44,000 ; private patients are received at a charge varying from 10s. to 14s. weekly. Peter William Macdonald M.D. medical superintendent ; Richard Dalby Booth M.B. assistant medical officer at Forston ; Rev. Randall John Morgan, chaplain ; Thomas Coombe, clerk to the committee of visitors ; John Brown, clerk to the asylum.

The Dorset County Hospital, Dorchester, was built in 1841 in the Tudor style, and a wing added in 1866 : at present it has beds for 60 patients, but possesses ample room for a larger number. Robert Williams, jun. treasurer ; William George Vawdrey Lush M.D. physician ; John Tudor and John Good, consulting surgeons ; George Aldridge George L.R.C.P.Lond. Frederick Bazley Fisher L.R.C.P.Lond. and William Ernest Good L.R.C.P.Edin. surgeons ; Thomas Francis Shackleton, house surgeon and secretary ; Rev. Randolph Charles Marriott M.A. chaplain ; George M. Archdale, auditor ; H. Durden and G. J. G. Gregory, financial secretaries ; Walter E. Groves, clerk.

The Weymouth and Dorset County Royal Eye Infirmary, Weymouth, was established in 1836, and contains 20 beds ; the yearly average number of in-patients is about 180, and of out-patients about 970 ; Christopher Childs M.A., M.D. and Rowland Wimburn Carter M.D. surgeons ; John Law L.D.S.Irel. dental surgeon ; Edward Fooks, secretary.

County School, Charminster, near Dorchester, is a large building on the brow of a hill, for 100 boarders, with chapel ; Rev. Thomas Russell-Wright M.A. head master.

Her Majesty's Prison, Dorchester, is situate on the site of the ancient castle, and was originally erected in 1793, on the plan of Mr. Howard, at an expense of £16,179 ; since the transfer from the County Authorities it has been entirely rebuilt, now containing 161 cells. Captain F. G. Frith, governor ; Rev. Charles Williams M.A. chaplain ; William Ernest Good L.R.C.P.Edin. medical officer ; Miss Bazel, matron

DORSET COUNTY COUNCIL.

Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vic. c. 41.

Under the above Act the county of Dorset after the 1st April, 1889, became for the purposes of this Act an administrative county (sec. 46), governed by a County Council, consisting of chairman, aldermen and councillors (the number of councillors being determined by the Local Government Board) to be elected in manner prescribed by the Act (sec. 2).

The chairman shall, by virtue of his office, be a justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police for the county will be under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions and the County Council to be appointed as therein mentioned (sec. 9).

The coroners for the county will in future be elected by the County Council, and the clerk of the peace shall be appointed by such joint committee, and may be removed by them (sec. 83-2).

The clerk of the peace for the county shall also be the clerk of the County Council (sec. 83-1).

The administrative business of the county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the justices) shall be transacted by the County Council.

GEOLOGY OF DORSETSHIRE.

SOME portions of Dorsetshire—more especially the coast—offer such unrivalled opportunities for geological study, that they early attracted the attention of writers on that science. The papers by Berger, Cumberland, De la Beche, Webster, Lyell, Buckland, Fitton, Clarke, and Thomson, published some forty years ago in the "Transactions, &c., of the Geological Society," may still be usefully referred to. Later on, in the "Journal" of the same society, we have the results of the work of the Revs. P. B. Brodie, Dennis, Fisher, and Blake, Dr. Falconer, Professors Phillips and Buckman, and Messrs. Day, Whitaker, Hulke and Hudleston.

The maps and sections of the Government Geological Survey, executed about 1850 by Mr. H. W. Bristow, are simply indispensable to every student of the rocks.

The Dorset Natural History and Antiquarian Field Club has lately published the first two volumes of its "Transactions," edited by Professor Buckman, and containing valuable geological papers by Messrs. Mansel-Pleydell, Thomas Davidson, Rev H. H. Wood, S. Buckman, and the Editor. Hutchin's "History of Dorset" may be consulted with advantage, and for the Weymouth district Mr. Damon's little work is useful; in the "Proceedings of the Geologists' Association of London" we find papers by Mr. H. G. Fordham on the "Wealden in Swanage Bay," and by Mr. J. S. Gardner on the "Eocene Strata"; for numerous other facts we are indebted to scattered notices in the "Geological Magazine."

GENERAL STRUCTURE OF THE COUNTY.—The surface of Dorsetshire may be divided into four regions, which owe their characteristics to the rocks of which they are composed.

(1). In the north, north-west and west we have the Vale country, consisting of much clay land formed of liassic and oolitic strata and extending to the foot of the chalk hills; this is a fertile region and is one of the many parts of our Isle for which the term "Garden of England" has been claimed.

(2). The chalk forms a tract of country in the centre of the county, and east of it we have (3) sands (with some clay beds) of Tertiary age, forming a rather barren region. Lastly (4), a band of oolitic and cretaceous rocks forms a fringe along the coast, producing beautiful scenery and of high geological interest

In the main the beds of rock have an inclination, or dip, towards the south-east; it results from this, that the oldest or lowest rocks are those which rise to the surface, or crop out, on the west and north-west of the county. In our description of the beds we shall commence with these older strata and gradually advance eastwards, rising in the geological series to newer and newer formations.

The heights of a few points above sea-level are Pillesdon Pen, 934 feet; Lewesdon Pen, 927 feet; Lyme Regis Guildhall, 28 feet; Charmouth Church, 92 feet; Stanton St. Gabriel Church, 411 feet; Chideock Church, 102 feet; Bridport Market House, 51 feet; Winterborne Church, 323 feet; Dorchester Church, 224 feet; Wareham Old Church, 38 feet; Poole Guildhall, 13 feet; these are taken from the "Abstract of the Levelling by the Ordnance Survey."

THE RHÆTIC BEDS.—Until 1860 these beds were classed with the Lias by English geologists, but their fossils on being closely examined proved to be of different species to those of the Lias, a fact which led to the separation of these Rhætic deposits from the great mass of the Lias above. They consist of greenish marl, black shales and compact whitish limestones, the latter known as the "White Lias"; the total thickness is only about 100 feet. These beds just enter the county near Lyme Regis their fossils include the shells Avicula contorta and Pecten Valoniensis, while in the black shales there are one or two sandy layers containing such numbers of scales and bones of fishes and saurians as to be entitled "bone-beds."

THE LIAS.—This well-known formation is magnificently exposed at Lyme Regis, and extends eastwards along the coast past Charmouth and Seatown to Burton Bradstock. The middle and upper beds of this grand coast section have been well described by Mr. Day, but of the Lower Lias here no detailed account has yet been made public. The Lower Lias contains in its lower part, where it surmounts the Rhætic beds, many layers of limestone, and these yield the fine specimens of saurians and fishes for which Lyme Regis has always been noted; the grand skeletons of Ichthyosaurus and Plesiosaurus extracted by Miss Mary Anning, Mr. J. W. Marder, and Mr. Hawkins, are now deposited in our national museums; these remarkable reptiles must have been when full grown from 9 to 25 feet in length, and are of types unlike any now living; they probably inhabited shallow seas and estuaries, preying chiefly on fishes, as we may judge from the numerous remains, scales, &c., of the latter found in and near the skeletons of the great saurians. The upper portion of the Lower Lias is composed of marls and clays, and the thickness of this division is about 700 feet; it extends eastward along the valley of the Char, past Marshwood to Pillesdon and Bettiscombe. The most characteristic fossils are the Ammonites, different species of which characterize different beds forming "zones" in the following order from below upwards:—(1), Ammonites planorbis; (2), angulatus; (3), Bucklandi; (4), Turneri; (5), obtusus; (6), oxynotus; (7), raricostatus. The fossil fishes, for which Lyme Regis is famous, are believed to occur chiefly in the dark marls of the Bucklandi and Turneri beds.

A small oyster, Ostrea liassica, occurs in great numbers just at the junction of the Lower Lias with the Rhætic Beds.

Middle Lias.—This division is, according to Mr. Day, thicker on the coast of Dorset than anywhere else in England, as he estimates it at 500 feet. The lower part is marly, the upper sandy, and of the well-known irony limestone, which, under the name of marlstone, usually forms the top of the Middle Lias, there is only a very imperfect representative. The characteristic ammonites are A. Jamesoni, Henleyi, margaritatus, spinatus. Fine sections are exposed at Black Ven, Stonebarrow Hill, Westhay Cliff, Golden Cap, Down Cliffs, &c. The fossils lie very much in particular beds, and unless these are found the chance of collecting good specimens is not great; in the ledges of the lower part of the beach at Golden Cap immense numbers of Belemnites occur; a beautiful star-fish, Ophioderma Egertoni, is common at the base of a thick bed of sandstone about half way up Golden Cap and Down Cliffs. Inland the Middle Lias extends past Bridport to Netherbury, and thence westwards by Hawkchurch into Devon.

Upper Lias.—This division includes 90 feet of clays surmounted by sands whose exact position in the geological series is rather doubtful; they are above 100 feet in thickness, and were mapped by the Geological Survey as belonging to the Upper Lias, but it now seems probable that they belong in part or altogether to the inferior oolite; it will be best perhaps to adopt the views of Professor Ramsay and consider them, like the Rhætic Beds, to be beds of passage linking together the great liassic and oolitic formations; we can trace these sands east of Bridport, past Milton to Beaminster and Burstock, and thence curving round by Crewkerne and Yeovil to Nether Compton. The fossils include Rhynchonella cynocephala, Ammonites Jurensis, A. aalensis, &c.

THE OOLITE.—Dorsetshire offers a fine opportunity for the study of the beds of this epoch; they occur in two distinct sets, viz., in the north-west of the county, and has a narrow tract along the south coast.

The Inferior Oolite can be traced from Oborne through Bradford Abbas to Berwick, and thence by Wayford and Beaminster to Burton Bradstock; at the latter point it consists of ferruginous limestones, but further north, at Powerstock and at Ham Hill, near Sherborne, we get thick beds of shelly oolite, which yield an excellent building stone: one stratum at Bradford Abbas, about three feet thick, is so charged with ammonites as to be called the Cephalopoda Bed, but Professor Buckman has lately shown that it does not correspond with the bed of the same name in the Cotteswold Hills, with which it had been confounded, but that its true position is at least 100 feet higher in the strata. The fossils of the Inferior Oolite of this district include Ammonites Humphriesianus, A. Parkinsoni, Terebratula Phillipsii, several species of Astarte, Trigonia, &c.; the soil is of a reddish tinge and brashy.

The Fuller's Earth—This division consists of blue and yellow marls and clays about 400 feet thick, divided about the middle by a bed of rubbly limestone, called the Fuller's Earth Rock, which is largely quarried for lime-burning; this bed only occurs in the northern or vale portion of the county. We can trace the Fuller's Earth running east of Sherborne in a long narrow strip south-west to Clifton Wood; after being interrupted by faults it spreads widely between Halstock and South Perrott, and then curves round by Misterton, and runs north of Beaminster to Toller Porcorum, whence it passes southwards, although interrupted by several faults, until it forms the coast for four or five miles east of Burton Bradstock. The Fuller's Earth is chiefly under pasturage; it does not contain many fossils, but a small oyster, Ostrea acuminata, is pretty common.

The Great Oolite, which, further north, near Bath, furnishes such excellent stone, does not occur in Dorsetshire, being found to thin out and disappear as it is followed southwards.

The Forest Marble.—The beds of this name consist of clays containing layers of thin fissile limestones, altogether 450 feet thick; it is possible, however, that the lower portion may represent the Great Oolite of Gloucestershire. The Forest Marble forms a poor, wet soil, mostly in pasture; we can trace it between Stalbridge Park and Holt Hill, again between Sherborne Park and Lillington, and at Melbury Wood and West Chelborough; in the southern region it extends from Radipole to Langton Herring, and also along the valley of the Bredy. The limestone layers are quarried for flagstones, and at Brotherhampton near Bridport are burnt into lime; at Long Burton near Sherborne, the limestone has been polished for chimney pieces, and is called "Yeovil Marble." Of the fossils which occur such as Terebratula maxillata, Rhynchonella concinna, &c., hardly any are peculiar to this formation.

Cornbrash.—This name implies a rock breaking up, under the influence of the weather, into small irregular fragments, producing a "brashy" soil on which corn grows well: it is a bed of cream-coloured limestone, varying in Dorset from 20 to 40 feet in thickness, and everywhere present in its proper position beneath the Oxford clay, not only in this county but across England to Yorkshire. Entering on the north at Stalbridge, it forms a band half-a-mile wide, through Stourton Caundle to Bishop's Caundle; here it is displaced by a fault, and we find it again between Haydon and Long Burton, and again round Yetminster, Ryme, Closeworth and Melbury: in the coast tract it occurs at Puncknowl, and between Radipole and West Chickerel. The fossils are not in fine condition, but the Rev. H. H. Wood has obtained about 180 species from the neighbourhood of Closeworth, including Avicula echinata, Ammonites Herveyi, &c.; and Mr. Darell Stephens here found a great rarity—the skull of a crocodile—Steneosaurus Stephani. A remarkable point about the fossils is, that many of them are Inferior Oolite species, which are wanting in the intermediate beds, thus giving an example of a recurrent fauna, which is of great interest. According to Professor Buckman, the Cornbrash contains more phosphate of lime than the other oolitic strata, a fact which would account for its greater fertility.

The Oxford Clay.—This is a very thick bed of bluish clay, containing rounded masses (septaria) of limestone, called pudding-stones, which have been cut and polished at Weymouth, Melbury, &c. A common fossil is a large broad oyster, called Gryphæa dilatata. The Oxford clay forms the low ground on each side of the river Lidden, between Stalbridge and Marnhull, and thence extends in a strip two or three miles wide by Lidlinch, Pulham and Holnest to Chetnole; this is its westward termination, but on the south we find it again in the upper part of the Bredy Valley, and also between Melcombe Regis and East Fleet: its thickness is perhaps 700 feet: being heavy, and difficult to cultivate, the land is mostly in permanent pasture. The hard bed found elsewhere at the base of the Oxford Clay, and known as the Kellaway's Rock, has not been noted in Dorsetshire.

Coral Rag.—In North Dorset, we see, above the Oxford Clay, some beds of oolitic and rubbly limestone, associated at the top and bottom with sands and marls, altogether about 100 feet thick. They stretch from Silton, by Stower, Marnhull, Sturminster Newton, Fifehead Neville, Haselbury Bryant, to Mappowder, Glanville Wooton and Hermitage, whence they are overlapped by the cretaceous rocks. There is a fine section of the strata shown by the Sturminster railway cutting, and the lower beds yield a good oolitic building stone at Marnhull and Todbere

At Weymouth the Coral Rag is finely exposed on the coast, and stretches across to Wyke Regis: it also runs as a long narrow band from Ringstead Bay and Radcliff Point, by Jordon Hill and Broadway, to Abbotsbury. At the latter place is a thick local deposit of iron-ore (hydrated peroxide).

The characteristic fossils are spines of a sea-urchin—Cidaris florigemma—with such shells as Trigonia clavellata, Ammonites cordatus, &c.; corals are frequent in Ringstead Bay only.

Kimmeridge Clay.—This formation takes its name from a little Dorsetshire village on the south-west side of the isle of Purbeck; beds of the same age cap the Coral Rag in Ringstead Bay and extend thence westwards by Upway Street to Portisham; they also occur in the northern part of the Isle of Portland. In North Dorset the Kimmeridge Clay has an outcrop four miles wide at Gillingham and Motcombe, and thence passes southwards by West Orchard, Hammoon and Shilling Okeford to Melcombe Park. South of Weymouth, about 20 feet of sandy clays and grits are seen, containing Ostrea deltoidea, Trigonia Meriani, &c.: these are the Passage Beds of Mr. Blake; in Ringstead Bay about 400 feet of blue sandy clays, with nodular limestone concretions, constitute the Lower Kimmeridge; the common shells are Exogyra virgula, Thracia depressa, Ammonites biplex, &c. The Upper Kimmeridge beds are 650 feet thick in Kimmeridge Bay, and consist of bituminous shales and cement-stones; these contain many fossils, as Discina latissima, Cardium striatulum, &c., and all the large bones of saurians, which have been described by Professor Owen, Mr. Hulke, and others, have come from this division; one paddle of a Pliosaurus, now in the Dorchester Museum, measures 6 feet 9 inches in length. Some of the shales are so bituminous as to be used in the neighbourhood instead of coal, when the latter substance is dear; attempts, too, have been made to distil mineral oils, and to make alum and gas, from these shales, but not, hitherto, with any great success. There is a good deal, too, of the yellow mineral called iron pyrites, and the spontaneous decomposition of this substance at Ringstead Bay, in 1826, produced so much heat as to inflame the shales, which continued to smoulder for several years. From the same cause similar ignitions have occurred in the lias beds at Charmouth, usually after heavy rains, or when the sea has dashed over the cliffs.

The Portland Beds are called after the isle, or rather peninsula, of that name: they consist of 70 feet of grey and yellow sands, surmounted by an equal thickness of shelly and oolitic limestone, containing nodules and bands of chert, an impure variety of flint: besides the locality from which they take their name, we find these beds in the Isle of Purbeck, circling round from St. Alban's Head by West Hill to Gad Cliff: they fringe the coast from Mewp's Bay to Durdle Door, and are also traceable between Osmington and Portisham: they are not visible in North Dorset, being overlapped and concealed by cretaceous strata, but they peep out again at Tisbury, in Wiltshire. The upper limestone bands yield some of the best building stone in England: the roach bed lies near the top; it is shelly and not suitable for fine work: the best stone is that of the whit bed, lower down, though it is not so thick. St. Paul's Cathedral and many of the churches and other public buildings of London, especially those erected in the reign of Queen Anne, are built of Portland oolite.

The fossils mostly occur as casts; Cerithium Portlandicum (the "Portland screw"), Ammonites giganteus, and Cardium dissimile may be mentioned; yellow crystals of sulphate of barytes are not uncommon.

The Purbeck Beds.—These consist of limestones, clays, and marls, altogether 300 feet thick: in the Isle of Purbeck they extend from Swanage to Worth Matravers, and thence in a narrow band through Kingston to Worbarrow Bay: as a narrow contorted band they are visible between Mewp's Bay and Man-of-War Cove: in the Weymouth district they cap the Isle of Portland on the south, and are found on the north between Osmington and Poxwell, and west of Upway. In 1850 Professor E. Forbes divided the Purbecks into Lower, Middle, and Upper: the Lower Purbeck contains "Dirt Beds," which are the remains of old land surfaces composed of vegetable soil, and containing stumps of trees, named Mantellia, which are allied to the living Cycads: in the Middle Purbecks we have "Cinder Beds," composed of vast masses of oysters: the upper beds are freshwater limestones full of Paludina and other freshwater shells: these limestones were formerly polished and used, under the name of "Purbeck Marble," to make the slender shafts in Gothic churches. Remains of insects are frequent in the Purbecks, and Cyprides (small freshwater crustaceans) are also very abundant. In 1854 Mr. W. R. Brodie found remains of small mammals in the Middle Purbecks, at Durlston Bay, and in 1856 the energetic researches of Mr. S. H. Beckles exhumed fragments (chiefly lower jaws) of 25 species from the same bed in the suburbs of Swanage. These have been described by Professor Owen as marsupials of small size, resembling the Kangaroo Rat of Australia.

The Purbeck strata close the great Jurassic series, as the Lias and Oolites are termed when considered as a whole; the nature of the sediment and the fossils they contain show them all to be of marine origin, until we come to the very top, where in the Purbeck Beds we have evidence of freshwater, probably estuarine, conditions.

NEOCOMIAN, OR LOWER CRETACEOUS PERIOD.—The grits and sandy clays which lie conformably on the Purbeck series, are also of freshwater origin, and are known, the lower part as the Hastings Beds, and the upper division as the Weald Clay: they occupy the whole recess of Swanage Bay and extend due west to Worbarrow Bay, which is also excavated in them: their dip is due north at a high angle: they thin westwards in a remarkable manner from 1,800 feet at Swanage Bay to 725 feet at Worbarrow Bay, 660 feet at Mewp's Bay, 462 feet at Lulworth Cove, and 172 at Man-of-War Cove: inland they can be traced from the north side of East Chaldon to Osmington. In Swanage Bay bones of two gigantic reptiles, the Iguanodon and Megalosaurus, have been found, and here, too, Mr. Beckles has found gigantic footprints, 15 inches long, of these or some other huge monsters.

The Punfield Series was named by Professor Judd from the place of that name on the north side of Swanage Bay. Here we have about 200 feet of laminated shales and sands containing bands of limestone and ironstone: these contain brackish water and marine fossils, showing a depression of the Wealden area which admitted the waters of the open sea.

The Lower Greensand consists of grey clays and sands about 60 feet thick, resting on the Punfield bed, and containing Exogyra sinuata, &c.

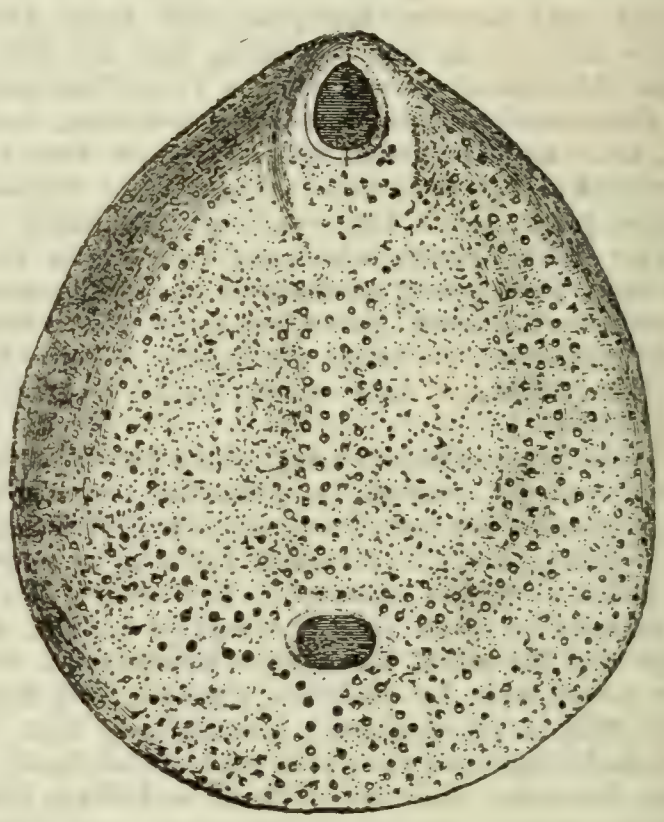
CRETACEOUS FORMATION.—Of the lowest division of this series—the Gault—there is a poor representative seen in Punfield Cove: it is a dark sandy clay with few fossils, and is about 40 feet thick: it has been traced westward to Lyme Regis, where, at Black Ven, it rests upon the Lias. On the west side of Shaftesbury the Gault again crops out: here it is thicker and assumes its normal character of a blue micaceous clay.

The Upper Greensand varies from 100 to 200 feet in thickness: it is a yellowish-brown sand, containing beds of sandstone and layers of chert, and near the base is speckled green by silicate of iron: it runs everywhere at the base of the chalk hills, except where cut off by faults; from Punfield it passes westwards through East Chaldon, Abbotsbury Castle and Askerswell to Cheddington, then curves north-east by Maiden Newton, Evershot, Melcombe, Bingham, and Sutton Waldron to Shaftesbury, east of which town it has a broad outcrop reaching to Berwick St. John; generally its outcrop is less than half-a-mile wide. Many outlying patches of the Upper Greensand form the capping of the hills in West Dorset; among these are Eype Down, Golden Cap, Stonebarrow Hill, Haddon Hill, Lewsdon Hill, Pilles-don Pen, Conic Castle, Thorncomb, &c. The great unconformity of the cretaceous series to the underlying strata is well shown by this overlap of the Upper Greensand upon bed after bed of the lower rocks. The Upper Greensand is an excellent water-bearing stratum, the rain which has percolated through the chalk being arrested by the clayey base of the sands: hence springs issue all along its outcrop, and the sites of villages and towns have been determined by it. Near Shaftesbury a bed of sandstone is quarried for building purposes. Fossils are not numerous, but a branching sponge and the shells Pecten asper, P. quadricostatus, &c., show the strata to be of marine origin.

The Chalk.—All the ordinary subdivisions are recognisable in Dorsetshire. First we have the Chalk Marl, about 60 feet thick, greyer than ordinary chalk, and containing a slight admixture of clay; at its base is a bed about 18 inches thick, containing phosphatic nodules and many fossils; this layer is known as the Chloritic Marl; next comes the Lower Chalk, or chalk without flints, from 50 to 150 feet thick; its top is the chalk-rock, a hard thin band of cream-coloured chalk; the Upper Chalk, or chalk-with-flints, is 600 feet thick on the east of Dorset, but it thins westward.

As a whole the chalk forms a broad band 10 miles in width, extending from Cranborne and Cranborne Chase to the south-west, past Blandford, Sturminster Marshall, Bere Regis, Piddletown, Hilton, Cerne Abbas, and Dorchester. The Downs above Beaminster are separated from the main mass, and other outliers occur further west near Mosterton, Cricket St. Thomas, &c.: along all the line now mentioned the dip is gentle and to the south-east.



On the south coast the chalk has been upheaved so as to stand nearly vertically from Durdle Cove by Bindon Hill, Purbeck Down, and above Corfe Castle to Ballard Down, where the Foreland marks its present termination, although originally it stretched right across to the Needles in the Isle of Wight.

In Dorset the chalk presents its usual characteristics—high, bare, and rounded hills covered with short herbage, but possessing little or no soil, dry valleys and few trees. On the southern slope of the Down at Owermoigne, facing Weymouth, a gigantic figure of George III. on horseback, 174 feet in height, has been made by cutting away the turf: near Cerne there is a similar figure of a giant holding a club. More than half a million sheep still feed on the Dorset Downs, but a good deal of the land has of late years been brought under plough. The chalk may be examined in many pits where it is quarried for lime burning: the flints are used for road mending. The fossils of the lower chalk include the brachiopod shell, Rhynchonella Cuvieri, and several species of Inoceramus; in the Upper Chalk we find the rounded bodies of many sea-urchins, the commonest species being Micraster coranguinum and Ananchytes ovatus with the shell Spondylus spinosus, Rhynchonella octoplicata, fish teeth, &c. The chemical composition of the chalk is nearly pure carbonate of lime, and the microscope shows it to be composed in large part of the shells of microscopic animals, called foraminifera, belonging to the lowest scale of animal life.

Land-slips.—Along the Dorset coast, near Lyme Regis, the chalk and Upper Greensand rest on Rhætic and Liassic clays, and dip slightly towards the sea, while numerous springs issue at the junction of the sands and clays. Here are all the conditions favourable to the production of land-slips, and they frequently occur, and are sometimes of great magnitude. In 1839, about 22 acres of land at Bindon slipped down towards the sea, producing a chasm 1,000 yards in length, by 300 in breadth: a model illustrating this may be seen in the Jermyn Street Museum, London.

TERTIARY EPOCH: THE EOCENE FORMATION. — The Eocene beds of Dorset rest on an eroded surface of chalk. They occur in the eastern portion of the county, and form part of the "Hampshire Basin," which includes the strata of the same age in Hants and the Isle of Wight.

Woolwich and Reading Beds.—These consist of sands, pebble-beds, and clays, with sometimes a layer of green-coated flints at the base where they rest on the Chalk. They form a narrow band from the south side of Studland Bay through Lulworth, Wool, Winfrith, Warmwell, Piddle-town Heath, Bloxworth, Corfe Mullen, and Edmonsham, their outcrop being from half-a-mile to a mile wide, and it can be often traced by the oak trees which grow well on this formation. The old name for this division was the "Plastic Clay," and red and mottled clays are of frequent occurrence; at Crendle Common, near Cranborne, coarse pottery is made from a bed of this kind; fossils are wanting, except that leaves are found in a pale grey sandy pipe-clay near East Bloxworth.

Outliers of the Reading Beds occur on the chalk at Bincombe Down, and on Black Down above Portisham, &c On Affpuddle Heath and Piddletown Heath, east of Dorchester, large natural pits occur, like inverted cones, measuring from 30 to 100 feet in diameter; these have been formed by the removal of the underlying chalk by water charged with carbonic acid gas; the upper sands, &c., have then fallen in.

The London Clay (or Bognor Beds) forms a similar surface feature to its Reading Beds, which it closely accompanies along the line just noted: the outcrop between Wimborne Minster and Fordingbridge is rather wider, occupying from one to two miles at the surface; it consists of brown sandy clays containing irony concretions and flint pebbles.

The Lower Bagshot Beds form all the land round Poole Harbour, reaching westwards through Wareham and Moreton to Woodsford, and stretching east and north-east across the boundary of the county by Kingston and Woolbridge; they are finely exposed in cliffs along the coast from Studland to Bournemouth and eastwards. They consist of sands of varied colours, containing beds of pipe-clay and brick-clay. Mr. Gardner estimates the total thickness at 1,000 feet. The clays are largely dug at Wareham, Poole, and elsewhere. In 1877 there were exported from Poole Harbour 56,345 tons of clay, most of it for British potteries in Staffordshire, &c., but 4,971 tons went to foreign ports; 16,570 tons of clay were also used at works in the district, where ornamental tiles, tesselated pavements, &c., are largely made; in 1879 the quantity of clay exported from Poole had risen to 67,019 tons. The clays contain many remains of plants, leaves, &c., indicating a rather warm climate.

It is not known when the Poole clay was first worked, but there is an "Order in Council," as far back as 1666, directing that no dues were to be paid on "tobacco pipe-clay" at Poole.

Surface Deposits.—The chalk is in many places thickly covered by flints, the debris of higher beds of chalk which have been denuded by weathering agencies. There are thick gravels, too, on the table land between Poole and Bournemouth, containing many pebbles of quartz, granite, &c., which have probably been bronght from the old Cornish rocks of the west; these are the high-level gravels of Mr. Codrington, and he considers that they were formed in the valley of a river running from west to east, and previous to the separation of the Isle of Wight from the mainland.

Low-level gravels—i.e., such as are not more than 40 or 50 feet above the existing rivers, occur in most of the deep combes and along the sides of the valleys. In these remains of the extinct mammoth (Elephas primigenius) and of Rhinoceros tichorhinus have been found, especially in the gravels of the Stour, the Piddle and the Avon.

Evidence of an elevation of the coast line is afforded by the well-known raised beach at the southern end of the Isle of Portland; it is composed of sea-worn pebbles, at its highest point is 53 feet above sea level, and contains shells such as inhabit the shores of the English Channel; in Portland, too, many bones have been found in caverns and fissures in the limestone. At many places great masses of a coarse sandstone, called Druid or Sarsen stones, or grey wethers, are found lying on the surface; one called the Agglestone, near Studland, is computed to weigh 400 tons; these are now believed to be the remnants of some hard bed of the tertiary series, probably in the Bagshot Beds, which formerly extended far to the west of their present limits. Of glacial action, no undoubted signs have yet been observed in Dorsetshire.

Masses of blown sand, forming low mounds, occur on the coast in Portland Roads, and at the entrance of Poole Harbour; a famous mass of pebbles—the Chesil Beach—stretches for 16 miles between Portland and Burton Bradstock, the stone diminishing regularly in size from four inches in diameter at Portland to little more than sand at Bradstock.

Prehistoric Man.—Of the earliest kind of stone implements which are assigned to the Palæolithic Stone Age only two specimens have yet been found in Dorsetshire, one from the gravels at Wimborne Minster, and another at Dewlish, three miles north of Piddletown; both are of flint. Of the later or Neolithic Period many specimens have been found; these are mostly chipped out of flint and include celts or axe-heads, arrow-heads, flakes or knives, hammers, scrapers, &c. They occur in the surface soil, or in the mounds which are the burial places of the early tribes who inhabited this country. Many are found in and near the famous entrenched camps on the chalk hills at Badbury Rings, Hod Hill, Maiden Castle, &c., and at Afflington, Bradford Abbas, Poundbury, Ridgeway Hill, &c. In a barrow at Afflington a ring of Kimmeridge shale was found with a bronze ring, flint-flakes and arrow-heads, a perforated whetstone, and glass and bone beads; at Porrington a shallow one-handled saucer or stand of Kimmeridge shale was found; at Winterbourne Steepleton a perforated axe-head, made of greenstone, was found in a barrow with some burnt bones. All these relics belong to a period which closed some thousands of years before the Christian era, for when Cæsar landed in Britain the inhabitants had long been acquainted with the use of iron.

ABBOTSBURY is a large village and parish near the West Fleet, pleasantly situated in a deep valley open to the sea at the south-west and sheltered by lofty hills to the north, and terminus of the Abbotsbury branch of the Great Western railway from Weymouth, 9 miles south-west from Dorchester, 9 north-west from Weymouth, in the Western division of the county, Uggescombe hundred, Dorchester petty sessional division, Weymouth union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Abbotsbury portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Nicholas is a very ancient Gothic fabric of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, separated by piers and Pointed arches, antique porch and a fine square embattled western tower, with 6 bells and clock: over the western door is a curious figure emblematic of the Trinity—an old man in a sitting posture, with a crucifix between his knees and a dove at his right ear: on the north side the windows are Gothic, the walls being surmounted by pinnacles; the windows on the south side are Debased English, 1660: it has an antique font: the sittings are of panelled oak; in the pulpit, which is beautifully carved, are two holes from bullets said to have been fired in at the windows by Cromwell's soldiers: in the chancel is a handsome altar-piece having the Ten Commandments in gold letters on a black ground; the remains of Orc the founder are deposited under the chancel: in the graveyard are two large stone coffins; one found under the north porch and the other in the churchyard: the church was reseated in 1886, when a new organ was presented: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1574. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £164, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Ilchester, and held since 1884 by the Rev. William Murray Fairbairn B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are Congregational and Primitive Methodist chapels. Charities producing £19 10s. yearly, arising principally from a rent-charge on the manor, left in 1754 by Mrs. Susannah Strangways Hormer, are distributed in money. Mr. Wm. Jennings, by will dated 1852, gave £500 in trust for the benefit of the Sunday school. This place is of great antiquity: Canute, the Danish king, gave it, together with several others, to Orc, his favourite steward: in early ages Bertulf had built a church here which he dedicated to St. Peter; that having gone to decay, Orc founded a monastery in the year 1044, and filled it with monks from Cerne Abbey; he also endowed it with eight of the neighbouring manors: the abbey stood on rising ground south of the village: the ruins of the gateway still remain in tolerable preservation: near this gateway is a gable covered with ivy, supposed to be part of the ruins of a mansion built on the site of and out of the remains of the abbey, by Sir Giles Strangeways, and in which he resided: the conventual church, traces of which still exist, stood a little to the north of the abbey: the old tithe-barn of the monastery is still in good preservation; it is 105 yards in length, with large porch and buttresses on the north side; adjoining thereto is an hexagonal tower. On an eminence south-west of the village are situated the ruins of St. Catharine's chapel, supposed to have been erected in the reign of Edward IV.; it was of stone, strengthened by buttresses on the north and south sides; at the north-west angle is a tower; the roof is finely arched and a few of the ornaments still remain: from its altitude it serves for a landmark at sea, being visible at a great distance. Henry VIII. granted the manor to Sir Giles Strangeways knt. and it was confirmed by Elizabeth, with the fishery, water, and soil of East Fleet, also the swannery and site of the monastery of West Fleet: from this family it descended to the Earl of Ilchester P.C. whose seat is Abbotsbury Castle, a Gothic residence commanding a beautiful view of the West Bay. Nearly a mile to the south of the village are the swannery, decoy and keeper's house, where as many as 700 swans are kept, together with all kinds of wild fowl. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the mackerel fishery and agriculture. The soil is red clay chiefly; a seam of iron ore runs through the village, extent about 3 miles and from one-eighth to half a mile in breadth. The chief crops are wheat and barley and potatoes, but most of the land is in pasture. The area is 5,616 acres, of which 545 are water; rateable value, £5,634; the population in 1881 was 979.

RODDEN is a hamlet 2½ miles south-east; EAST and WEST ELWORTH, other hamlets, 1½ miles south-east; LOOK is another hamlet 2½ miles north-west.

Parish Clerk and Sexton, Henry Cozens.

AFFPUDDLE (or AFFPIDDLE), formerly called Aspundell, is a parish on the river Trent or Piddle, 3¾ miles north from the Moreton station on the South Western railway, 8 east-by-north from Dorchester and 10 north-west from Wareham, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Hundredsbarrow, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Laurence is an ancient structure of stone and flint, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave and north aisle, south porch and a Decorated embattled western tower with pinnacles of the reign of Edward IV. containing 4 large bells; it was originally appropriated to the Abbey of Cerne, and at the dissolution of that house the vicarage was given to Thomas Lyllyngton, one of the monks of that body, who caused the beautiful carved oak pulpit and seats to be erected in the church; on the end of one of the seats is a carved inscription bearing date 1547: there is also a Norman font: the trefoil arch of the south entrance to the church is of the date 1220: the west window is stained and was inserted in 1880 by the late Mrs. Frampton, to the memory of Henry Frampton esq. of Moreton House: the church was restored in 1878, and has 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1731. The living in 1547 was a vicarage, but in the year 1849 the rectory of Toners Puddle and the vicarage of Affpuddle were united by order of Her Majesty in Council; joint value tithe rent-charge £220, with 4 acres of glebe and good residence, net yearly value £190, in the gift of the representatives of the late Mrs. Frampton, and held since 1869 by the Rev. Henry Peere Williams-Freeman M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford. Children of this parish are apprenticed from Frampton's charity, of Moreton. Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh-Frampton is lady of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is light loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 3,818 acres; rateable value, £2,750; the population in 1881 was 477.

On BLADEN HEATH and the other heaths are many curious pits and barrows. At CLOUDS HILL are barrows. The hamlets in this parish—which is intersected by the Piddle—are PALLINGTON hamlet, 1½ miles south; BRYANTS PUDDLE tithing, 1 mile east; OAKERS WOOD, 1 mile south-east; ROGERS HILL, 1 mile north-east; and WADDOCK, 1½ miles south.

BEAMINSTER is a market and union town and parish 18 miles west-by-north from Dorchester, 6 north from Bridport station, 6 south from Crewkerne station and 133 by road from London, in the Western division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Bridport, hundred of Beaminster Forum, rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset, diocese of Salisbury. The town is of considerable antiquity: in "Domesday Book" it is classed amongst lands belonging to the Bishopric of Sarum: it was given in 1091 to Bishop Osmund to augment two of the prebends of his cathedral: it is pleasantly situate in a fertile and beautiful valley, through which runs the river Brit, which issues from several springs about one mile north from the town and flows into the English Channel at Bridport harbour. At East Axe Knoll, one of the highest hills in this county, two rivers take their source—the Axe and the Brit. The town is paved and is lighted with gas by a company and supplied with water from wells and springs. There are many good residences, and the modern appearance of the town may be attributed to the destruction of the old town by fire, which took place in the civil wars of Charles I. In the parish register it states that—"On the 14th of April, 1644, it was all consumed by a terrible fire, except the East streete and part of the Church streete, Prince Maurice and his army lyinge then in the towne:" it was rebuilt with the assistance of Parliament, but again, with the Market house, destroyed by the fire of June 28th, 1684; and again on the 31st of March, 1781, at about 5 a.m. a fire broke out in the back premises of the King's Arms inn, in the Market place, destroying in a few hours the whole of the houses (two only excepted) on the west side of the street leading to the church, also the houses in Church street and Little street. In 1849 Beaminster was separated from the mother-parish of Netherbury, to which it was formerly subject, and made a separate vicarage. The church of the Virgin Mary is a large handsome stone building, standing on an eminence on the southern side of the town: it is principally of Perpendicular character, of about the end of the fifteenth century, consisting of a chancel, nave of 5 bays, aisles, north porch and embattled western tower nearly 100 feet high, which contains a clock and a peal of 8 bells, with chimes, which play every three hours: the bells were rehung at considerable expense in 1887: the tower is well proportioned and enriched with figures representing the Virgin Mary, the Crucifixion, Resurrection and Ascension: it was anciently ornamented with pinnacles, but these had been entirely destroyed; in 1878 the tower was restored and the pinnacles replaced by subscription among the parishioners, at a cost of £1,100; the aisles were newly roofed in 1889 at a cost of £400: there are two handsome monuments of the Strode family, several mural tablets, one brass and fine memorial stained windows, the principal being to Sir Henry Oglander, Sir William Oglander, Colonel Cox and Edward Fox esq.: in removing one of the monuments some years ago the ancient steps and doorway to the rood-loft were exposed: the church has sittings for 750, all free. The parish register dates from the year 1684, the previous one having been destroyed by the fire of that year. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £390, net £230, with residence in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1857 by the Rev. Alfred Codd M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge prebendary of Grimston and canon non-resident of Salisbury cathedral and rural dean of Bridport Beaminster portion The Holy Trinity chapel of ease, at the north-western extremity of the town, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles south porch and bell turret at the intersection of chancel and nave, containing one bell: the east and west windows are stained: consecrated and opened in 1851: it has 40 sittings, all of which are free and unappropriated. There are Wesleyan (with 200 sittings) and Congregational (with 30 sittings) chapels. A Working Men's Institute and Reading Room has been established, and is supported by subscription: the library in connection therewith contains 40 volumes. Adjacent to the churchyard is an almshouse built and endowed by Sir John Strode, for the support of six poor people; the inmates are chosen by Lady Oglander, of Parnham House, the representative of the donor. There are other charities of the annual value of £85, derived from land and Consols. Petty sessions for the Bridport petty sessional division are held here at the Police station every alternate month on a Monday at 11 a.m. alternately with Bridport and Thorncombe; for list of magistrates and places in the division see Bridport. The Market house and other buildings were bought from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners by a local committee and pulled down in 1886, leaving the market place clear. The markets are held on Thursday for butchers' meat and provisions; and the fair on September the 19th annually, for cattle. This town was the native place of Thomas Sprat, bishop of Rochester, born 1635, consecrated bishop 1684. Parnham House, the seat of Lady Oglander, is a large old structure: the hall is a noble room having in its windows and on its walls all the marriages of the family, and a pane of stained glass having the arms of Strode inscribed "John Strode, 1449;" in the withdrawing room is an original portrait of Thomas Lord Cromwell, vicar general of Henry VIII. and another of Gregory Lord Cromwell, his son: in the gallery are various portraits of the Strodes, some of which are of the age of Queen Elizabeth: the capital mansion house was rebuilt and enlarged by Robert Strode esq. in the reign of Henry VIII.; many of the chambers are hung with tapestry: on the extinction of the Strode family (to whom it originally belonged) by the death of Thomas Strode esq. the last of that name, the estate devolved on the late Sir John Oglander bart. of Nunwell, in the Isle of Wight. The Manor House is the seat of Mr. Cox. John Russell Cox esq. J.P. is lord of the manor of Beaminster Prima and Secunda. The principal landowners are Lady Oglander, John Russell Cox esq. Peter Cox, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, Capt. Thomas Russell, Peter Meech esq. William James Daniel esq. and the trustees of the late Henry Compton esq. The area is 4,916 acres; rateable value, £11,398; the population in 1881 was 2,130.

LANGDON is a tithing 1½ miles north-east; NEWTOWN, half a mile north; and BUCKHAM, 2 miles north-west, are hamlets.

Parish Clerk, William Bugler.

BEER HACKETT with KNIGHTON.

BEER HACKETT is a parish, situated on a small stream which flows into the Yeo, 1 mile north from Yetminster station, on the Weymouth branch of the Great Western railway, 4 miles south-west from Sherborne and 5 south-east from Yeovil, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, union and petty sessional division of Sherborne, Yeovil county court district, diocese of Salisbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sherberne portion. The church of St. Michael is a stone building of the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and south porch, with a western tower, containing 4 bells: it was rebuilt in 1882, with the exception of the tower, at a cost of about £1,100, raised by subscription: the east window is stained and is a memorial to the Rev. Frank Newington B.A. vicar of Osmington, who died October 10, 1877: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1549. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £224, including 38 acres of glebe, held since 1883 by the Rev. Robert James Duncan M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, who resides at Sherborne. The principal landowner is John Kenelm Digby Wingfield-Digby esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor as successor of the abbots of Sherborne; he is owner of the rectorial tithes, £6 yearly from tithes. The soil is clay; subsoil, rock. The chief crops are pasture; the area is 903 acres; rateable value, £1,498; the population in 1881, including the tithing of KNIGHTON, 1 mile south-east, was 83.

Parish Clerk, John Whitty.

BELCHALWELL is a parish and small village, 2½ miles south-west from Shillingstone station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, 8 north-west from Blandford and 4 south from Sturminster Newton, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Cranborne, petty sessional division and union of Sturminster Newton, Blandford county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Milton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. This place has, under the operation of the Divided Parishes Act, been divided, for civil purposes only, between the parishes of Okeford Fitzpaine and Fifehead Neville. The church (not dedicated) is a plain building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, and has a fine Norman south porch and a square embattled tower on the south side, containing one bell: it was reseated in 1872, but again requires renovating, owing to the ravages of the dry rot: it has 100 sittings. With the exception of a few fragments, the early registers were destroyed by fire; the present one dates from 1842. The living is a rectory, united with that of Ibberton, joint yearly value £450 gross, net £349, with house, in the gift of Lieut.-Gen A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Joseph Augustus Wix B.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge, who resides at Ibberton. The Wesleyans have a chapel here. Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox Pitt-Rivers, who is lord of the manor, and Charles Prideaux Brune esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly clay. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 1,308 acres; rateable value is included with that of Okeford Fitzpaine and Fifehead Neville; the population in 1881 was 169

FIFEHEAD ST. QUINTIN (or Lower Fifehead) is a hamlet, 1½ miles west-by-north on the river Divelish. Bell Hill is a high hill to the south.

BERE REGIS (or BEER REGIS), which gives name to the hundred, is a parish and was formerly a market town, 6½ miles north-west from Wareham station on the South Western railway, 8 south-west from Blandford on the Somerset and Dorset line and 11 north-east from Dorchester, in the Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division of Wimborne, union of Wareham and Purbeck, county court district of Wareham, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. A small stream flows through the parish. The church of St. John the Baptist is a large ancient flint and stone structure, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and square embattled western tower with carved pinnacles and containing clock without dial, quarter chimes and 5 bells: the style is principally Perpendicular and a little Norman in the interior: it was thoroughly restored and reseated in 1875, from designs by the late G. E. Street esq. R.A. at a cost of over £5,000, raised by subscription, the chief contributor being Mrs. Erle Drax: the roof of the nave was erected by Cardinal Morton in Henry VII.'s reign: it is of richly-carved oak with fine hammer beam figures, popularly supposed to represent the Twelve Apostles, which have been repaired and repainted in their original colours: the seats are of oak with beautifully-carved ends, copied from old patterns: the aisles and chancel are laid with tesselated pavements, some copied from remains dug up in the church and neighbourhood: the windows are all stained, presented by Mrs. Erle Drax: the late J. S. W. S. Erle Drax esq. gave £50 towards the cost of the west window in the tower: there are two fine canopied tombs in Purbeck marble of the Turberville family, the ancient lords of the manor, and one in the chancel to the memory of John Skerne, with a curious inscription; also a small brass by the north door, with a Latin epitaph to Andrew Loup: there are sittings for 428 persons. The registers date from 1588, but the 18th century registers were burnt in a fire at the vicarage in 1788. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Winterbourne Kingston annexed, joint gross yearly value £467, with residence, in the gift of the Master and Fellows of Balliol College, Oxford, and held by the Rev. William Farrer M.A. of that college since 1886: the living, with that of Charminster, formerly constituted the "golden prebend" in the cathedral church of Salisbury. The rent-charge, in lieu of the great tithes, belongs to Mrs. Erle Drax, J. C. Mansel-Pleydell esq. and Messrs Sparkes, of Crewkerne. There is an endowed Congregational chapel and also two Wesleyan chapels, one on Bere heath. A Burial board of nine members was formed in December 1880; a cemetery which covers an area of one acre was laid out and inclosed in 1881 at a cost of about £500, the land being the gift of J. C. Mansel-Pleydell esq.; there is no mortuary chapel. There is a charity, founded in the year 1719, by Thomas Williams esq. of Shitterton, for the clothing and teaching of six boys, and one by Jane Williams, of £10 10s. yearly, arising from money invested in the funds, for two poor men and two women. Bere Regis is supposed by Dr. Stukeley to have been the Ibernium of the Romans: it was erected into a free borough by Edward I.: it has suffered severely by fire on three different occasions; first in 1634, again in 1788, and on the last occasion in 1817. A fair, formerly much resorted to, is held here, on Woodbury hill, on the 21st and 22nd September. On Woodbury Hill, which commands a fine view of the surrounding country, is a large camp; and there are several barrows in the vicinity. The manor of Bere Kegis belongs to Mrs. Erle Drax, that of Shitterton to J. C. Mansel-Pleydell esq. and that of Hyde to Charles James Radclyffe esq. J.P. who resides at Hyde House; they are also the chief landowners. The soil is partly chalk and partly clay. The chief crops are wheat and barley, with some pasture. The number of acres is 8,894; rateable value, £6,320; the population in 1881 was 1,542, including 258 in Milborne Styleham hamlet.

BLANDFORD.

BLANDFORD (or BLANDFORD-FORUM) is a municipal borough, parish, market and union town, head of a county court district and petty sessional division and station on the South-Western and Midland Companies' Somerset and Dorset joint line of railway, 16 miles north-east from Dorchester, 10½ north-west from Wimborne Minster, 14 north-west from Poole and 104 by road and 123½ by rail from London, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Pimperne, rural deanery of Pimperne Blandford portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The place derived its name from being situated near an ancient ford on the river Stour: it was nearly destroyed by fire in the year 1579, but was soon afterwards rebuilt: in 1644 it was plundered by the Parliamentary forces under Major Sydenham: in 1677 and in 1713 it again suffered from fire; and in 1731 was, with the exception of six houses, consumed by a conflagration, which destroyed the parish of Blandford St Mary and the hamlet of Bryanston; about fourteen aged persons, who were forgotten in the confusion, perished, and several others died afterwards through fatigue and terror; the damage was computed at £100,000: the deplorable situation of the inhabitants was increased by the small-pox, which raged at the time in about sixty families: but very few, however, died from it: the town was rebuilt under the provisions of an Act of Parliament in 1732: it has a modern appearance and is pleasantly situated in a fertile district on a bend of the river Stour, over which is a substantial bridge of six arches. The local government, by the Municipal Reform Act, is vested in a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors: it is watched by the county police. The streets are regularly formed, well paved and lighted with gas by a company; the houses uniformly built of brick: there is a plentiful supply of well water.

The old church named SS. Peter and Paul having been consumed in the fire of 1731, the present church was built in 1732, and is in the style introduced by Wren: it consists of a chancel, nave of six arches supported by Greek pillars, aisles and a western tower, and was built at a cost of £3,200: the tower is 100 feet high, surmounted by a cupola, and ornamented with a balustrade and urns, and contains 8 bells, which were recast in 1883 by Taylor, of Loughborough: the church contains several handsome monuments, and was in 1879 thoroughly restored, at a cost of about £2,000, and has 1,450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1732. The living is a rectory and vicarage, gross yearly value £260, net £180, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Winchester, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Charles Henry Fynes-Clinton M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge.

The Congregational chapel, Salisbury street, founded in 1662 and rebuilt in 1867, has 420 sittings; the Primitive Methodist chapel, Albert street, erected in 1877, seats 300; the Wesleyan chapel, The Close, built in 1830 and restored at subsequent periods, has 120 seats: the Open Brethren have a meeting room in East street, erected in 1882, and has 250 sittings.

A cemetery of 4 acres, situate in the Salisbury road, was formed in 1855 at a cost of £2,600; there are two mortuary chapels, and it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

The Town Hall is of Portland stone, supported by columns, with a carved entablature of the Doric order; in the rear a commodious Corn Exchange has been erected, in which is a clock, presented by Mr. Wyatt, clock and watch maker, of this town.

The charitable bequests to Blandford have been numerous: there are almshouses, situate in Salisbury street, for the maintenance of 10 poor persons, founded and endowed by George Ryves esq. in 1682, and who in 1685 bequeathed the residue of his estate for apprenticing poor boys, natives of Blandford and Pimperne: the entire annual income is about £200: in the churchyard are almshouses for six aged persons, which were rebuilt by the Corporation in 1736: charities, excluding Williams' above, to the amount of £350, are distributed yearly.

The market, which is well attended, is held on Saturday; and the fairs, principally for sheep, horses and horned cattle, are held on the 7th of March, 9th of September and 8th of November, and for wool the Saturday next before the 10th of July.

The E (or Blandford) Troop of the Queen's Own Dorset Yeomanry Cavalry and H Company of the 1st Volunteer Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment, are stationed here.

There is a literary institution, which is well supported; also an industrial school for the training of young women o good character for domestic service, and Young Women's Christian Association.

The cottage hospital, opened 1889, is supported by voluntary contributions: the building is the gift of the Hon. Miss Portman, who also provides the matron. The Liberal club is in East street.

This town gives the title of Marquess to the eldest son of the Duke of Marlborough: many distinguished persons have been born in Blandford, among whom may be noticed Sir Thomas Ryves LL.D. a learned antiquary and civilian; the Rev. Bruno Ryves D.D. dean of Windsor; the Rev. Thomas Creech M.A. poet, and translator of Lucretius; Thomas Bastard A.B. a divine and poet; William Wake, archbishop of Canterbury; Dr. Lindsay, archbishop of Armagh; Dr. Samuel Lisle, bishop of Norwich; and the Rev. Christopher Pitt, translator of "Virgil's Æneid."

The neighbourhood is very rich in Roman and British remains. In the vicinity are some extensive fortified camps and numerous barrows in which sword blades, axe and spear heads, fibulæ, coins, ornaments, urns, and a variety of ancient remains have been discovered; many have been preserved, and interesting collections exist in private hands. Fossils are also numerous in the chalk and greensand of the district.

Viscount Portman is lord of the manor and principal landowner.

The parish contains 363 acres; rateable value £14,036 in 1871. The population in 1881 was—parish, 3,791, including 79 officers and inmates in the workhouse; manor or borough, 1,373.

Parish Clerk, Francis Essex.

BLANDFORD ST. MARY is a parish, connected with the town of Blandford by a bridge of six arches over the Stour, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Coombs Ditch, Blandford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Milton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary, a building of flint and stone in the Perpendicular style, consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, north transept, south porch, square embattled western tower and 3 bells: it was repaired, reseated, and a north aisle and vestry erected and east window inserted in 1862, and the chancel was restored in 1886: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1581. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £391, with residence, in the gift of Worcester College, Oxford, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Chambers M.A. late fellow and tutor of that college. Browne Willis LL.D. the celebrated antiquary, was born here in 1682. The manor formerly belonged to the family of Thomas Pitt, grandfather to the great Lord Chatham; several of the family are buried in a vault under the north aisle of the church. Sir William Henry Smith-Marriott bart. J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner and resides at The Down House. The soil is light loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,873 acres; rateable value, £2,848; the population in 1881 was 364.

BLOXWORTH (or BLOCKSWORTH) is a parish, about 6 miles north-by-west from Wareham, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Coombs Ditch, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Andrew was originally a Norman structure, of which the only portion now existing is the entrance doorway: it was rebuilt in the 14th century, partly in the Pointed, partly in the Decorated style; subsequently—probably towards the end of the 17th century, or perhaps earlier—it was again rebuilt in its present substantial though debased Gothic form; portions of the earlier rebuilding are here curiously mixed in and utilized: at that time also the chancel appears to have been rebuilt, out of (at any rate in part) the materials of the body of the church: it consists of chancel, nave and south porch: it has a square embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 2 bells, one of which is of the 14th century, and around the rim is an inscription which consists of the words Sancta Maria in capital letters separated by crosses: it contains several memorials to the Trenchard and Pickard families, and the manorial pew has fresco armorial designs belonging to the Savages, lords of the manor previous to the year 1700: the nave was rebuilt in 1870 and was reseated and a new pulpit erected in 1887 by the present rector: this is one of the very few churches where the original hour glass and stand by which, after the Reformation, the length of the sermon was regulated, still exists: at the restoration in 1870 all that was possible of the rebuilding in the 17th century was retained: there are 140 sittings. The register dates from the year 1579. The living is a rectory, yearly value £320, including 48 acres of glebe, in the gift of Col. J. Pickard-Cambridge J.P. and held since 1868 by the Rev. Octavius Pickard-Cambridge M.A. of University College, Durham, F.R.S. who is also the rector of Winterborne Thompson. On the heath are WOOLBARROW, or Oldbury, and ancient British camp, and other barrows. Col. Jocelyn Pickard-Cambridge J.P. who resides at Bloxworth House, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The parish comprises a strip of land, about 3½ miles by 1¼, between the parishes of Morden and Bere Regis, running north and south; the soil of the northern portion is chalk, of the middle, clay, and of the southern part gravel and sand. The chief crops are wheat and barley; the extent is 2,776 acres of cultivated, wood and heath lands; rateable value, £1,608; the population in 1881 was 261.

BOTHENHAMPTON (Baunton) is a parish, forming a suburb of Bridport, which it adjoins, and bounded on the west by Bridport harbour, in the Western division of the county, liberty of Loders, Bridport union, petty sessional division and county court district, and chiefly in the Bridport municipal borough, rural deanery of Bridport, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of the Holy Trinity (1400), is a small and ancient stone structure in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and square embattled tower: there are 134 sittings. A new church, Holy Trinity, in the Early English style, has been erected on a more convenient site: it consists of chancel and nave, and was built under the direction of Mr. Edward S. Prior, architect, London: there are sittings for 225. The register dates from the year 1722. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £95, gross £105, with residence and 8 acres of glebe, added in 1863 by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, in the gift of Sir Molyneux H. Nepean bart. and held since 1882 by the Rev. John Temple B.A. of University College, Durham. Sir Molyneux H. Nepean bart. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor. The principal landowner is Joseph Pearkes Fox Gundry J.P. of the Hyde. The soil is clay and loam; subsoil, rocky. The chief crops are wheat, barley, flax and grass. The area is 823 acres; rateable value, £3,590; the population in 1881 was 536.

WANDERWELL is 1 mile south. Wanderwell House is the residence of Joseph Thompson Stephens esq. and is within the borough of Bridport.

BOURTON is a parish on the river Stour, 3 miles south-west from Mere, 4 north-west from Gillingham railway station, 4 east from Wincanton railway station, and 9 north-west from Shaftesbury, in the Northern division of the county, liberty of Gillingham, Shaftesbury petty sessional division and county court district, Mere union, Shaftesbury rural deanery, Dorset archdeaconry, and Salisbury diocese. At the north end of Bourton, the counties of Dorset, Somerset and Wilts meet; the place is marked by a boundary stone. The church of St. George was rebuilt in 1878-9; it is in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and one bell: there is a good organ with two manuals, and sittings for upwards of 300 persons. The register dates from the year 1810—this parish was formerly a chapelry of Gillingham. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £390, in the gift of 12 trustees, and held since 1871 by the Rev. George Glover M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. Here are chapels for Baptists and Wesleyans, the latter of which was rebuilt in 1888, on the old site, at a cost of £500: it is a substantial building of stone with red brick dressings. Here is an iron foundry and boiler and agricultural implement manufactory of some celebrity and extent, which gives employment to a great number of hands; also two quarries, yielding blue and sand stone, suitable for building purposes. Formerly there were large silk cloth factories in the village, but now all are closed. Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster is lady of the manor. Charles Hannam and Oliver Maggs esqrs. are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 890 acres; rateable value, £3,723; the population in 1881 was 838.

Parish Clerk, Jacob Maidment.

BRADPOLE is a parish, partly within the borough of Bridport, situated between the rivers Brit and Asker, 5 miles south from Beaminster, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Beaminster Forum, Bridport union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of the Holy Trinity is a building of stone, rebuilt in 1845-6, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, with tower and a spire containing a peal of 5 bells : there is a carved stone pulpit, given by Mr. A. M. Broadley to commemorate the jubilee of Canon Broadley's ordination : there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1695. The living is a discharged vicarage, gross yearly value £320, net £220, including glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1844 by the Rev. Alexander Broadley M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, canon of Winterborne Earls in the Cathedral of Salisbury. In the churchyard wall is a white marble tablet, erected in 1888 by A. M. Broadley esq. to call to remembrance the birth in this village, in 1818, of the Right Hon. W. E. Forster, chief secretary for Ireland ; the cottage in which he was born is still standing and bears his name. On a site adjoining the vicarage, given by the vicar, a reading room and library, in memory of the late W. E. Forster, is now (1889) in course of erection by public subscription. In the village, at St. Andrew's Well, there is a substantial building, used for parochial purposes, and called St. Andrew's house. The workhouse for the Bridport union is situated here. There is no manor. The principal landowners are Mrs. Way and Mr. Compton. The soil is sandy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and some land in pasture. The area is 998 acres; rateable value, £6,856 ; and the population in 1881 was 1,567, including 131 officers and inmates of the Bridport workhouse.

[The names of the residents in the borough are inserted under Bridport.]

BRIDPORT.

BRIDPORT is a seaport, municipal borough and market and union town, head of a county court district, and railway station, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Sturminster, though locally in the hundred of Whitchurch Canonicorum, rural deanery of Bridport, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury, 15 miles west from Dorchester, 34 from Taunton, 6 south from Beaminster, 9 east from Lyme Regis, 21 north-west from Weymouth, 135 by road and 163 by railway from London: the Great Western railway has a branch from Maiden Newton to this town and the West bay, which gives access to Dorchester on the South Western railway and Yeovil on the Great Western, thus giving two distinct lines of communication with the metropolis and other parts of the kingdom: there are three stations, viz. Bridport, the East street station and one at the harbour called West bay.

This place takes its name from the river Brit, on the bank of which it stands. This was a place of some importance in the time of Edward the Confessor, and is mentioned in Domesday Book as having a mint and ecclesiastical establishment: it was made a borough in the reign of Henry III.: its charter underwent various alterations during subsequent reigns. The governing charter, prior to the Municipal Act, was that granted by Charles II.; it now comprises, in addition to the ancient borough, portions of the parishes of Allington, Bradpole, Walditch, Bothenhampton, Burton-Bradstock and Symondsbury. The town is divided into two wards, the North and South, and governed by a mayor, six aldermen and eighteen councillors, who also act as the urban sanitary authority. The borough has a commissioner of the peace, several justices of the peace and formerly returned two members to Parliament, but these by "The Representation of the People Act, 1867," were reduced to one and by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the borough was disfranchised.

The town is situated in a fertile vale, surrounded by hills, having on the west the river Bride or Brit, and on the east the river Asker, over which are several bridges; these rivers unite a little below the town, which chiefly consists of three spacious streets, containing handsome modern houses, lighted with gas by a company and well paved. Water is supplied to the inhabitants by a company from works situated at Litton Cheney.

The church of St. Mary, enlarged and thoroughly restored in 1859-60, is a spacious cruciform structure of stone, chiefly in the very Early Perpendicular style of architecture, consisting of chancel, nave with north and south transepts partly Early English, aisles, and south chapel with a square embattled tower rising from the centre and crowned with pinnacles, and containing 8 bells: within are some interesting monuments; one, a cross-legged effigy of a knight, supposed to represent one of the De Chideock family: there is a small mural tablet in memory of Lieut. Coker, of Mappowder, killed at the Bull hotel by one Venner, an officer of the Duke of Monmouth, in the Monmouth rebellion, 1685: the church contains 1,017 seats, which all become free at the final ringing of the bell. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a discharged rectory, gross yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Edward John Lambert Barthélémon Henslowe LL.B. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge.

Christ Church is an iron structure situated in the East road, and is served from Walditch, erected in 1880, and has 400 seats.

There is a Catholic church in Victoria street, dedicated to SS. Mary and Catherine, which seats 150. The meeting house for the Society of Friends, South street, erected in 1700, will hold 200 persons; the Congregational chapel, East street, erected in 1859, has 800 seats; the Baptist chapel, Victoria street, built 1841, has sittings for 350; the Unitarian chapel, East street, erected in 1790, will seat 500 persons; the Wesleyans have a chapel in West bay, built in 1849, with 70 seats, and one in South street, erected in 1839, seating 800 persons.

The Cemetery, of 4 acres, situated 1 mile from the centre of the town, on the road to Dorchester, was formed in 1856, at a cost of £2,500, with the usual mortuary chapels, and is governed by a Burial Board of nine members.

Bridport has the following charities: the eight-acre tenement, partly bought with the proceeds of money collected in 1619 towards the repairs of Bridport Harbour, but being quite inadequate for the purpose was added to some other money given by Henry Hody, and a small estate purchased at Broad Oak; the rent is equally divided between the general school and the National schools: the fourteen-acre tenement given in 1633 by different persons and consists of four closes and two orchards at Broad Oak: the proceeds are annually given to the poor. The malthouse and brewhouse: in 1650 the corporation of Bridport laid out £180 in the purchase of certain premises comprising a malthouse and brewhouse; a portion of this money was the gift of Mrs. Jane Napper, and the proceeds are annually given in Christmas donations to the poor. The higher and lower almshouses are under the control of eleven trustees. Jessope's gift is a small annuity left in the time of James I. Pitfield's charity was given in 1675 by Charles Pitfield, and consists of a parcel of land called Thorncombe: from the proceeds of this charity a number of penny loaves are distributed every Sunday in Bridport church: a sermon is annually preached on March 2nd, and a number of petticoats given to old women and coats to old men at that time: the total income is £15 a year, as the estate was sold in 1763 subject to that rent-charge. There is a small charity of £100 invested in the Bridport Savings Bank, which was put there as the proceeds of the sale of a house left in the time of James I. for a widower and widow. Daniel Taylor, in the time of Charles II. left the Bull inn, in East street, for the purpose of providing an efficient schoolmaster for the poor children of the town: in 1859 the Bull hotel was sold, with the consent of the Charity Commissioners, for £2,450, and the net produce, £2,083 13. 3d. was invested in the 3 per Cent. Consols, now £2¾, the annual dividends of which, £65 12s. 4d. are devoted to the use of the general school in the town. Daniel Taylor's almshouses are situated opposite the church in South street, and are occupied by deserving persons appointed by the trustees. The Magdalen charity consists of almshouses in Allington, which were a few years ago destroyed by fire, but have since been rebuilt: ten deserving women are here found a dwelling, and some trifling charity derived from a third portion of the proceeds of the Cattlebarrow estate at Whitchurch: the income is now reduced to a small sum, so that the poor people have little more than a dwelling from this charity. Bull's charity, Bishop Hall's charity, Bernard Michel's charity and Napper's charity are too trifling to require notice. The Sunday school charity was a gift of a Sunday school for the parish of Bridport, for the instruction of children belonging to the established church, by the late Henry Charles Sturt, father of the present Lord Alington: the original school and land have been sold and the proceeds devoted towards the erection of the capacious and convenient new schools erected on the glebe land opposite the former school.

The Town Hall is a handsome brick building, faced with Portland stone: it was erected in 1786, on the site of the ancient chapel of St. Andrew, in the centre of the town, containing in the upper story a court for the borough sessions, a room for the grand jury, and a council chamber, underneath which is held the general market for butchers' meat. The market days are Wednesday and Saturday. The fairs are held on the 11th of October and the 6th of April, for cattle and cheese: the former date being the festival day of St. Michael old style, to whom a church which formerly stood at the corner of St. Michael's lane was dedicated: the latter date is the festival of St. Mary the Virgin, to whom the parish church was originally dedicated.

The head quarters of A Company, 1st Volunteer Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment, are situated at the Volunteer Hall, St. Michael's lane.

The trade of the town consists principally in the importation of hemp and flax chiefly from Riga and Archangel. There was formerly a considerable coasting trade, by which the adjacent towns were supplied with coal from Wales and the collieries in the North of England, and with other articles of general consumption, but the extension of railways has almost destroyed this trade. The harbour, which is connected with the town by a short line of rail, and will take vessels of 250 tons, is situated in the bay which is formed by the headlands near Portland on the east and Tor Point on the west. The principal manufactures are those of fishing-nets, twines, shoe-thread and sailcloth, made largely both for home and foreign consumption; formerly much flax was grown in the adjacent parishes, but little is now produced. On the river Brit there are three large flax mills.

Here are a Savings Bank, a Literary and Scientific Institute and a Working Men's Reading Room and Club; connected with the latter is a penny bank.

The population within the municipal limits, in 1881, was 6,795, as follows:—Allington (part of), 1,646; Bothenhampton (part of), 121; Bradpole (part of), 756; Bridport, 3,936; Burton Bradstock (part of), 179; Symondsbury (part of), 88; and Walditch (part of), 69. The population of Bridport parish was 3,936, and the area is 62 acres; rateable value of Bridport, £11,958; and Allington, £6,883.

ALLINGTON parish forms part of the borough.

The parish church of St. Swithin, erected in 1827, is a plain rectangular building of stone in the Greek style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and west gallery: it contains 800 seats, of which 400 are free. The register dates from the year 1787. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £210, with house, in the gift of the Rev. Edward Fox, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Samuel Shering Keddle M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Oxford.

At North Allington is a Dispensary and Cottage Hospital, with beds for nine patients, supported by subscription: the site and former house were given by the late Thomas Hannan.

There are some endowed almshouses here, which were partly rebuilt in 1877 by public subscription.

St. Andrew's, a chapel of ease to Bradpole, was erected in the year 1860 in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave and north aisle, with a western bell turret containing 3 bells: the vicar of Bradpole or his curate officiates: it contains 320 seats, all of which are free. The area is 594 acres; the population in 1881 was 1,709.

By a Local Government Order dated March 25, 1884, a detached part of Loders known as Loders West End was amalgamated with Allington

BROADMAYNE is a parish, situated on the road from Dorchester to Wareham, 4 miles south-east from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of St. George, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Dorchester, rural deanery of Dorchester, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Martin, situate in the centre of the village, is a small stone building, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle and square south tower, with one bell: the entrance is through the base of the tower: there are 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1664. The living is a rectory united with West Knighton, joint yearly gross value about £490, including residence and 352 acres of glebe, of which 45 acres are in Broadmayne, in the gift of Mrs. Urquhart, and held since 1879 by the Rev. George William Butler M.A. of University College, Oxford. Here is a place of worship for Wesleyans. John Roberts Furmedge esq. of Charles Mount, is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, chalk; the chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,540 acres; rateable value, £1,845; the population in 1881 was 511.

BROADWAY (or Broadwey), is so named because here the river Wey, rising at Upway, broadens: it is a pleasant village, 3 miles north from Weymouth, 5 south from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Culliford Tree, petty sessional division of Dorchester, union and county court district of Weymouth, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset, and diocese of Salisbury. The Great Western and South Western railways pass through the parish; there being two stations, one for Upway, the Broadway one is on the Abbotsbury branch. The mineral spring, the Nottington Spa, is situated here; it rises at Nottington, on the margin of the river Wey; the water is of that quality termed hepatic or sulphureous, but it has fallen into disuse as a medicinal spring. Roman remains have been found in several parts of the parish. The church of St. Nicholas is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, and was enlarged by the addition of a chancel aisle, and partially re-seated, an organ erected, and an east memorial window inserted, in 1874: it now consists of chancel, chancel aisle, clerestoried nave, with north aisle, a south porch with Norman arch inside, and it is remarkable for a Norman door and ancient timber roof, also a Norman font and oak pulpit of Elizabethan date: there is a western bell turret containing 2 bells: there are sittings for 450: in the churchyard is a monument containing two portrait medallions by the celebrated sculptor, F. C. Burnard esq. in memory of his daughter and brother-in-law. The register dates from the year 1661. The living is a rectory, consolidated with Bincombe, gross joint yearly value £487, with residence here, in the gift of the Master and fellows of Caius College, Cambridge, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Daniel Beales Redfarn Banham M.A. formerly fellow of that college. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1839, to hold 120: also a very fine temperance hall, erected in 1879; it will seat 500 people, and has reading and coffee rooms attached. The principal landowners are the Rev. J. M. Bridge and H. C. Goodden esq. J.P., D.L. of Upway House; the latter is lord of the manor. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are hay, wheat and barley. The area is 1,029 acres; rateable value, £4,440; the population in 1881 was 761.

Little Moor, a quarter of a mile east, is a hamlet; Nottington hamlet, 1¼ miles south-west, is partly in Buckland Rippers parish.

BROADWINDSOR is a parish and liberty divided into 5 tithings, each having a way-warden, 3 miles north-west from Beaminster, 10 north-east from Axminster, 7 north from Bridport and 6 south from Crewkerne, in the Western division of the county, Beaminster petty sessional division, union and county court district of Bridport, rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient Gothic structure of stone, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays with clerestory, aisles and south porch, with square embattled western tower containing a peal of 5 bells and clock: the pillars which support the roof are cylindrical, without any ornaments: the arches are somewhat pointed: at the east end of the north aisle is a fine piscina: the chancel is of equal width with the nave: on the south is a priest's doorway, with a cinque-foil head, and the external edge of the jambs chamfered and stopped: the north aisle is in the Early English style and the south aisle is Norman: there is a Pointed ogee-headed piscina; the tower has a plain Pointed arch of Early English date, without imposts, but the greater portion is of the Perpendicular period: the pulpit is a beautiful and curious structure of wood, of polygonal form, with a double row of panels, divided by a horizontal roll enriched with arabesque work of carved foliage; at the angles dividing the panels are Perpendicular crocketed buttresses which below the roll are continued by a round moulding, enriched with foliage of a semi-classic character; this is the original pulpit used by the celebrated Thomas Fuller: the font is Norman, with base of Purbeck marble: in 1868 the church was restored and almost entirely rebuilt, by the late Major Charles H. Malan, 75th Regiment (eldest son of the late vicar), at a cost of upwards of £3,000: the stained east window is a memorial to Major C. H. Malan, and was subscribed for by the parishioners: Mr. Pinney gave some ground for the enlargement of the churchyard in 1878: there are 320 sittings. The parish register dates from the year 1558, but there are some previous entries which are much decayed. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £750, net £330, with 8 acres of glebe land and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Sidney Edmund Davies M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. There is a Congregational chapel to seat 220 persons. There are charities amounting to about £83 yearly. The manufacture of sail-cloth is carried on here. LEWESDON and PILLESDON Hills are conspicuous seamarks, close to the village of Broadwindsor, under the name of the Cow and Calf: the former is 960 feet above the level of the sea, and the latter 940. Lewesdon Hill, from which there are extensive and beautiful prospects, is described in a poem by the Rev. William Crowe, public orator of the University of Oxford and a short time rector of Stoke Abbott. Col. William Pinney, of Somerton Erleigh, Somerset, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Lady Oglander, Edward Pinney esq. Col. William Pinney, T. S. Stevens esq. Tatchell Studley esq. and John Studley esq. The soil is various. The land is used for grazing and dairy land. The area is 6,095 acres; rateable value, £9,777; in 1881 the population was 1,256.

CHILDHAY is a tithing, 2½ miles north-west, on the Somerset border. Here are brickfields. NETHERHAY is a hamlet, 2½ miles north-west. LITTLE WINDSOR, 1¼ miles north, is a tithing and a manor, of which T. S. Stevens esq. is lord. DIBBERFORD, a tithing, 2 miles north-east.

BLACKDOWN hamlet is 3 miles west; in 1840 a chapel of ease, with 250 sittings, was erected here and dedicated to the Holy Trinity.

At DRIMPTON ST. MARY, a village and tithing, 2 miles north-east, is St. Mary's chapel of ease, consecrated in 1861, with 150 sittings; a church school is in connection with it; both were built by the late vicar.

BROWNSEA (formerly BRANKSEA) is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1855 from the parish of Studland: it is a picturesque island situated at the entrance of Poole harbour, in the Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division, county court district and union of Wareham, rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury, and is the property of the Rt. Hon. G. A. F. Cavendish Bentinck; it is about 5 miles in circumference and contains valuable clay beds (one, of white clay, being nearly 50 feet thick). The communication with the island is by steam launch from Poole harbour. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, in the Early Decorated style and fitted up entirely with old oak, the roof being the ancient one from Crosby Hall, formerly the council chamber and chapel of Richard II.; it consists of chancel, nave and north transept, with lofty embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the nave is seated with carved oak benches with poppy head ends: the windows are all stained: there is an elegant screen at the west end which separates the nave from the lower entrance and adds greatly to the beauty of the church: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1855. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £35, in the gift of and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Prior Farmer M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Castle, which is the seat of the Rt. Hon. George Augustus Frederick Cavendish Bentinck P.C., M.P., J.P. and the church are situated at the eastern extremity of the island, surrounded by plantations of pines. The massive square brick tower of the castle with some lower wings was built in the reign of Henry VIII. (1545), and the castle fortified two years later; in Elizabeth's reign it was repaired and the defences strengthened, the Mayor of Poole being appointed keeper; in 1576 the Queen granted the keeping of the castle to Sir Christopher Hatton, who caused great annoyance to the inhabitants of Poole by searching and levying dues from passing ships; during the Civil wars the Parliament gave the command of the castle to the governor of Poole; in 1722 the castle ceased to be a fortress, as Auditor Benson bought the island and made it his residence, the people of Poole complaining to King George II. of the loss of their defence. Col. Waugh, who purchased the island in 1852, added the Tudor Gothic front in Portland stone and other buildings on the north side, including the towers and turrets. The castle was in 1888 thoroughly restored by the present owner, the Rt. Hon. G. A. F. Cavendish Bentinck P.C., M.P., J.P. who has also embellished the place with a profusion of Italian sculpture and other works of art collected from foreign lands. Cnut landed on the island in 1015, and in the reign of Henry II. a chapel and hermitage were built here by the Abbot of Cerne. The area of the parish is 1,000 acres; the population in 1881 was 241.

BRYANSTON (BRYANSTONE or BRIANSTON) is a parish, situated on the river Stour, which separates it from Blandford, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Pimperne, petty sessional division of Blandford, Blandford union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Milton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Martin is a very small structure of stone, consisting of chancel and nave and western bell turret containing one bell: in the vault underneath are 15 coffins containing the remains of all the deceased members of the Portman family since 1761: the erection of a new church is at present (1889) contemplated: there are 110 sittings. The register dates from the year 1763. The living is a rectory, with that of Durweston consolidated, gross joint yearly value £557, including 97 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of Viscount Portman, and held since 1876 by the Rev. the Hon. Percival George Willoughby M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Durweston. Bryanston House, the seat of the Right Hon. Viscount Portman, formerly belonged to Henry William Berkeley Portman esq. great-grandfather of the present viscount. According to the earliest account now extant, it was formerly in the possession of Bryan-de-Insulâ, one of the great feudal barons in the reign of King John; it afterwards passed into other families, and was, in the reign of Charles II. purchased by Sir William Portman, of Orchard Portman, baronet, who, in the year 1695, devised it to Henry Seymour esq. fifth son of Sir Edward Seymour, of Berry Pomeroy, in the county of Devon, baronet, with remainder in default of issue to William Berkeley, of Pylle, in the county of Somerset, a younger branch of the family of the Lord Berkeley of Stratton, and descended from the ancient barons of Berkeley Castle: it is now in possession of Viscount Portman (great-grandson of Henry William Berkeley Portman esq.), by whom the house was newly built of freestone, from the design of James Wyatt esq. nearly on the site of the ancient mansion. The house stands on an extensive lawn, skirted by a beautiful hanging wood, a mile and a half in length, with the river Stour winding through the centre of the lawn, which with the view of the bridge and the town of Blandford, and of the downs of Dorsetshire, interspersed with woods, form a most delightful and pleasing prospect. A pack of fox-hounds is kept here by Viscount Portman Viscount Portman is lord of the manor, and the principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and peas. The area is 1,611A. 2R. 24P.; rateable value, £1,504; the population in 1881 was 259.

CATHERSTONE LEWESTON is a small parish, situated near the river Char, 2¾ miles north-east from Lyme Regis, three-quarters of a mile from Charmouth, 6 miles south-east from Axminster and 6 south-west from Bridport (its nearest railway station), in the Western division of the county, hundred of Whitchurch Canonicorum, petty sessional division of Bridport, Bridport union, Axminster county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The beautiful little church of St. Mary was erected in 1858, at the sole expense of the late Robert Charles Hildyard esq. on the site of the old one, and occupies an elevated situation: it is a building of stone in the Early Decorated style and consists of chancel and nave and western bell turret containing one bell: the whole of the windows are stained, those in the chancel being arranged, from the north side to the south, in historical sequence, commencing with The Agony in the Garden, The Betrayal, The Bearing the Cross, The Crucifixion, The Removal from the Cross, The Entombment and the Resurrection: the west window illustrates the history of the Blessed Virgin: the north and south windows of the nave consist of designs of a symbolical character: it contains many decorations and stone carvings of a rich and beautiful character, finely executed: on the north side of the chancel is an organ: the bell in the turret at the west end was brought from Sebastopol: there are 50 sittings. The register appears to have been kept with those at Wotton Fitzpaine until December, 1837, but some have been lost between the last at Wotton Fitzpaine and the first here. The living is a rectory, without glebe house, yearly value £63 10s. in tithe and glebe and £17 from Queen Anne's Bounty, in the gift of Major Bullen, and held since 1886 by the Rev. William Henry White M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, who resides at Charmouth. Catherstone House is the property of Major John Bullen Symes Bullen J.P. lord of the manor and sole landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The soil is clay and gravel. The area is 248 acres; rateable value, £327; the population in 1881 was 25.

CATTISTOCK is a parish and large village, situated on a feeder of the river Frome, 9 miles north-west from Dorchester and 1 mile north from Maiden Newton station on the Great Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division and union of Cerne, Dorchester county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Abbotsbury portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of SS. Peter and Paul was repaired and nearly rebuilt at the entire cost of a former rector, the Rev. H. Still: the body of the church is of Hamhill stone, with beautiful examples of the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles: it consists of chancel, nave and aisles, north porch, and at the north-western angle is a grand and massive embattled tower with pinnacles, partly of Hamhill and partly of Ridgeway stone, erected at the cost of the family of the Rev. K. H. Barnes, a former rector, and containing a superb carillon of bells, cast at Louvain by the celebrated founder Van Arschodt: there is also a magnificent clock with Westminster chimes: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £400, with residence and 25 acres of glebe, in the gift of Miss Still, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Arthur Drummond Wilkins M.A. formerly fellow of New College, Oxford. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel. George Hugh Digby esq. resides at Chalmington House, about a mile from the village. J. Kenelm D. Wingfield-Digby esq. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. Part of the glebe and also some land belonging to G. H. Digby esq. is let in allotments to labourers. The soil is light chalk and loam; subsoil, chalk. Chief crops, corn and pasture. The area is, including Sandhills, 3,009 acres; rateable value, £4,899; the population in 1881 was 531.

SANDHILLS, a small hamlet, is about half a mile north from the village.

CERNE ABBAS is a parish and small town, situated in a pleasant valley, watered by the river Cerne, about 8 miles north from Dorchester and 5 north-east from Maiden Newton station, on the Great Western railway, in the Western division of the county, head of the petty sessional division hundred and union of Cerne, Dorchester county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Cerne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a handsome edifice of flint, with stone dressings, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of nave, aisles, south porch and a fine embattled western tower, with pinnacles, with 5 bells and chimes and clock: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from about the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £181, including 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lieut.-General Augustus Henry Lane Fox-Pitt-Rivers, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Henry Dickinson Gundry. The burial ground was enlarged in 1881 and now consists of 2 acres; it is under the control of a burial board of 9 members. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Methodist chapels. Here is a charity of £10 derived from a rent-charge left in 1620 by Sir Robert Meller, of Upcerne, which is distributed yearly. The principal trades of the town are the manufacture of leather, and brewing. Cerne is chiefly entitled to notice from its giant, a figure cut in outline, 180 feet long, on the side of a hill to the north-east of the town: this figure is supposed to be that of the Saxon God Heil (or Hercules), and if so, is at least 1,200 years old: others refer it to Celtic times: there is a similar figure cut in the downs near Wilmington, in Sussex. This little town has the remains of an abbey, said to have been founded by St. Augustine, whose name is still borne by a remarkable spring of water near the ruins: the earliest authentic trace of it, however, is the foundation of Ailmar, or Ædward, Earl of Cornwall, about the year 980 A.D.; the gateway of this once extensive monastery still remains in a tolerable state of preservation. Meetings of the Highway Board for the Cerne division are held here on the Wednesday next preceding each quarter day at the justice room. Lieut.-General A. H. Lane Fox-Pitt-Rivers is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is light gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 3,068 acres; rateable value, £3,711; the population in 1881 was 925, including 33 officers and inmates of the workhouse.

The church (not dedicated), a building of flint and rubble, situated on a hill, appears to have been built about the 13th century, and consists of chancel and nave, south porch and bell turret: there are about 85 sittings. The register dates from the year 1695. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £220, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Pembroke, and held since 1864 by the Rev. George Henry Billington M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The principal landowners are the Earl of Shaftesbury, who is lord of the manor, Lord Alington and the trustees of the late Sir Edward Harris Greathed. The soil is clay and gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,339 acres; rateable value, £1,016; the population in 1881 was 211.

By a Local Government Order, dated March 25, 1886, a detached part of this parish, known as Uddens, was amalgamated with Wimborne Minster.

Parish Clerk, Aaron Poore.

CHALDON HERRING (or EAST CHALDON) is a parish, 5 miles south-west from Wool station and 9½ west-south-west from Wareham, on the sea coast, in the Southern division of the county, liberty of Bindon, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Nicholas is a small structure of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and north porch, with an embattled western tower and 3 bells: in 1879 the church was thoroughly restored, and re-seated with open benches of pitch pine; the pulpit, lectern, reading desk, communion table and rails are of pitch pine, the design and work of the Rev. William Gildea, vicar of Netherbury, Bridport: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1621. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £67, including 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of Reginald Joseph Weld esq. of Lulworth Castle, but pro hâc vice, of the University of Oxford, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Joseph Staines Cope. A vicarage house was erected by subscription in 1874. There is a coast-guard station at White Nothe, commonly called White Nose, under the care of a chief boatman and eight men. At Fossil Hill is the Five Mary, or Meers, barrow. On Chaldon Down are Wardstone barrow, Round Pond, and other barrows. Reginald Joseph Weld esq. of Lulworth Castle, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various; subsoil, chalk and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats, roots, and there is much pasture land. The area is 2,981 acres; rateable value, £1,620; the population in 1881 was 334.

WEST CHALDON (or Chaldon Boys), about three quarters of a mile west, was formerly a manor and parish, but is now a hamlet. The church having been desecrated, the parish has been united to the vicarage of Chaldon Herring.

NORTH GROUND is 1 mile west.

CHARDSTOCK is a parish and village, situated on a peninsula, between the counties of Devon and Somerset, 2½ miles west from Chard Road station, 3 south-south-west from Chard, 4 north from Axminster, 9½ north-west from Lyme Regis, in the Western division of the county, Bridport and Thorncombe petty sessional division, hundred of Beaminster Forum and Redhorne, Axminster union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The river Kit runs through the village and joins the river Axe at Axe farm. The church of St. Andrew, consisting formerly of chancel and nave only, was rebuilt and enlarged in the year 1864, with the addition of a north aisle, south porch, organ chamber, and vestry on the south of the chancel and a chapel: the architect has contrived, most ingeniously, to combine in one building the styles of various periods, it being the wish of one liberal benefactor to this work that the east end of the chancel should be erected in what was supposed to be the style of the original edifice, destroyed many years ago, viz. Early English: this has been carried out in a very beautiful three-light lancet window, decorated with stained glass: the north side is Early Decorated; the south is in the Perpendicular, but all combine harmoniously, while the interlacing of Bath, Bishop's Lydiard and Hamden Hill stone in arches and windows, the decorations of the chancel with marbles from Devonshire and Cornwall, and an exquisite reredos of Caen stone, ornamented with pillars, bosses and interlayings of marble, form a good specimen of modern art: the western tower contains a peal of 7 bells and a clock with the Cambridge chimes: there are sittings for 300 persons. The parish registers date from the year 1590, and are in excellent preservation. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Frank Parham M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The charities amount to about £100 yearly, derived from Mead's and White's charities left in land and funded property, the former distributed by feoffees who are copyholders of the manor, the latter distributed by the vicar and churchwardens. The old Court, now the property of Lord Henley, exhibits numerous traces of Early English and Norman architecture, some portions of the present building, with what is now a barn, being upwards of six hundred years old, and is presumed to have been the summer palace of the Bishops of Salisbury. The principal landowners are Lord Henley, of Watford, Northampton, who is lord of the manor, and John Churchill Stuckey Langdon esq. of Parrock Lodge, Chard, and the trustees of the late Richard Thornton West esq. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and apples, and some land in pasture. The soil is chalk and clay in parts. The area is 5,089 acres; rateable value, £7,301; the population in 1881 was 1,328; the population of All Saints parish is 485.

ALSON, 1 mile south; and TYTHERLEIGH, half-a-mile south-east, are hamlets in this parish; CROWLEY has for civil purposes been annexed to Membury.

Sexton, William Bond.

CHARDSTOCK ALL SAINTS is an ecclesiastical parish, formed out of the parishes of Chardstock and Axminster, part of the parish being in Devonshire. The church, erected in 1840, is a building of stone without any architectural pretension, consisting of chancel, nave and western turret containing one bell: there are 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1840. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £280, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Charles Woodcock M.A. late student of Christ Church, Oxford, and prebendary and canon of Salisbury.

CHARLTON MARSHALL is a parish and village, pleasantly situated on the river Stour and on the road from Blandford to Poole, 2 miles south-south-east from Blandford, 11½ miles north-west from Poole and about 8½ north-west from Wimborne, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Cogdean, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Blandford, rural deanery of Whitchurch Milton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is of stone and flint, in the Early English style, rebuilt by the Rev. Dr. Sloper in the year 1713: it consists of chancel, nave and north aisles, south porch, and has a western tower with pinnacles, containing 4 bells and a clock: it contains monuments to the Rev. Dr. Sloper and his wife (d. 1727), also tablets to members of the Bastard family: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1705. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the rectory of Spetisbury, gross joint yearly value £750, including 177 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of W. S. Erle-Drax esq. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Samuel Arthur Walker M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Spetisbury. Here is a Congregational chapel, and a hall in which non-sectarian service is conducted on Sundays and a non-certificated school is held on week days. On the downs in this parish are several barrows. Newlands is the residence of Major-General Sir Charles Walters D'Oly bart. J.P. The chief landowners are T. H. Bastard esq. (who is lord of the manor), and H. Evans Huntley esq. of Charlton House. The soil is fairly fertile, with a subsoil of chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 2,191 acres; rateable value, £2,738; the population in 1881 was 652.

THORNCOMBE, a hamlet of Langdon, is partly in this parish.

CHARMINSTER is a parish and scattered village, situated on the Sherborne road and at the confluence of the rivers Cerne and Frome, 2 miles north-by-west from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of St. George, Dorchester union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary, situated in the centre of the village, is a pretty stone edifice, with leaden roof: it consists of chancel, nave and aisles divided from the nave by massive Norman arches, a south porch, and has a handsome square western embattled tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 5 bells: in the southern corner is the Devenish family pew, which contains several marble tablets relating to that family: at the eastern corner is an exceedingly curious monument, with elaborate carving on white marble, over the vaults of the Trenchard family, whose name appears with the date 1636: handsome choir stalls, communion rails and sanctuary hangings were presented by Captain Dymond in 1889: the church is now (1889) being completely restored: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, annexed to the vicarage of Stratton, joint gross yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Jonathan Charles Prior, of Worcester College, Oxford. The Wesleyans and Free Reformed Methodists have places of worship here. Here is a Working Men's Club and Institute. The Old Dorset County Pauper Lunatic Asylum is situated at Forston, 2½ miles north-west from the village: it will hold 150 patients: it was formerly the seat of the late Francis John Browne (who gave it to the county for this purpose), and was opened in 1832, but enlarged by the erection of wings and now forms an extensive range of buildings, with grounds and orchard adjoining. The New County Asylum is very extensive and stands 1 mile from the old asylum: it was opened in 1864, and is capable of holding 320 patients, and cost, including 56 acres of land, about £44,000; private patients are received at a charge varying from 10s. to 14s. weekly. Wolfeton House is the residence of Wynne Albert Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. The principal landowners are Lord Alington, the Earl of Ilchester P.C. Robert Devenish and Herbert William Dunning esq. who is lord of the manor. The soil is gravel; subsoil, chalk. A considerable portion of the land in the parish is in pasture, and furnishes a rich supply for the stock, kept exclusively for dairy purposes. The area is 4,095 acres; rateable value £5,668; the population in 1881 was 1,516, including 582 officers and inmates of the County Lunatic Asylum.

BURTON is a hamlet, 1 mile south; WOLVETON, a quarter of a mile south; FROME, 1½ miles south-east; WHITFIELD, 2 miles east. On Frome Down are barrows.

CHARMOUTH is a pleasant watering place on the shore of the English channel, a village and parish, 2 miles east from Lyme Regis, 6 west from Bridport and 5½ miles south-east from Axminster station on the South Western railway, and 146 from London, in the Western division of the county, Whitchurch hundred, Bridport petty sessional division and union, Axminster county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury; it is situated on the high road between Dorchester and Exeter, and takes its name from the river Char, a small stream which flows through the valley near which it is built: it is a place of great antiquity, being on a branch of the trackway called Ikeneld Street, which left Morcombelake and passed through Charmouth and Lyme Regis, over the hills to Colyford, Sidbury, Woodbury Castle and Exeter. During the time the Romans occupied Dorsetshire it was one of their stations and called Carca Arixa; in 833 great battles were fought between King Egbert's army and the Danes, who landed from thirty-five ships and made great slaughter: it is much frequented by visitors from its peculiar advantages, the mildness of the climate and the purity of the sea water. The views around are extremely beautiful, especially from the eastern cliff—Cain's Folly. GOLDEN CAP HILL, one of the most lofty, is 600 feet high. The river Char produces some fine trout, and the beach and cliffs near the BLACK VEN HILLS and the Golden Cap are interesting to the geologist. During 1864 a fine specimen of a new species of Plesiosaurus Rostratus (Owen) was discovered here by E. C. H. Day esq. F.G.S. and purchased of him for the British Museum: ammonities are found in great quantities. On the western cliffs is the Great Gun battery, with other buildings belonging to the coastguard station. The church of St. Andrew is a handsome building of flint and stone, erected on the site of the old one in 1836 and improved in 1861: it consists of clerestoried nave with five bays and having a recess for the communion table, aisles, north porch and square western tower containing 3 bells and a clock: the roof is supported by octagonal columns: the church is lighted by lancet windows; that in the east, three in the north aisle and three in the south aisle are stained; one in the south is in memory of Mary, eldest daughter of the Rev. E. R. Breton, who died June 15th, 1865, aged 19; another in the south aisle was erected by Mrs. H. C. Breton, in 1878, in memory of her husband, Rev. E. R. Breton; and the third window in the south was erected by the rector, Rev. E. R. Breton, in memory of his son, Charles E. B. Breton, capt. 4th King's Own: two of the windows in the north aisle and that over the porch, were inserted by Mrs. Stuart: at the back of the communion table is a richly carved reredos: in the gallery at the west end is a fine toned organ: there are some interesting mural monuments, removed from the old church: there is an exceedingly fine marble font, given by the Misses Stuart in 1886 in memory of their mother, and a handsome pulpit of Caen stone with Irish marble pillars, erected in 1885, in memory of Captain Bullen R.N. and his wife: the church will seat nearly 500 persons. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £120, inclusive of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Frederick Seager Hunt esq. M.P. of 7 Cromwell road, London, and held since 1883 by the Rev. William Ward Nicholls, of Bishops' College, Calcutta. The rectory house is on the south side, through the churchyard. The Congregational church was founded in 1689, rebuilt in 1815 and restored in 1866: in 1878 new gates and iron pilasters were added, the gallery reseated and the church fresh stuccoed. The almshouses are for the benefit of the poor of the parish. Next to the Congregational church is a house of great antiquity, with heavy oak ceilings, arches and a very large chimney: this house was originally the Queen's Arms Inn, and after the battle of Worcester Charles II. slept here and was also here concealed in the chimney when the house was searched by Cromwell's soldiers; the principal room in it is 40 feet long by 20 feet broad; this house is also celebrated as being the place where the late Dean Alford went to school, as mentioned in the history of his life by Stopford Brooke. The principal inn is the "Coach and Horses." John James Coulton esq. is lord of the manor. The chief landowners are John Hawkshaw esq. and Miss Catherine Stuart. The soil is light sandy loam; subsoil, sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats; the area is 414 acres, of which 85 are water and foreshore; rateable value, £2,477; the population in 1881 was 626.

CHIDEOCK is a parish and exceedingly picturesque village, situated on a brooklet, called the Winniford, as shown by the "title deed" in the hands of Sir Frederick Weld, dated 1243, lying in a valley between the hills of Quor, Eype Down and Thorncombe on the east and Haddon Hill and Golden Cap on the west, and bounded on the south by the English Channel; 2½ miles west from Bridport and 6 east from Lyme, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Whitchurch Canonicorum, Bridport union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Giles is a very ancient stone building mainly in the Perpendicular style, though there are some older portions and traces of others: it consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch, north transeptal chapel and western embattled tower, with grotesque gurgoyles at intervals, containing 5 bells and a clock; the bells date from 1602, the clock from 1780: the aisle arcade has four bays, with Perpendicular moulded arches and piers: the font has two quatrefoils on each face of a shallow octagonal bowl, supported by a panelled stem: in 1880 the church underwent a thorough restoration, under the superintendence of the diocesan architect, Mr. G. R. Crickmay of Weymouth; this included the removal of an unsightly gallery that blocked the tower arch and window, the complete reparation of the belfry; the rebuilding of the north wall of nave and east and west walls of transept, the insertion in the former of two new Perpendicular windows, re-roofing, re-flooring and re-glazing the entire church, covering the south aisle roof with new lead, laying a six-inch bed of concrete beneath the new wooded floor, building the new transeptal chancel and side arches, with supporting buttress, pointing and renewing the decayed stonework of the exterior, at the total cost of about £1,100: during the course of the work a rude fresco was discovered on the north wall: in 1883 the foundation stone of the new chancel was laid by Catherine, wife of the Rev. Thomas Law Montefiore M.A. then curate in charge, and it was built at a cost of £600, under the direction of Mr. G. R. Crickmay; it is of fine proportions and architecturally in accordance with the nave: at the east end of the south aisle is an altar tomb of Purbeck marble, on the top of which rests the figure of a knight in plate armour; Coker assigns this monument to Sir John Arundell, but it was despoiled of its brasses at the Revolution: in the north transept are three memorial tablets to William Fitzherbert of this parish, gent. dated 1761; Simeon Bullen esq. 1822 and John Bullen esq. dated 1852: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1654. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rentcharge £255, net £150, with house, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Thomas Law Montefiore M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, diocesan inspector of schools. Here are places of worship for Catholics and Wesleyans. North of the church, and separated by a wall from the churchyard, is the Catholic Cemetery, with a small cruciform mortuary chapel in the midst, the private property of the Weld family, having a representation of our Lord's Passion on the west wall facing the gate; internally it is adorned with mural paintings in oil. Here are the remains of the moat of Chideock Castle, the ancient seat of the Chideocks and Arundells, erected in 1379 by John de Chideoke: during the civil wars Chideock Castle was often taken and re-taken by each party. The Manor House is the seat of Sir Frederick Aloysius Weld G.C.M.G., J.P. late governor of the Straits Settlements, who is lord of the manor and principal landowner; it was built by Mr. Humphrey Weld, and stands on the right of the road leading to North Chideock, half a mile from the parish church; on this side it is so thickly shrouded with trees as in summer to be completely hidden from observation: attached to the house is a pretty little chapel for the use of the family and the Catholic inhabitants of the parish, richly decorated and containing several good paintings in oil, the work of the late lord of the manor. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. Flax is grown here. The area is 2,052 acres, of which seventy acres are foreshore; ratable value, £4,100; and the population in 1881 was 674.

Seatown, a coastguard station, in charge of a chief officer and 5 men, is one mile south; Quarry Cross, one mile north-east.

The church of St. Peter is an ancient structure of stone, partly rebuilt, having chancel, nave, south transept, south porch and western tower, with 3 bells, pinnacles and clock: the chancel is of the Early Decorated period: in the nave is a handsome monument to the Clavel family: there are 270 sittings. The register dates from the years—baptisms, 1547; marriages, 1568; burials, 1558. The living is a discharged rectory, tithe rent-charge, £290, with residence, in the gift of Col. Geo. Pleydell Mansel D.L., J.P. of Smedmore, Kimmeridge, and held since 1852 by the Rev. Owen Luttrell Mansel M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The parish is divided into two parts by the chalk range, which runs through the Isle of Purbeck: the tertiary strata lie on the north side, which is mostly an uncultivated heath, whilst to the south are the formations known as the Hastings sands and the Purbeck beds. The portion of the chalk range which lies to the west of Corfe Castle, known as Knowle and Creech Hills, has several barrows and some peculiar earth works. The remains of a Roman villa have been recently (1889) discovered at Creech. Col. G. Pleydell Mansel D.L., J.P. of Smedmore, Kimmeridge, is lord of the manor. The chief landowners are the Right Hon. the Earl of Eldon, Col. G. Pleydell Mansel D.L., J.P. and Nathaniel Bond esq. D.L., J.P. The chief crops are barley, wheat and oats; there is also much pasture land. The area is 2,920 acres; rateable value, £3,134; the population in 1881 was 562.

EAST CREECH is a hamlet, formerly a manor, a mile north-west of the village.

CORFE CASTLE is a parish and village, with a station on the London and South Western railway, 5 miles south-east from Wareham, 21 south-east from Dorchester and 130 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, Corfe Castle hundred, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, Wareham and Purbeck union, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury: it is situated nearly in the centre of the Isle or Peninsula of Purbeck, and derives its name and origin from the ancient castle: its first charter, granted by Queen Elizabeth, conferred on the inhabitants equal privileges with the Cinque Ports. The church of St. Edward the Martyr, a building of stone with green slate roof, was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1859-1860, from designs by Wyatt, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel and chancel aisles, nave and aisles, north porch and an ancient embattled west tower with pinnacles, with an interesting doorway and clock and a peal of 6 bells: the chancel is enriched by a stained east window, in memory of Lady Charlotte Bankes; a fine reredos has been added by the Earl of Eldon, designed by the late G. E. Street R.A.: there are eight other memorial windows: the stained window in the south aisle was erected by the rector in memory of his youngest son and the other two to his eldest daughter; that at the west end is to Captain Sir George Biddlecombe, knight, who left money for the purpose: there is an organ, and a very beautiful ancient font of Purbeck marble: the chancel, which is Early English, is built of the Purbeck stone and Purbeck marble, which is effectively introduced in the columns of the chancel (copied from those of the former edifice) and other parts of the interior: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £680, including 70 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of W. R. Bankes esq. the proprietor of Kingston Lacey, near Wimborne, and held since 1854 by the Rev. Eldon Surtees Bankes M.A. of University College, Oxford, surrogate, prebendary of Salisbury and rural dean of Dorchester Purbeck portion. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The charities are £80 yearly, arising from rents of lands left by Robert Abbot and others, and are spent in allowing the sum of £2 5s. a year each to 12 aged persons and in buying clothing for the poor. A museum for depositing the rich geological, natural and ancient curiosities has been established in East street and recently (1889) been renovated and re-arranged. The trade of Corfe Castle for many centuries has consisted chiefly in stone and grey marble, generally known by the name of Purbeck marble, which abounds not only in the vicinity of this place, but throughout the Isle of Purbeck; and the fact of its being found in the interior of almost every old cathedral and church in the kingdom, as well as in many foreign churches, shows that the trade in this article must formerly have been very considerable. After the introduction of foreign marble, the trade in Purbeck marble declined, and it fell into disuse until the restoration of the Temple Church, London (1842), where it was reintroduced in forming the pillars: the font of the church of Harrow-on-the-Hill, 700 years old, is formed of this material; the nave of St. Alban's Abbey and the cathedrals of Salisbury, Winchester, Canterbury and Gloucester contain specimens of this marble. A number of the inhabitants are now employed digging potters' clay, from which Minton's best china is made, large quantities of which are exported to all parts both of this and foreign countries. Fairs are held on the 12th May and 29th October. The market is discontinued. The Bankes' Arms hotel has recently (1889) been enlarged and refitted and affords very good accommodation for visitors.

The Castle stands on a lofty eminence commanding the Corfe, or gap, which here occurs in the Purbeck range, and the walls follow the crest of the hill, which descends almost vertically on the east, west and north sides. The northern, or highest point, is occupied by the noble ruins of the Keep and principal buildings; the great gateway stands at the southern, or lowest angle; the Butavant tower, the western; and the Queen's hall, or tower, near the eastern angle; the whole inclosing an area of about 3¼ acres, which is divided into three wards—the outer (by far the largest), the middle, and the inner ward: a bridge of four arches, crossing a deep dry moat, connects the castle with the town. A full and admirable detailed account of the history of the castle is given by Mr. T. Bond, in the last edition of "Hutchings' History of Dorset," and has been more recently revised and issued as a distinct volume. The earliest historical event recorded of Corfe is in connection with the murder of King Edward the Martyr, A.D. 978. Elfrida's "house" stood here, and in March of that year, by her hand, or by her instigation, King Edward was assassinated on his horse at the door of her hospice; his foot being entangled in the stirrup, he was dragged away by the affrighted animal till it reached the brook on the Wareham side of the mound, where the body of the unfortunate prince was found and taken to Wareham, whence it was afterwards removed with great pomp to Shaftesbury. William the Conqueror next appears connected with the fortress, as having caused the Keep or great tower to be built, and the castle was used chiefly as a prison. Stephen, in his wars with Matilda, found the castle impregnable. John made it a royal residence and considered it the safest depository of his treasure and regalia; here, also, he confined the Princess Alinor, sister of his victim Arthur, in company with the two daughters of the King of Scotland. From Corfe Castle, Edward II. was taken to Berkeley by his murderers, Sir John Matravers, of Langton Matravers, and Sir John Gurney. Elizabeth sold the domain to her favourite, Sir Christopher Hatton, who, in 1587, was made Lord High Chancellor: in 1635 it passed by purchase into the possession of the then Attorney-General, Sir John Bankes, afterwards Lord Chief Justice, the ancestor of the family of Bankes, of Kingston Lacey, where the key of the castle is still preserved; in 1643 it was taken by treachery, by the Parliamentary forces, and months were occupied in reducing it to its present state by gunpowder. Two and a half miles to the north-east of Corfe Castle is Rempstone Hall, the seat of Lady Caroline Calcraft. The principal landowners are W. Ralph Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. of Kingston Lacey, who is lord of the manor, William Montagu Calcraft esq. J.P. Nathaniel Bond esq. D.L., J.P. of Creech Grange and the Earl of Eldon J.P. The soil is various; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats, with a large area of pasture land. The area is 8,809 acres of land and 1,075 of water; rateable value, £6,981; the population in 1881 was, including Kingston, 1,777.

CORFE MULLEN is a parish, situated on the river Stour, 2 miles south-west from Wimborne and about 3 miles south-east from Sturminster Marshall station, and 2½ miles from Poole Junction station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, 117 from London, 8 south-east from Blandford and 6 north-west from Poole, in the Eastern division of the county, Cogdean hundred, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, Wimborne and Cranbourne union Whitchurch rural deanery, Poole porton, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese. A loop line in connection with the Somerset and Dorset railway from New Poole Junction to Bailey Gate station for Sturminster Marshall was opened in 1885. The church of St. Hubert is very ancient, and was repaired about 1850, and again in 1865; it is a low building of red stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept, south porch of brick and a square tower containing 4 bells: there are 347 sittings. The register dates from the year 1652. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £410, net £229, with 2 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Eton College, and held since 1858 by the Rev. Robert William Plumptre M.A. of University College, Oxford. Here are Baptist, Wesleyan and Primitive Methodist chapels. Phellipps' charity of £80 yearly is derived from land in Somerset, devised in 1662 by Thomas Phellipps and is divided into three parts, viz.:—first part, expended in bread and cheese, and distributed to the poor on the steps of the old cross in the churchyard every Sunday morning; second part, for the apprenticing and clothing poor children of the parish; the third part is presented to the incumbent of the parish. Churchill's charity of £16 derived from Consols left in 1835 by William Churchill is distributed in coals on the 3rd December, the founder's birthday. The Knoll is occupied by Henry John Mills esq. Glendon is the seat of Major-General Charles Powlett Lane D.L., J.P. The manorial rights are held by St. John Coventry esq. of Hendon House. The principal landowner is Lord Wimborne. The soil is sand and clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 3,087 acres; rateable value, £2,878; the population in 1881 was 694.

EAST END and LAMB'S GREEN are 1 mile north-east.

CORSCOMBE (with the hamlets of BENVILLE and TOLLER WHELME) is a large parish, 4 miles north-east from Beaminster, 5 south-west from Sutton Bingham station on the South Western railway, and 5 west from Evershot station, on the Great Western railway, 8 south-west from Yeovil and 10 north from Bridport, in the Western division of the county, hundred and union of Beaminster, petty sessional division of Bridport, county court district of Crewkerne, rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary, an ancient structure of stone, in the Tudor style, with traces of Gothic work, was, with the tower, rebuilt in the 15th century; it was again rebuilt and refitted in 1746 in the barbarous taste of the period, with the exception of the north porch, a very interesting feature, which was happily left intact: the church was restored and enlarged in 1876, mainly at the expense of G. Troyte-Bullock esq.: it consists of chancel, nave of five bays and south aisle, embattled western tower, with pinnacles, and has a good peal of 6 bells: there is a very handsome carved pulpit of Caen stone and marble, given by the late George Bullock esq. in 1883, in memory of his wife, who died in the year 1866: there is also a very fine stained east window to the memory of Edward Berkeley Troyte LL.D. and a stained west window: there are 226 sittings. The register dates from the year 1595; part is not legible. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £530, net £480, with 56 acres of glebe land and residence, in the gift of F. R. Cope esq. of Armagh, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Robert Reid Arthur Doolan B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. A very good club, furnished with papers and periodicals, for the use of the men and boys, is established in the village, and supported by the rector. Bricks and tiles are made here. Two fairs are held in the year at Toller Down, in this parish, on the 18th of May and the 7th of September. George Troyte-Bullock esq. is lord of the manor, and owns a large portion of the parish. The other landowners are the Rev. William Pope, of Godmanstone, the Earl of Sandwich, Joseph Addison Day esq. and Mr. William Snaydon. The soil varies, and the land is principally used for dairy purposes. The area is 4,918 acres; rateable value, £5,193; the population in 1881 was 653, including Toller Whelme.

Parish Clerk of Corscombe, Thomas Davis.

BENVILLE is 1½ miles south-east; Pinnys, or Toller Whelme, 2½ miles south. Toller Whelme is an ecclesiastical parish, formed August 1, 1871, from Corscombe. The church of St. John was erected in the year 1870, at the expense of the late William Pope esq. and is a small edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel and nave, with an embattled western tower and 4 small bells: the east and two other windows are stained, and there are sittings for about 60 persons, The register dates from the year 1871. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £40, in the gift of the Rev. W. J. Pope, at present vacant. The services are conducted by the rector of Hooke. The population in 1881 was 74.

POST OFFICE.—Thomas Davis, receiver. Letters from Dorchester, through Cattistock, arrive at 8.55 a.m.; dispatched at 4.35 p.m. in summer & 4 p.m. in winter. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Evershot. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid

CRANBORNE is a town and extensive parish, comprising the town and nine small hamlets, situated on the borders of Wiltshire and Hampshire; the town is 4 miles north from Verwood and 4 north-west from Daggons Road stations (which are in this parish), on the Salisbury and Dorset line of the London and South Western railway, 10 north-west from Ringwood, 100 from London and 10 north from Wimborne, in the Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, hundred of its name, Wimborne and Cranborne union, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The Chase, formerly belonging to Lord Rivers, was disfranchised in 1830; the river Crane flows through the parish. The church of St. Mary and St. Bartholomew (once attached to a monastery, founded about the year 980) is a building of stone in mixed styles, from Norman to Perpendicular, one of the oldest, as well as one of the largest in the county: it contains a chancel (rebuilt in 1875 by the Marquess of Salisbury), nave, aisles, north porch, with a Norman doorway and large square embattled western tower containing 6 bells: it has been repaired and re-seated with open benches, at an expense of upwards of £700, raised by a loan on the security of the rates, and by subscription: a clock was placed in the tower, at an expense of £150, raised by subscription: an organ was added in 1880, at a cost of £400: the west window is filled with stained glass, to commemorate Bishop Stillingfleet, who was born here in 1635; the subject representing the bishop in the centre, with figures on either side of St. Dunstan and Abbot Parker; the cost, about £140, defrayed by subscription: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1602. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Boveridge annexed, joint net yearly value £151, with residence, in the gift of the Marquess of Salisbury K.G. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Frank Hugh Fisher M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. This parish, which is the largest in the county, extending as it does from north to south nearly 13 miles, includes Monkton-up-Wimborne, Verwood, Three Legged Cross, ALDERHOLT, BOVERIDGE, Daggons, Crendell, Cripplestyle, HOLWELL and Blagdon, mostly scattered, and, although styled hamlets, having no distinctive character to entitle them to such an appellation. Verwood and Three Legged Cross were in 1887 included in the ecclesiastical parish of Verwood and West Moors, which is given under a separate heading. ALDERHOLT, DAGGONS, CRENDELL and CRIPPLESTYLE, in the east of the parish, were formed November 14, 1849, into a district for ecclesiastical purposes. The church of St. James was erected by the Marquess of Salisbury, and endowed by the Marquess and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, the former contributing £25 yearly, and the latter now nearly £100 a year: the church, a building of local sandstone in the Early English style, consists of small chancel and nave. The register dates from the year 1849. The living is a vicarage, yearly value about £125, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Cranborne, and held since 1879 by the Rev. John William Barrow, of Magdalen College, Oxford. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have each a chapel. There is a Congregational chapel at Cripplestyle. Petty sessions for the Cranborne sub-division of Wimborne are held at the Foresters' Hall, Cranborne, once a month; for list of magistrates and places in the division, see Wimborne. Here is a charity, called Hutchin's, for providing great coats, in December, for a number of poor men; and another charity was in 1831 founded by John Miles, to give 3s. 6d. weekly each to four poor men and four poor women in this parish. At Boveridge are almshouses for five aged persons, who have each a weekly allowance of 5s. Two fairs are held annually, one on the 24th of August, for pleasure; the other on the 6th of December, for the sale of pigs and cheese. Cranborne is a place of great antiquity, and was of some importance in the Roman and Saxon times. On the Castle Hill, a little south of the town, is a circular fortification, with a well near it, both supposed to be of Saxon origin. The family of Cecil, Marquesses of Salisbury, take their second title of Viscount Cranborne from this place. The Manor House is an ancient building, supposed to have been erected about the 12th century, but considerable additions and alterations were made in the reign of Henry VII. King John is said to have visited here at different times. The property was given to the Cecils by James I. and has been restored by the present Marquess of Salisbury; the west wing was added in the reign of James I. or Charles I. and it is considered that Inigo Jones (the famous architect) designed it; it is now the residence of the Rev. Arthur Cazenove M.A. vicar of St. Mark's, Reigate, and honorary canon of Rochester. Alderholt Park, the seat of George Churchill esq. B.A., J.P. was purchased by the present owner from Jonathan M. Key esq. Cranborne Lodge, standing in a park of 17 acres, containing some ornamental timber, and commanding a pleasant view of the country, is the residence of Mrs. Tregonwell, relict of John Tregonwell esq. D.L. The principal landowners are the Marquess of Salisbury K.G. who is lord of the manor, the Earls of Shaftesbury and Normanton, H. F. Brouncker esq. W. Fryer esq. Wanley Ellis Sawbridge-Erle-Drax esq. J.P. and G. Churchill esq. B.A., J.P. The area is 13,730 acres, including about 6,000 of waste: rateable value, £7,608; the population in 1881 was 2,317, of which 620 are in Alderholt ecclesiastical parish.

MORE CRICHEL is a parish and small village, near the river Allen, 6 miles south-west from Cranborne, 6 north-west from Wimborne railway station, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Badbury, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, union of Wimborne and Cranborne, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a splendid structure of stone in the Italian style, and was entirely rebuilt in the year 1850, at the sole expense of the late H. C. Sturt esq. who, in its re-erection, expended upwards of £10,000: it consists of chancel, nave and transepts: adjoining the vestery is the family vault of the Sturt family: it also contains some old tombs, a fine brass, removed from the old church, and another, beautifully illuminated, in memory of local soldiers who fell in the Crimean war, and two others; the church has been beautifully decorated and fitted with new stained windows and a brass choir screen and handsome stone pulpit by Lord Alington, at an expense of upwards of £2,000; the work was carried out under the direction of the Rev. Ernest Geldart, rector of Little Brasted, Essex: a new west window in memory of the late Lord Alington is now (1889) in course of construction: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1664. The living, a consolidation of More and Long Crichel, is a rectory, net yearly value £371, in the gift of Lord Alington, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Frederick Robert Halsey Herbert Noyes D.D. of University College, Durham, late Dean of Argyle of the Isles. Crichel House is a beautiful mansion, standing in a park of 400 acres, in which is an ornamental lake of 50 acres, and is the seat of Lord Alington D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is medium loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,737 acres; rateable value, £1,986; the population in 1881 was 367.

DEWLISH is a village and parish, situated in a hollow on a small brook, a feeder of the river Trent, or Piddle, and bounded on the east by an extensive plantation, 8 miles north-east from Dorchester station, 5 north-west from Bere Regis and 10 south-west from Blandford, in the Southern division of the county, liberty of Dewlish, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Dorchester, rural deanery of Whitchurch Beer Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of All Saints is a very ancient building of stone; it is of mixed architecture, principally Early English, and comprises chancel, with north chancel aisle (erected in 1879), nave, aisles, north porch, and square embattled western tower, completely covered with ivy and containing 3 bells: the church was restored in 1872, when the south aisle was added: in the north aisle is a handsome monument, erected to Field Marshal Sir John Michel G.C.B. by many friends in the army and the country: there are 280 sittings. The register dates from the year 1627. The living is a vicarage, united to that of Milborne St. Andrew, joint gross yearly value £320, in the gift of Lady Michel, and held since 1889 by the Rev. David Colquhoun Smart, of the Union Theological College, New York and Edinburgh University. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1859. In 1812 Thomas Gundy esq. left the sum of £10, the interest to be distributed every Christmas to poor persons. Samuel Adams left the sum of £120, which was deposited in the Dorchester Savings Bank in 1832, the interest to be distributed in bread every week to poor persons. In May, 1859, a great part of the village was destroyed by fire. In 1740 a tesselated pavement and other Roman remains were discovered here. Dewlish House, the seat of Lady Michel is ancient, very pleasantly situated in a park of about 150 acres in extent, studded with fine timber of various sorts: it contains many valuable paintings by old masters, and a fine collection of curiosities, principally Chinese, collected by the late Field Marshal Sir John Michel G.C.B. during his campaigns. The Old Manor House is a very ancient building, and was formerly of considerable dimensions: it had been allowed to fall into decay, but in 1866 was thoroughly restored and enlarged and now forms a good residence. The Earl of Ilchester, who is lord of the manor, and Lady Michel are the principal landowners. The soil is a mixed loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots. The area is 2,475 acres; rateable value, £2,325; the population in 1881 was 457.

DORCHESTER,

INCLUDING FORDINGTON.

DORCHESTER, the county town, is a municipal borough, union and market town and head of a petty sessional division, in the Southern division of the county, rural deanery of Dorchester, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury, 16 miles south-west from Blandford, 15 east from Bridport, 8 north from Weymouth, 18 east-by-south from Beaminster and 120 from London by the old coach road, but by the railway, through Southampton, 138½ miles. The London and South Western and Great Western railways have stations here. This was one of the strongest and most extensive Roman stations, under the name of Durnovaria, and some remains of the Roman walls are yet to be seen, forming part of the garden wall of Mr. Edwin Burnett, in the High West street; it is a regular and well-built town, on the river Frome and Ikening street, and comprises the parishes of St. Peter, Holy Trinity, All Saints' and Fordington. The houses are chiefly modern, built of brick and stone: there are three principal streets, viz. East, West and South. The approaches from the London, Bridport and Weymouth roads are through long avenues of sycamore, elm and chestnut trees; and the south, west and part of the north sides of the town have walks between avenues of fine trees, forming a beautiful promenade, commanding an extensive prospect over the downs and surrounding country. The town is paved, well supplied with water from works situated at Bridport road, the property of the Corporation, and lighted with gas by a company. The borough is governed by a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors, who also act as the Urban Sanitary Authority: the borough has a commission of the peace: it formerly returned two members to Parliament, but by "The Representation of the People Act, 1867," it returned one only, and it was disfranchised by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885."

Dorchester, with Fordington, has five churches: Holy Trinity, in High West street, is the third edifice which has been built on the same site; the first one having been destroyed by fire in 1824, was replaced by a small plain building, which was pulled down in 1875, and the present one, which is of Portland stone, erected at a cost of £5,000: it is in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave and aisles, with turret and one bell: it contains 650 seats. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, with that of Frome Whitfield annexed, joint gross yearly value £450, including 70 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the feoffees of the Free School and Almshouse charities, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Henry Everett M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, surrogate and rural dean of Dorchester. St. Peter's is a large ancient Gothic stone pile in the centre of the town; it consists of a chancel, nave, aisle, south porch with an embattled western tower 90 feet high, with pinnacles, and containing 8 bells: there is a chapel at the north-east in which the organ is placed: the church has 525 seats. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, yearly value £218, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Thomas Kingdon Allen M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. All Saints' Church was rebuilt in 1845; it is a splendid edifice of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles with lancet window, porch and north-west spire with two bells: in the chancel is a superbly stained window with the effigy of the donor, the Bishop of Salisbury: there are also memorial windows to Jane, wife of Col. John Rawden Oldfield, and to A. H. D. Troyte: there is a handsome altar tomb with recumbent figure, surmounted by a carved canopy, to the memory of Matthew Chubb, ob. 1625: it contains 550 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £170, with a good rectory house, in the gift of Simeon's trustees, and held since 1885 by the Rev. William Joshua Adams M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, and D.C.L. of the University of Pennsylvania.

Fordington church, St. George, stands on an eminence: it is an ancient stone structure, containing work of the Norman, Early English and Perpendicular periods, originally built in the form of a cross, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south transept and south porch: it has a high embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells and a clock: over the inner door of the porch (south) is represented the vision of St. George before the battle of Antioch, rudely carved in stone: it contains 600 seats; all are free. The register dates from the year 1705. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £312, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Sidney Boulter M.A. of Keble College, Oxon. The churchyard has been enlarged, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 7 members.

West Fordington is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1847 from the parish of Fordington. Christ Church, half a mile north-west of the town, was erected in 1846: it is a plain but well-proportioned building of Portland stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and transepts, with small turret and one bell: it contains 300 seats, which are all free and unappropriated. The register dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, in the gift of the vicar of Fordington, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Charles Rowland Haydock Hill M.A. of New College, Oxford.

The Catholic church dedicated to Our Lady of the Martyrs is in Princes street, and has 50 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel in South street, built in 1875 in the Italian style, is very handsome, and cost £4,000: the architect was Mr. W. S. Allardyce. Dorford Baptist chapel, Durngate street, dates from 1648. The Congregational chapel, South street, was originally founded in 1700; and the Primitive Methodist chapel, Durngate street, was erected in 1875. The Brethren have a meeting room in South street.

A cemetery of 5 acres situated in the Weymouth road was formed in 1856 at a cost of £4,000; it contains 2 mortuary chapels and is under the control of a Burial Board of 15 members.

The Corn Exchange, erected in 1867, is a commodious building of brick with stone dressings, and is octagonal at the end, the roof being open timbered, covered with slate and glass, supported on lofty semicircular iron and moulded wood principals, the ends of which are domed: a gallery is formed under same: a thorough system of ventilation and heating has been adopted: the cost of the work amounted to about £2,500.

The Market House is of stone and brick, and was built by Samuel Slade, in 1848, from designs by Benjamin Ferrey esq. in the Elizabethan style, and re-arranged in 1867. The market days are Wednesday and Saturday. A Cattle Market was laid out with sheds near the station in 1877. Two auctions are held—the small one on Wednesdays, conducted by Messrs. G. Ensor, and the larger one on Saturdays, alternately by Mr. Thomas Ensor and Mr. Giles Symonds, of Sydling, and Henry Duke and Son.

The fairs are held February 14th, July 6th, August 6th and October 25th, for horses, sheep and cattle: there is also a large fair held at Poundbury, about half a mile from the town, principally for horn ewes, on the last Thursday in September.

The County Hall is a spacious and well-arranged building fronted with Portland stone: the assizes, quarter sessions and county courts are held there.

Her Majesty's Prison, situated in North square, on the site of the ancient castle, was originally erected in 1793. Since the transfer from the county authorities, it has been entirely rebuilt and now contains 161 cells in two wards with rotunda in centre; provision is also made for adding another ward if necessary.

The charities of the town consist of three almshouses:—Napier's Almshouse, in South street, which is liberally endowed, was founded by Sir Gerard Napier for the support of ten poor men, who also receive 4s. 6d. a week, and have a piece of ground which they cultivate; this building is kept in excellent repair: Whetstone's Almshouse, are for four aged men and their wives, with a stipend of 4s. 6d. a week; and Chubb's Almshouse, for nine poor women, who receive 2s. 6d. a week each.

The Dorset County Hospital, situated in Princes street, is in the Tudor style, and was established in 1841; a wing was added in the year 1866; at present it has beds for 50 patients, with a daily average of 46, but possesses ample room for a larger number.

The Dorset County Museum, built from the designs of Messrs. G. C. Crickmay and Son, was opened on New Year's Day, 1884, by the Earl of Shaftesbury. The total cost of the building was £6,500; it was originally founded about 1844; the collection embraces some specimens of fossils of the county, flint implements, and some antiquities.

A statue was unveiled here in Feb. 1889, to the Rev. William Barnes B.D. the Dorsetshire poet, for many years rector of Winterborne Came; this memorial, erected at a cost of £400 provided by subscription, represents him in his accustomed dress with knee breeches and buckled shoes, and has on the pedestal the dates of birth (1801) and death (1886) and some lines from his "Poems in the Dorset dialect."

Dorchester is the depôt of the 39th Regimental District (Dorsetshire Regiment) of the Southern military district, comprising the 1st battalion (39th Foot), 2nd battalion (54th Foot) and 3rd battalion, Dorsetshire Militia.

The Artillery Barracks and military depôt are situated at the western extremity of the town on the Bridport road.

The Soldiers' Home, in North square, was founded in the year 1885, in memory of Major-Gen. Sir Herbert Stewart K.C.B., it is open to all soldiers, who are provided with a coffee bar, reading room, library, bath room, lavatory, recreation and smoking room, bible class and mission room. There is also a public coffee bar intended specially for market people and working men, with stables and accommodation for their horses. Besides this there are bedrooms and coffee and smoking rooms for the general public. Gospel or temperance meetings are held nearly every night in the mission rooms, and are well attended. Mrs. Everett, of Holy Trinity rectory, sister of the late Sir Herbert Stewart, has the management of the house, assisted by other ladies, who reside in the Home, and work among the soldiers. The institution is partly supported by subscriptions.

The neighbourhood abounds with Roman antiquities.

About a quarter of a mile south of the town is Mambury Rings, the Roman amphitheatre, formed of raised mounds of earth, not entirely inclosing the interior space, as there is an opening at the north between their sloping points: the largest external diameter is 343 feet, the shortest 339 feet, so that externally it is nearly a circle: it is supposed that in the thickest part of the sides were the dens for the wild beasts, that they might be let out opposite to each other to meet in the arena: it is computed that 12,000 persons could witness the combats.

About 2 miles south-west of the town, in the parish of Winterborne St. Martin, is MAIDEN CASTLE, an ancient and extensive camp, situated on a hill overlooking the surrounding country: it is encircled by gigantic intrenchments and ramparts: on the top is a table-land of oval shape, a mile in circumference: the whole space, to the foot of the outer intrenchment is 120 acres: it is one of the strongest of these fortified camps in England: this vast work is by most antiquarians considered to be Celtic, but by some it is attributed to the Romans: the latter people certainly occupied it, for relics of undoubtedly Roman buildings have been found there by Mr. Cunnington: in the adjoining district are many barrows.

POUNDBURY, half a mile west of the town, is another encampment, with immense earthworks thrown up, nearly square, the top of which comprises 20 acres of land: several stone coffins and other antiquities have been found at different times. The whole country north and south of the river is traversed by Roman roads, and here are sites of Roman establishments, as Stinsford, Stafford, Burton, Wrackleford, Stratton, Southover, Bradford, Woodsford.

LAWRENCE BARROW is half a mile south-east; Conquer Barrow, 1 mile south-east; Frome Hill, 1½ miles south-east.

The population of the municipal borough in 1881 was 7,567, which includes the officers and inmates of the local establishments viz:—Dorchester prison (St. Peter's parish), 111; County hospital (Holy Trinity parish), 65; Workhouse, 115; Artillery barracks, 152, New depôt barracks, 391 (Fordington parish).

FORDINGTON is an extensive parish in this borough. The land until about 1878 was all open, but is now inclosed with iron fences; the farms have been made larger and in fewer holdings, and a large portion adjoining the town has been sold for building. It has a fine turnip and barley soil, chiefly belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, and the property of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

The workhouse for the Dorchester union is situated here.

A Cemetery for the parish was formed in 1866, comprising an area of about 2 acres, at a cost of £587: it is under the control of a burial board of 7 members.

FROME WHITFIELD, is a hamlet in Fordington parish, and is the property of Maj.-Gen. Henning C.B., J.P.

COKER'S FROME and COLLITON ROW, half a mile north, are hamlets in Holy Trinity parish.

Parish Clerks: West Fordington, David Cross; Trinity, William Gould; All Saints', George Wood; St. Peter's, Jas. R. E. Curtis.

DURWESTON is a parish, 3 miles north-west from Blandford, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Pimperne, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Blandford, rural deanery of Whitchurch Milton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The river Stour is crossed by a bridge of three arches, on the east of the village. The church of St. Nicholas is an edifice of flint and stone in the Transition style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, south aisle and south porch, with a square western embattled tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells, one of which was added in 1887; a stone carving to St. Eloi, the patron saint of blacksmiths, has been discovered, and is now placed over the church entrance; the figures had been mutilated, probably by Cromwell's commissioners: there are 210 sittings. The register dates from the year 1598. The living is a rectory, with that of Bryanston annexed, gross joint yearly value £557, including 97 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Viscount Portman, and held since 1876 by the Rev. the Hon. Percival George Willoughby M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a news-room and library of 500 volumes; it is supplied with the daily and weekly papers; the room was given by the late Viscount Portman, and the Primitive Methodists hold divine service therein. A brewery and aërated water manufactory is carried on by Mr. H. C. Godwin. In this parish is Knighton, the property of Viscount Portman, and now occupied by the Hon. Edward William Berkeley Portman J.P. Viscount Portman is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil varies; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,811 acres; rateable value, £1,802; the population in 1881 was 376.

KNIGHTON tithing was formerly a distinct parish.

Parish Clerk, Charles Adlem.

POST OFFICE.—George Hayward, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive from Blandford at 5.50 a.m. & 2.5 p.m.; dispatched at 11.15 a.m. & 7.30 p.m. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Blandford

EDMONDSHAM is a village and parish, 1 mile south from Cranborne, 2½ miles north-west from Verwood station on the London and South Western railway, 10 north-east from Wimborne, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Cranborne, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, union of Wimborne and Cranborne, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Nicholas is an ancient building of stone in the Norman style, which has been restored and reseated with open benches: it consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled tower at the west end of the north aisle: beneath the eastern end of the north aisle is the family vault of the Husseys, the ancient owners of the parish: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1573. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £318, with 3 acres of glebe and house, in the gift of Hector Monro esq. and the Earl of Shaftesbury conjointly, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Ernest Henry Snepp L.Th. of Hatfield Hall, Durham. A Primitive Methodist chapel was erected in 1848. Hussey's charity of £5 yearly, derived from a charge upon the Edmondsham estate, is for two poor widows; Goldwyer's, £5 yearly, derived from deed of gift made in 1808 by Dr. Goldwyer, is for distribution in bread. The principal landowners are Hector Monro esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and resides at the Manor House, and the Earls of Normanton and Shaftesbury. The soil is heavy; subsoil, chalk and clay. The chief crops are barley, wheat and oats. The area is 1,751 acres; rateable value, £1,480; the population in 1881 was 230.

By a Local Government Order, dated March 25th, 1886, a detached part of Gussage All Saints, known as Painsmoor Copse, was amalgamated with this parish.

Parish Clerk, Stephen Stratton.

EVERSHOT is a parish and railway station, 149¾ miles from London by rail, 7 east-by-north from Beaminster, 12 north-east from Bridport and 13 north-west from Dorchester, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Tollerford, petty sessional division of Dorchester, union of Beaminster, county court district of Bridport, rural deanery of Whitchurch Cerne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The Weymouth branch of the Great Western railway passes near the borders of this parish, and the Evershot station is situate about one mile east from the church, at a place called Holywell, but within the parish of Frome St. Quintin. A fine stream rises here, which is one of the principal tributaries of the river Frome; it is called St. John's spring, and is on the south side of the church. The church of St. Osmond, with the exception of the tower and chancel, was restored in 1853, in the style of the early part of the 15th century, it is built of Forest marble, with dressings of Ham Hill stone: it consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, west and south porches, and a western tower containing 6 bells and a handsome clock; and has a stained east window inserted in memory of the late Mr. Martin and his wife, by their son Arthur Martin esq.: the cost of rebuilding was chiefly defrayed by subscription: the chancel was built afterwards, the cost being defrayed by the late Mrs. William Jennings: there are portions of the old church still remaining: the chancel pillars date from the time of Richard I. and are still standing in the north aisle: the organ was restored in 1889 by subscription: the church has 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1694. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the rectory of Frome St. Quintin, Melbury Bubb rectory being also joined to it in 1885, joint yearly value £500 net, in the gift of the Earl of Ilchester, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Percy Henry Milne M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There were formerly a market and two fairs, which have become obsolete. The Earl of Ilchester P.C. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is chalk and sand; subsoil, chalk and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,409 acres; rateable value, £2,563; the population in 1881 was 500.

GILLINGHAM is a market town of modern appearance and extensive parish and liberty, situated on the river Stour at its junction with Shreen water, at the northern extremity of the county, with a station on the London and South Western railway, 4½ miles north-west from Shaftesbury, 6½ from Wincanton and 105 from London by road, in the Northern division of the county, liberty of Gillingham, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Shaftesbury, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The town is lighted with gas by a company. Petty sessions are held here in conjunction with Shaftesbury. The church of St. Mary the Virgin was, with the exception of the chancel, rebuilt in the year 1839; it is an edifice of stone partly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of Decorated chancel with aisles, nave, aisles with galleries, south porch, lofty embattled western tower terminating in pinnacles and containing a peal of 6 bells and clock: all the windows in the chancel are stained: there is a fine monument with two recumbent figures dated 1625 to a former vicar named Jessop, and his brother, a physician who resided in this place; also a marble monument in the north chancel aisle to the last co-heiress of the Durdoe family, dated 1733: the interior of the church has been lately (1889) refitted with open benches instead of pews, new communion table, seats for clergy, pulpit and lectern: there are about 750 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelries of East and West Stower annexed, joint yearly value £1,529, net £340, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Edward Inman M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford. There are chapels for Baptists, Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists. A Burial Board of 9 members was formed here in the year 1860. The Cemetery, situated near to the church, contains 1A. 1R. 24P. and has a mortuary chapel: another cemetery of upwards of 2A. is now (1889) being laid out. William Read left by his will in the year 1798, 5s. per week to seven aged persons and the amount of £15 to be distributed yearly on St. Thomas' day in bread. In Newbury is a Lecture Hall in which concerts, entertainments and lectures are given: it will seat about 400 persons. Gillingham is the head quarters of the L Company of the 1st Vol. Battalion Dorsetshire Regt. commanded by Captain B. E. Freame, and mustering about 80 men. Here are three flour mills, an extensive brewery belonging to Messrs. Matthews and Co. situated at Wyke, and a large bacon-curing establishment. Bricks, tiles and drain-pipes are made here at the Gillingham Pottery Company's works, at which, also, terra-cotta ware is manufactured; there is also a large dairy depôt here for manufacturing cheese and the supply of milk to London markets under the control of Messrs. Taunton and Co. in addition to which there is another factory owned by the Gillingham Dairy Farmers' Association. The Wilts and Dorset Bank have a branch here, and Stuckey's Banking Company an agency from Wincanton. Here is a weekly paper called "The Weekly Record," published by Messrs. James Ridout and Co.on Wednesday night for Thursday. In the High street is a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association, which has a membership of about 50; and in the churchyard a Church Institute of about 40 members, with a library attached. A market-house and a market have been opened near the station. Fairs are held for cattle on Trinity Monday and for pleasure on the 12th September, both of which are very sparsely attended. The market is held every alternate Monday and on the same day two cattle auctions are conducted by Messrs. Senior and Godwin, and Mr. Nathaniel Benjafield. The calf market has gained a wonderful reputation, being noted as the second largest in the kingdom. The markets generally are very fully attended. A sanguinary battle was fought between Edmund Ironside and Cnut in this neighbourhood, in which Cnut was defeated with great slaughter. The principal landowners are Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster, who is lady of the manor, the Messrs. Bell and George Blandford Matthews esq. Col. Philip W. Matthews J.P. and Lord Carbery. The soil is a mixture; subsoil, clay and stone. The chief crops are wheat and barley and some land in pasture. The area is 7,834A. 3R. 30P.; rateable value, £20,748; the population in 1881 was 3,293.

SANDLEY is 2½ miles west and 5 miles east from Templecombe. This is the head quarters of the Compton Stud Company, who have 50 loose boxes and 120 acres of land laid out in suitable paddocks. There is also a covered ring, specially constructed for the stallions, the walls of which are almost completely covered with prize cards that the stallions have won; there are five or six thoroughbred stallions and noted prize winners located at this stud for the convenience of breeders of both thoroughbred and half-bred stock; a show is annually held in August, bringing together all the stock of the above stallions, and Messrs. Tattersall preside over the sale held in connection with the same; this establishment will be found interesting to lovers of horses, and it is open free to visitors at any time.

MILTON is 1¼ miles north, situate on the Stour. The church of SS. Simon and Jude is a handsome stone structure, in the Early English style, and consists of apsidal chancel, nave and aisles, divided from the nave by three fine arches resting on circular piers with highly carved capitals and lofty western tower with spire and one bell: the chancel is paved with encaustic tiles and there is an organ: the seats are all open and will seat 250 persons: it is a chapel of ease to the parish church of Gillingham: the Rev. Herbert Barclay A.K.C. is curate.

NEWBURY is a street in Gillingham; WYKE is 1 mile west. Wyke Hall is the residence of John Aitken esq.; Thorngrove, of Edward Bridges esq.; Milton Lodge, of Colonel Philip W. Matthews J.P.; Sandley, of Capt. William Henry Fife J.P.; and the Kendalls, of George B. Matthews esq.

HUNTINGFORD is 2 miles north from Gillingham, situated on the Shreen water.

This parish is rich in well-drained pasture grounds, and abounds in dairies, the produce of which is the principal source of wealth to the inhabitants.

Parish Clerk, James Sheppard.

GUSSAGE ALL SAINTS is a village and parish, about 4 miles south-west from Cranborne, 8 north-by-west from Wimborne, 5 west from Verwood station on the Salisbury and Dorset line of the London and South Western railway, in the Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, hundred of Knowlton, union of Wimborne and Cranborne, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of All Saints, a building of flint and stone in the Early Decorated style, consists of chancel and nave, and south porch with square embattled tower, with crocketed pinnacles, which stands on the south side, near the centre of the church, and contains 4 bells: the church has been restored by the landowners, the late vicar, and the parishioners; the chancel at the expense of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: there are 270 sittings. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a discharged vicarage, yearly value, including an augmentation by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, £300, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Archdeacon of Dorset, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Richard George Watson M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, formerly head master of the Grammar school, Halstead, Essex. A Roman road, called the Ackling Dyke, divides this parish from Gussage St. Michael, and close to Harley Wood is the supposed site of the Roman station, "Vindogladia." The Earl of Shaftesbury and Queen's College, Oxford, are lords of the manor and the principal landowners. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The soil is light; subsoil, chalk. The area is 2,479 acres; rateable value, £2,120; the population in 1881 was 415.

GUSSAGE ST. MICHAEL (or MIDDLE GUSSAGE) is a parish, 5 miles south-west from Cranborne, 7 north-east from Blandford, 6½ west from the Verwood station on the Salisbury and Dorset branch of the London and South Western railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Badbury, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, union of Wimborne and Cranborne, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Michael is a very ancient building of stone and flint in the Transition Norman style, consisting of chancel, with north chapel, nave, aisles, north porch and a square embattled tower, comprising an Anglo-Saxon arch: there are 5 bells, two dated 1603: the chancel was rebuilt under the superintendence of the late G. E. Street esq. R.A.; the windows filled with stained glass; a memorial reredos erected in 1870 to the Rev. G. Dewdney, the last rector: there are 150 sittings: in the churchyard is a remarkably fine yew tree. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted for a rent-charge of £404, with 63 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Viscount Portman, and held since 1869 by the Rev. Joseph Heald Ward M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a small chapel for Wesleyans. The principal landowners are the Marquess of Anglesey, the Earl of Shaftesbury, Sir Edward Hulse bart. and George and Henry Good esqrs. who own the manor. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The soil is clay and chalk; subsoil, chalk. The area is 2,459 acres; rateable value, £1,307; the population in 1881 was 259.

MANSWOOD is a hamlet, partly in this parish and partly in More Crichell, 3 miles south, the property of Lord Alington.

SUTTON, formerly a hamlet in this parish was, by a Local Government Order, dated March 25, 1886, amalgamated with Wimborne St. Giles, and at the same date another detached part was added to More Crichell.

HALSTOCK (with HALSTOCK LEIGH) is a parish, liberty and village, on the Somersetshire border, 6 miles north-east from Beaminster, 6 south from Yeovil and 2 miles from Sutton Bingham station on the South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, Beaminster petty sessional division and union, Yeovil county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, rebuilt and enlarged in 1846; it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, north aisle, south porch and square embattled western tower with 5 bells: the stained east window is a memorial to Mary Russell Meredith, the wife of the late vicar, erected in 1874: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1680. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £400, with house, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1843 by the Rev. Robert Fitzgerald Meredith M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. The parish possesses a charity of the annual value of £10 5s. left by John Barrett, a resident of the village, in 1605, and Mrs. Harriet Mercer, in 1867, left £3 yearly to be given to the poor in coals at Christmas. A Roman mosaic pavement was discovered some years since, but in consequence of injury done to it by ignorant persons, the Earl of Ilchester caused the whole of it to be covered in, and it so remains. The trustees of the late H. T. Robinson esq. who are lords of the manor, the Earl of Ilchester P.C. and G. Cox esq. are the principal landowners. The soil varies, but is principally rich loam. The chief crops are wheat, barley, flax, turnips and hay; subsoil, yellow clay. The area is 3,150 acres; rateable value, £2,884; the population in 1881 was 441.

HALSTOCK LEIGH is 1¼ miles west of the village.

HANDLEY (or SIXPENNY HANDLEY) is a village and parish, situated on the border of Wiltshire, 5 miles north-west from Cranborne, 8 north-west from Verwood station, on the Salisbury and Dorset branch of the London and South Western railway, 10 east from Blandford and 13 south-west from Salisbury, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of its name, division of East Shaston, petty sessional division of Wimborne, union of Wimborne and Cranborne, Blandford county court district, rural deanery of Pimperne Blandford portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary, restored and enlarged in 1879 at a cost of £3,000, is an ancient Gothic edifice of stone and flint, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and north transept, south porch and a square western embattled tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells: there are 396 sittings. The register dates from the year 1736. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Gussage St. Andrew annexed, gross joint yearly value £300, including 20 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Thomas Frederick Bigg M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. A good vicarage house, of flint and stone, was erected in 1886 at a cost of £1,400, this amount having been received from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The Wesleyans have a chapel at Woodcutts and the Primitive Methodists have chapels in the village and at Dean and Denland. Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitts-Rivers is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is chalk and loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are barley, wheat and oats. The area is 5,928 acres; rateable value, £5,659; the population in 1881 was 938.

The chapelry of GUSSAGE ST. ANDREW is 2½ miles south-west. Here is an ancient 13th century chapel, in the Early English style, consisting of nave only.

CASHMOOR is a small village in the chapelry of Gussage St. Andrew. The principal landowner is Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers. On Oakley Down are Worbarrow and other barrows, and some pits. On Thorny Down are likewise many barrows. On Woodcutts Common, in 1885, a Romano-British village was excavated by Lieut.-Gen. Fox-Pitt-Rivers.

MINCHINGTON is a tithing near Gussage St. Andrew.

HANFORD, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish, bounded on the west by the river Stour, 2 miles east from Shillingstone station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, and 5 miles south-east from Sturminster Newton, in the Northern division of the county, union and petty sessional division of Sturminster Newton and hundred of Redlane. A chapel here is the burial place of the Seymer family: it dates from the 17th century: it is of stone, and consists of chancel, nave and south porch with a small western turret containing one bell: it is in the Elizabethan style and has stained windows in the east and on the south side. The living is a donative. Hanford house is the seat of Harry Ernest Clay-Ker-Seymer esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner; it is a fine stone building in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1604, situated in extensive grounds, and is occupied by Andrew James Livingstone-Learmonth esq. The soil is light; subsoil, gravel and chalk. The land is chiefly pasture with a little wheat and barley. The area is 460 acres; rateable value, £701; the population in 1881 was 56.

HASELBURY BRYAN is a parish, 12 miles north-west from Blandford, 10 south-east from Sherborne and 5 south-west from Sturminster Newton station, in the Northern division of the county, Pimperne hundred, petty sessional division and union of Sturminster Newton, Blandford county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Cerne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary and St. James is a handsome building of stone: the tower dating from 1397, and the remainder of the church from the early part of the 15th century; the tower has the rich and beautifully worked out detail characteristic of Sherborne Abbey: it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles and square embattled western tower with pinnacles and 5 bells: the roof and part of the chancel have been rebuilt: the whole of the masonry of the church is exceedingly good in its mouldings and details: the south aisle is of two distinct dates; the western portion together with the porch and doorway, were probably erected about the same date as the nave, and there was at that time a chapel in it corresponding to one on the north side: the whole of the south aisle and the porch received at this period a new richly moulded lean-to roof and the wall was finished with an embattled parapet: there is some extremely ancient and interesting stained glass in the windows of the north aisle and chancel: there are shields in the chancel roof bearing the arms of the families of Bryan, Montacute, Bishop Neville, and Lucy, together with the arms of the Percys, Earls of Northumberland: there are 540 sittings. The register dates from the year 1652. The living is a rectory; the tithes have been commuted for £425, with 67 acres of glebe, net £400, and residence, in the gift of the Duke of Northumberland, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Robert Faulding Wheeler M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge, hon. canon of Newcastle. The Primitive Methodists have a chapel here. There is an estate of 21 acres, in the hands of trustees, letting for about £60, the donor of which is unknown, for the relief of poor persons of good character: also an almshouse for eight widows, built by subscription in 1841. The Rev. Richard Burdon M.A. is lord of the manor. The land is divided among small freeholders. The soil is clay and sandy loam; subsoil, limestone. The land is almost exclusively in pasture. The area is 2,559 acres; rateable value, £4,526; the population in 1881 was 714.

HAWKCHURCH is a parish, situated on the borders of Devonshire, and bounded on the north by the river Axe, 4 miles south from Chard Road station, on the London and South Western railway, 4½ east-north-east from Axminster, and 6½ south from Chard, in the Western division of the county, petty sessional division of Bridport, partly in the hundred of Uggiscombe, and partly in the hundred of Cerne, union and county court district of Axminster, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. John the Baptist was rebuilt (except the tower) in 1862, at a cost of about £2,000, raised by subscription and a rate: it is a building of stone in the Norman style: it consists of chancel, which is Early English, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and embattled western tower, containing a peal of 5 bells and a clock: the south aisle contains a stained window in memory of Joseph and Caroline Dawson, and there is a handsome stained east window and some memorial tablets: and it will seat 300 persons. The register dates from the year 1663 and is in a good state of preservation. The living is a rectory, yearly tithe rent-charge £500, with 60 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1878 by the Rev. John Going M.A. Trinity College, Dublin. A Congregational chapel was erected in 1878. There are charities of about £12 yearly for the poor. Lambert's Castle is a lofty hill (on which are traces of ancient intrenchments), partly in this parish and partly in Whitchurch, from which extensive views can be obtained, including parts of the counties of Dorset, Devon, and Somerset and the south coast. William Charlesworth J.P. of Westhaye, is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Viscount Bridport, William Charlesworth esq. J.P. of Westhaye, John Churchill Stuckey Langdon esq. of Parrocks lodge, Chard, and Thomas Barnes esq. J.P. of Tillworth house. The soil is a light clay; subsoil, gravelly with some greensand. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and apples, with some land in pasturage. The area is 3,987 acres; rateable value, £46,216; the population in 1881 of the parish, which consists of two tithings, was 590.

WYLDE COURT, belonging to Lord Bridport, and formerly in the possession of the Moore and Wyndham families, is a building of the Elizabethan era: various heraldic signs are spread about the place, those over the main entrance being supposed to belong to T. Moore, and over a window adjoining the porch is an inscription, on lead, in Latin, with the initials T.M. and dated 1593: local tradition has it that King Charles II. once stopped here for a few hours' rest and refreshment, and a chamber is pointed out as having been occupied by his Majesty: the three principal rooms, viz. the dining, drawing and bedroom are in black oak, the wainscoting reaching from the floor to the ceiling, with rich carving over the fire-places, decorated with the Wyndham and Moore coat of arms: in a chamber next the royal bedroom is a stain upon the floor which cannot be obliterated, and this room has the reputation of being haunted: the house is now occupied as a farm: in a skirmish between the Parliamentary forces and the army of the king, under Prince Maurice, encamped at Lambert's Castle, a Col. Hellyer, the king's commander, was taken prisoner and hanged in a field, which is still known as Hellyer's Close, and according to Dr. Rudge bones and weapons have since been dug up there.

IWERNE COURTNAY or EWERNE COURTNAY (otherwise SHROTON).

THIS is a parish, 5¼ miles north-north-west from Blandford and 7 south from Shaftesbury, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Redlane, petty sessional division of Sturminster, Blandford union and county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sturminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The river Ewerne runs through the parish and gives name to it, the adjunct being derived from the Courtnays, its ancient proprietors. The church of St. Mary is an edifice of stone of debased Perpendicular character, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch and Decorated western tower, surmounted by battlements and pinnacles and containing 5 bells, the last one added in 1887: the church was restored in 1874, and has 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Farringdon annexed, gross yearly value £400, net £310, including 72 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lt.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Henry Augustus Truell B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel. Here is a brewery; also malting and corn mill. A fair is held here on the 25th and 26th September for horses, cattle and cheese. Ranston, a quarter mile south-east from the church, is the seat of the Rev. Canon Sir Talbot Hastings Bendall Baker bart. M.A. The principal landowners are Lieut.-Gen. A. H. Lane Fox-Pitt-Rivers, who is lord of the manor, and the Rev. Canon Sir Talbot Hastings Bendall Baker bart. M.A. of Ranston. The soil is light; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are cereal. The area is 1,953A. 2R. 27P.; rateable value, £2,959; the population in 1881 was 623.

HAMBLEDON HILL, on top of which is a British encampment, is close to the village on the west side.

Parish Clerk, George Bath.

Farringdon is a chapelry, 2 miles north-west: there is a small chapel, possessing no architectural features; service is held once a week; it contains a remarkable old font, and the east end has a stained memorial window, erected by Mrs. Cox to her husband, who died 1882.

Parish Clerk of Farringdon, George Painter.

POST OFFICE.—George Bath, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive from Blandford at 6.45 a.m. & 3.30 p.m.; dispatched at 10.15 a.m. & 6.55 p.m. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Iwerne Minster, 1¼ miles distant. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid

IWERNE (or EWERNE) MINSTER is a parish and pretty and modern village, on the high road from Shaftesbury to Blandford and Poole, 6 miles north from Blandford and 6 south from Shaftesbury, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Sixpenny Handley, petty sessional division of West Shaston, Shaftesbury union and county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sturminster Newton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The river Iwerne rises in the parish. The church of St. Mary is a handsome cruciform building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch and a western embattled tower, with spire and 5 bells with chimes: it was restored in 1871: the east window is stained in memory of W. L. Russell, d. 1866, and T. B. Bower, d. 1868: in the north aisle is a handsome stained window, representing Faith, Hope and Charity, to Beatrice Ernestine Channell, d. 1871: the one in the north aisle is also stained, with a Latin inscription, in memory of the present vicar's father, who died 1875: the pulpit is of carved oak: the font is supposed to date from the Norman period: the church has sittings for 240 persons; the churchyard has been enlarged by a piece of land given by the present Lord Wolverton, a portion of which is reserved for the family burying-ground; in the centre of this is a magnificent cross of Hoptonwood (Derbyshire) stone, with base of the same material, reaching a height of 18 feet, the cross itself being a monolith of 11 feet 9 inches. The register dates from the year 1742, previous records having been destroyed in Blandford great fire, and there is a list of vicars from 1320 to the present date. The living is a discharged vicarage, gross yearly value £360, including 61 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1860 by the Rev. John Acton M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. A chapel has been added on south of chancel, in memory of the second Lord Wolverton, who died Nov. 6, 1887: it will contain a recumbent figure of his lordship. Here is a Baptist chapel, which was enlarged in 1860, and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel, built in 1879. A number of old cottages were pulled down and new brick ones erected at the expense of the second Lord Wolverton, which much improves the appearance of the village and increases the comfort of the poor. Lime and brick earth are dug here. On the down is a barrow. Iwerne Minster House is a handsome commodious mansion, built in 1880 in the Perpendicular Gothic style, and is pleasantly situated in a park of 300 acres, including grounds; it is the seat of Lord Wolverton, who is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is light; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are cereal. The area is 2,951A. OR. 15P.; rateable value, £5,017; the population in 1881 was 667.

PRESTON is a quarter of a mile south, at which is situated the stud farm, famous for the rearing of thoroughbred horses, notably the "Bard;" the farm is now let to L. T. Humby esq.

Parish Clerk, Absalom Spicer.

KIMMERIDGE is a parish, in the isle of Purbeck, about 4 miles south-west-by-west from Corfe Castle railway station and 7 south from Wareham; it is situated on Kimmeridge bay; in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Hasilor, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church (not dedicated) is a small plain structure of stone upwards of 700 years old, partly in the Norman style, partly Decorated, and consists of chancel, nave and south porch: at the summit of the western gable, which is strengthened by a large central buttress, is a small bell-cot containing one bell: the church was the burial place of the Clavells, of Smedmore, to whom there are a number of inscriptions: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1694. The living is a donative, net yearly value £100, with residence, in the gift of Col. George Pleydell Mansel D.L., J.P. and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Withers Valentine B.A. of Wadham College, Oxford: the stipend is voluntarily augmented and the residence supplied by the patron. In the cliffs of this and the neighbouring parishes is found a bituminous shale, which burns with a strong light, and emits a sulphurous smell; pieces of it, of a circular form called by the country people "coal money," have been found here; they vary in size and thickness, and have apparently been flint cut; they seem to be of great antiquity. Smedmore, the residence of Col. George Pleydell Mansel D.L., J.P. was built by Sir William Clavell, and greatly enlarged by George Clavell esq. the last male representative of this branch of the family; the manor had been in the possession of the Clavell family (from whom the present owner, Col. George Pleydell Mansel, is descended) from the reign of Edward IV.; he is also sole landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk, and there is good pasture land. The parish comprises 1,570 acres; rateable value, £1,233; the population in 1881 was 170.

KINGSTON, an ecclesiastical parish, formerly a chapelry, separated in 1877 from the mother parish of Corfe Castle, 6½ miles south-south-east from Wareham, 1½ south from Corfe Castle (the nearest railway station), 5 west from Swanage, and 131½ from London, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Rowbarrow, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, Wareham and Purbeck union, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The village, which has been almost entirely rebuilt during the last few years, is pleasantly situated on an eminence, commanding a fine view of the old village and ruins of Corfe Castle. The church of St. James was erected during the years 1874 to 1880, at the sole cost of the Earl of Eldon, under the direction and designs of the late G. E. Street esq. R.A. of London: it is a handsome cruciform stone structure in the Early English style, symmetrical in design, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, aisles, and transepts, with a lofty tower rising from the intersection, containing a splendid peal of 8 bells: the chancel roof is of stone and groined, and on the east wall are three medallions on diaper ground, standing out in bold relief; on the south side is a treble sedile, also a piscina of Purbeck marble: the screen, of Purbeck marble, is surmounted by elaborate open wrought iron work: the communion table is of stained oak on white marble base, the floor being paved with encaustic tiles and black and white marble: the nave is supported by enriched arches, on clustered Purbeck marble columns and bases, with elegantly carved stone capitals: a handsome font is placed at the west end under one of these arches, with a carved stone bowl and supported on Purbeck marble columns, in unison with those supporting the arches: the roofs of nave and aisles are of oak, panelled: the church is seated with chairs instead of benches and paved with encaustic and polished stone tiles of different colours and designs: the reading desk and choir stalls are of oak: the pulpit is of elaborately wrought iron work mounted upon a pedestal of Purbeck stone: there is a three-manual organ placed in the north transept: every window (45 in all) is stained, those in the clerestory are of a geometrical design, the most attractive being the large rose window in the west end, 12 feet in diameter, and most beautiful in design and workmanship: there are two vestries, one for clergy, the other for choir: a narthex protects the west entrance from the prevailing winds: the church standing on an eminence is a conspicuous object for a great distance, the stone of which it is erected being of very bright hue: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1877. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value from Ecclesiastical Commissioners, £350, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Eldon, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Spencer Compton Spencer-Smith M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford: a vicarage house has been erected near the church. The old or parish church of St. James' is still standing and in good preservation: it is a cruciform structure in the Perpendicular style, built of stone with square embattled north-western tower with pinnacles, one bell, and two stained windows: it is used for weddings and burials: the new church is not consecrated, and is the property of Lord Eldon. Here is a small chapel for Wesleyans. There is a handsome school house with residence for the master, erected in 1856, in memory of the late Earl and Countess of Eldon, by their children. Encombe, the seat of the Earl of Eldon, is about a mile and a half south-west of the village, and situated in a very deep vale that opens to the British Channel on the south. "Here," says Hutchins, "stood the ancient seat of the Cullifords, which, being much decayed, was entirely pulled down about 1736, by Mr. John Pitt, who on the same spot erected an elegant mansion of Purbeck stone, laid out the grounds with great taste, and made extensive plantations: it has a noble view of the English Channel, and is esteemed one of the most beautiful situations in this part of the kingdom." Encombe was much improved by the late Earl of Eldon, who, at a great cost, tunnelled the eastern hill and brought from a spring a more copious supply for the piece of water in front of the mansion: great additions and improvements have been made by the present Earl: this estate from its fertility, has been distinguished by the name of the "Golden Bowl:" an obelisk in the ground was erected by the Lord Chancellor Eldon, to his brother the late Lord Stowell: a long drive through plantations connects the house with the high road at Kingston, where is a tasteful lodge and entrance gates. The Earl of Eldon is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, marl; a great portion of the land is used for grazing; there is a little corn and root crops grown; the area is 2,804A. 3R. 2P.; rateable value included with Corfe Castle; the population in 1881 was 457.

The river Cale flows through the southern portion of the parish. The church of All Saints was restored in 1862 by the Rev. William Dugdale: it is built of stone and is cruciform, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and square embattled western tower with 4 bells and clock: the two transepts have originally been side chapels: the chancel arch is Norman, and possibly a remnant of the original building: there is a very good organ: the eastern window was presented by a former rector, the Rev. W. L. Smith: there are five stained windows; the west window has been inserted by Miss Dugdale, in memory of her father: the seats are all free, and will hold 400 people. The register dates from the year 1660. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £690, net £590, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. John Smith, incumbent of Motcombe, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Thomas Hyne Edwards M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The rectorial glebe is partly let in allotments for the benefit of the poor of the parish. Here is a chapel for Primitive Methodists. Glove making and brick making are carried on here. J. K. D. Wingfield-Digby esq. J.P. is the principal landowner. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, clay and stone. The land is principally in pasture. The area is 1,891 acres; rateable value, £3,801; the population in 1881 was 465.

KINSON is a tithing and ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1865 out of Great Canford parish, situated on the river Stour, adjoining Bournemouth, in Hampshire, of which it forms a suburb, 5 miles south-east from Wimborne station and 6 north-east from Poole, in the Eastern division of the county, Cogdean hundred, Poole union and county court district, petty sessional division of Wimborne, rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Andrew is a Norman building of stone; it consists of chancel, nave and low square tower containing 1 bell: the chancel was restored in 1875 by Col. Fryer in memory of his father: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1728. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, in the gift of Lord Wimborne, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Lewen Burton Weldon D.D. of Trinity College, Dublin, who is also chaplain of St. Mark's, Talbot village. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The charities are £35 17s. yearly, derived from money in the funds, left in 1860 by Mrs. Way and in 1870 by Miss Talbot and in 1875 by Miss Williams. At Newtown is a rural sanitary hospital, opened in 1889, with beds for 7 patients. Drain pipes and bricks are largely made here. The principal landowners are Lord Wimborne D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, Walter R. Bankes esq. and J. H. Austen esq. HEATHERLANDS is an ecclesiastical parish formed January 22, 1886; the church of St. John the Evangelist at KINSON HEATH, erected in 1881, is a plain brick building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave: there are about 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1881. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £100, net £85, in the gift of Lord Wimborne, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Christopher Harker Bousfield M.A. Queen's College, Oxford.

The soil of the parish is light loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. Chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 4,715 acres; rateable value, £18,470; the population in 1881 was 3,524.

TALBOT VILLAGE is in this parish. The church of St. Mark was built by the late Miss Georgina Charlotte Talbot as a chapel of ease to the parish church and endowed with £93 yearly: it was consecrated in the year 1870 and is a stone building, consisting of nave, east and west aisles and square tower with 8 bells, a clock and chimes; the living is annexed to the parish of Kinson. Rev. James Francis Summers B.A. Trinity College, Dublin, is curate in charge. There are at Talbot Village seven almshouses for aged persons, also built by the late Miss G. C. Talbot, the occupants of which receive 6s. per week and coals; also a school, endowed by her sister, Miss M. A. Talbot.

CUDNELL is half-a-mile west; the village of ENSBURY 1 mile east. BRANKSOME PARK is a district adjoining Bournemouth.

LONGFLEET, a tithing, is now an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1837 out of Great Canford, immediately adjoining and forming part of the borough and county of the town of Poole, the buildings in the parish of St. Paul, Poole, being continuous with those in this parish, in the Eastern division of the county, Cogdean hundred, Poole petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a stone structure, erected in 1833, in the Early English style; it has chancel, nave, south porch and western tower, with spire, together 108 feet in height, bell-cot containing one bell: an acre of land, presented by Lord Wimborne, was added to the churchyard in 1886: there are 750 sittings. The register dates from the year 1833. The living is a perpetual curacy, gross yearly value £200, net £180, with residence and an acre of land in the adjoining parish of Parkstone, in the gift of Lord Wimborne, and held since 1885 by the Rev. William Okes Parish M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge. Garland's charity of £15 10s. yearly, founded in 1833, is for coal to be given to the poor at Christmas; there is also the interest of £400, left by Mr. G. Rogers, and £100 by Miss Sarah Adey. Lord Wimborne is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The area is 1,289 acres; rateable value, £8,584; the population in 1881 was 2,406, including 138 officers and inmates of the Poole workhouse.

EAST LULWORTH is a parish, 3 miles south-east from Wool railway station and 6 miles south-west from Wareham, situated on the shore of the English channel, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Winfrith, union of Wareham and Purbeck, county court district and petty sessional division of Wareham, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an ancient square western embattled tower containing 3 bells, the earliest of which dates from 1587: the tower is a very handsome structure in the Late Perpendicular style: the chancel and nave were rebuilt in 1864; it contains several escutcheons of the Weld family, and a tablet to William Baring, fourth son of Sir Francis Baring, who was drowned here in 1820: there are 188 sittings. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £177, with residence, in the gift of R. J. Weld esq. and held since 1889 by the Rev. Albert Roberts B.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. St. Mary's Catholic chapel is a circular building of stone in the Italian style, built in 1792 by Thomas Weld esq. by workmen specially brought from Rome: the interior is most elegant, the altar being a beautiful specimen of carved marble, and on either side of the altar are two very fine oil paintings: there are also spacious Catholic schools, erected by the late E. J. Weld esq. and near the village is a Catholic cemetery, formed in 1860. Many relics of antiquity have been found within this parish in barrows, supposed to be of British origin; and on the top of a perpendicular cliff of 700 feet are the ramparts of a strong hill fort, commonly called RING'S HILL or FLOWER'S BARROW. Lulworth Castle, the seat of Reginald Joseph Weld esq. is an imposing and massive stone structure, with a noble circular tower at each corner, and is situated in a beautifully wooded park, surrounded by a wall, 4 miles in circumference; it was built from the ruins of Mount Poynings and Bindon Abbey by Thomas, Viscount Bindon; foundations laid 1588, and finished about the year 1609, but little of the inside work was finished until it became by purchase the property of the Weld family: it has been honoured by the presence of James I. Charles II. James II. when Duke of York, George III. and George IV. when Prince of Wales, and has been the residence of H.R.H. the Duke of Gloucester, the French King Charles X. and the late Sir Robert Peel bart. Reginald Joseph Weld esq. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The area, including West Lulworth, is 4,339 acres of land and 25 of water; rateable value of East Lulworth, £1,788; the population in 1881 was 364.

Parish Clerk, William Wilson.

WEST LULWORTH is a parish and village, situate on the shore of the English Channel, on the margin of Lulworth cove, and surrounded on the land side by hills which shelter it from the north and east winds, 9 miles south-west from Wareham and about 6 south from Wool station on the South Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, liberty of Bindon, locally within the hundred of Winfrith, petty sessional division of Wareham, union of Wareham and Purbeck, county court district of Wareham, Dorchester rural deanery Purbeck portion, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese; it is provided with pure water from the chalk. The church of the Holy Trinity was rebuilt in 1870, from the designs of the late J. Hicks esq.: it is a building of Purbeck stone, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle and transept: the base of the embattled tower forms a porch and principal entrance: it stands near the west end of the church on the south side: the two remaining bells have recently (1889) been cast into one; the other one is said to have been sold to the parish of East Lulworth many years ago: the tower was enlarged in 1888 at a cost of £600, raised by public subscriptions: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the 16th century. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value about £120, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1887 by the Rev. William Percy Schuster M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. Here is a Congregational chapel, built in 1835. LULWORTH COVE, in this parish, is a great natural curiosity: it communicates with the sea through a deep channel, and is surrounded by steep and lofty cliffs. The "Arched Rock," or "Durdle door," about one mile from the cove, has an opening of nearly 40 feet, through which a view of the sea is obtained. Here is a coastguard station, with a chief officer and eight men. The land is chiefly the property of Reginald Joseph Weld esq. of Lulworth Castle, East Lulworth, who is lord of the manor. The soil varies; subsoil, chiefly Bagshot sand: and the chief crops are wheat, oats and barley, and pasture land. For area see East Lulworth; rateable value, £2,044; the population in 1881 was 339.

ST. ANDREW'S is half a mile north-east; BURNGATE, one mile north-east; BINDON HILL, half a mile south; BELHUISH 2 miles north. Here are many barrows.

Parish Clerk, Robert Clarke.

LYDLINCH is a parish and village, very agreeably situated on the river Lyd or Lyddon, a feeder of the Stour, 11 miles west from Blandford, 11 south-west from Shaftesbury, 9 south-east from Sherborne, and 3 west from Sturminster Newton station, in the Northern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division and union of Sturminster Newton, Shaftesbury county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, Stalbridge portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Under the operation of the Divided Parishes Act the parish of Stock Gaylard has been added to this parish for civil purposes only. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a small stone structure, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of two bays, north aisle, south porch and square embattled western tower, with pinnacles, which contains a peal of 5 bells and a clock: there are 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, yearly value £440, with 60 acres of glebe land and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Yeatman, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Francis George Henley M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Attached to the church are charities of the annual value of £92, derived from land left in 1811 and called the Romaine and Bissell charity, for apprenticing poor children, distribution among the poor and for repairs of the church. The brick and tile works of Robert English are here. Mrs. Yeatman is lady of the manor and the chief landowner. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 2,446 acres; rateable value, £4,996, which includes that of Stock Gaylard; the population in 1881 was 354.

LYME REGIS.

LYME REGIS is a town on the sea-coast, municipal borough, market town and parish, situated 143 miles from London by road and 150 by rail, 5½ south-east from Axminster (its nearest railway station), 24 west from Dorchester, 9 west from Bridport, 16 from Sidmouth, 16 from Crewkerne, 16 from Honiton and 2 from Charmouth; it is in the Western division of the county, liberty of Loaders and Bothenhampton, petty sessional division of Bridport, Axminster union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury.

This place derives its name from the river Lym, on which it is situated. Edward I. gave to it the privileges of a borough, and assigned it as part of the dower of his sister, Margaret Queen of Scotland: it furnished Edward III. with four ships and 62 men for the siege of Calais; but afterwards became impoverished: in Camden's time it was little better than a fishing town. The siege of this place in the Civil War was a very remarkable one, and described particularly by Clarendon. Here landed the Duke of Monmouth in the year 1685. Captain Thomas Coram, the founder of the Foundling Hospital, London, was born here and was buried in the hospital in 1750. The town is situated at that extremity of the county which borders on Devonshire, between two rocky hills, and is divided by the river Lym, which rises about 2 miles northward, and has all the conveniences of a harbour by means of an artificial breakwater called the Cobb. The shore is bold and rugged, the surrounding scenery remarkably fine, commanding an extensive sea view, with richly diversified and picturesque landscapes. This district is well known to geologists, as presenting one of the grandest and most extensive sections of the blue lias in the world. Immense quantities of blue lias limestone are annually exported to all parts of England and the continent, for the purpose of making hydraulic lime and cement: there is now a cement manufactory under the cliffs to the west of the Cobb; some of the upper beds of blue lias are used for making Roman and Portland cement. Fossil remains abound in the cliffs and particularly those of the Ichthyosaurus, Plesiosaurus, Pliosaurus and Pterodactylus amongst the vertebrated forms of life; those of the ammonite and belemnite among the mollusca, and those of the pentacrinite and the apiocrinite amongst the crinoids: four varieties of the Ichthyosaurus are —communis, platyodon, tenuirostris and intermedius; some new specimens have been discovered of late years; numerous fine specimens discovered by the late Thomas Hawkins esq. F.G.S. (whose collection is supposed to be the finest extant), Mary Anning, H. Marder M.R.C.S. Mr. J. W. Marder, the late Mr. J. Harrison and other collectors, may be seen in the British Museum. The Plesiosaurus, of which dolichodeirus is the most common species, is more rare than the Ichthyosaurus: the first specimen discovered and developed by Mary Anning, and purchased by the Duke of Buckingham, is now in the British Museum. There are other varieties, as macrocephalus arcuatus and Hawkinsii, named by Sir Richard Owen after the above-named Thomas Hawkins esq. The ammonites and belemnites are very numerous and beautiful, besides about seventy or eighty varieties of extinct fish.

The scenery of the coast to the eastward is most beautiful, and to the west of a very picturesque character, caused in a great measure by the landslips which have occurred on various occasions, particularly one at Christmas, 1839, about 6 miles from the town, on the Sidmouth road.

The town has become within the last century a favorite watering-place, and is much resorted to by families: being well sheltered from the northerly and easterly winds, is a great inducement for invalids to make it their residence. The rate of morality from consumption and pulmonary diseases is as low as that of any town in the kingdom: it is a sanatorium in general for sickly children, and one of the best residences on the coast for nervous diseases, and patients suffering from its long train of symptoms. At present there is not a railway station in the town; the London and South Western Railway Company's line to Exeter has a station at Axminster, to which omnibuses run, and there is also omnibus communication with Bridport station of the South Western.

The harbour, which affords the only safe shelter for vessels between the Portland roads and the Start point, below Dartmouth in Devonshire, is about a quarter of a mile west-south-west from the town, and existed as early as the time of Edward III. The breakwater, called the Cobb, which forms the harbour, was originally composed of large pieces of rock, rudely piled on each other, but is now a work of regular masonry of Portland stone, consisting of two artificial piers projecting one on each side, and inclosing a basin; it is 680 feet in length, 12 feet in breadth at the foundation, and 16 feet in height: it was partly rebuilt by Government, at a sum lower than the estimate, under the superintendence of Captain Fanshawe, as recorded in a tablet on the Cobb, in 1825, at an expense of £17,337 0s. 9¼d. The name is derived from the Cobb stone with which it was originally constructed: various Acts have been passed for its maintenance; by a charter of Charles II. £100 yearly out of its customs were allowed for its repair, which grant is now obsolete: the harbour dues are employed by the Town Council in executing the necessary repairs. On January 1st, 1882, Lyme Regis was added to the port of Exeter for Custom house purposes. The coastguard station is here under an inspecting commander and chief officer in command. A house for the lifeboat is on the beach, west of the Cobb.

By the "Municipal Corporation Act" of 1836, the town is governed by a mayor, four aldermen and twelve councillors, and under the "Local Government Act" of 1889 the whole management of the town is vested in the Corporation; the borough formerly sent one member to Parliament, but was disfranchised by the "Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1868." The borough has a commission of the peace. Sessions are held every Wednesday at 11 o'clock at the Town Hall, before the mayor and borough magistrates: and there is a court of hustings for harbour business every Monday.

The streets are lighted with gas and well paved; and many of the shops and other buildings are built of the blue lias limestone and roofed with slate. The town is supplied with pure water, derived from springs in the Uplyme road.

The church of St. Michael the Archangel is an ancient edifice of stone, situated near the edge of some precipitous lias cliffs: the architecture is of the late Tudor period, but it contains a good Norman arch at the western entrance: it consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, with embattled western square tower, containing clock and peal of 6 bells: it contains a curiously carved old oak pulpit, presented by one of the merchant adventurers, a number of mural monuments, several brasses, some fine stained windows and a good toned organ: in 1885 the church was entirely re-seated, the floor laid with concrete and a vestry added, by subscription, at a cost of £2,500: there are sittings for 800, all free and unappropriated. The parish register dates from the year 1543, but breaks off for a few years from 1572: the following facts appear from the entries—the church was erected in 711, and a legacy was given to rebuild part of it in 1503, and that it belonged to Sarum in 1284: an earthquake took place here in 1688, and another in 1799: the 31st of May, 1759, the sea flowed three times in an hour, it also did the same in 1797: in 1653 a proclamation of marriage was made in the market place, where the Assemby Rooms now stand, by Christopher Knight, mayor and justice of the peace: a large fire took place in the year 1844, burning the Custom House, the Cups hotel, and the ancient inn the George, where the Duke of Monmouth quartered when he landed. The living is a vicarage, present net yearly value about £200, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Charles Myers M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford, and surrogate. The vicarage house has been sold, and the money is held by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners until a suitable site for a new building can be secured.

Poulett House chapel, in Pound street, erected by the Rev. Edward Peek M.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, is intended for early celebrations of the Holy Communion and daily services: it is in the style of the English Renaissance, and consists of chancel, nave and south porch, vestry and bell cot: in the gable next the road it has two large windows, and a deeply recessed doorway in the porch, and the effective bell-cot on the roof close by: a small vestry adjoins the porch; internally the effect is very striking: about one-third of the floor space forms a quasi chancel and sanctuary, separated from the nave by a lofty rood screen of five bays; at the end, upon a foot-pace, raised five steps, is the communion table, a beautiful piece of work in two kinds of walnut wood, with an alabaster slab and a large and elaborate Venetian mosaic, "Our Lord in Majesty;" in the nave, low open benches furnish seats for about 80 persons; a small sweet-toned organ occupies a recess on one side.

The Catholic chapel of SS. Michael and George, erected in 1837, situated in the Uplyme road, consists of chancel, nave, north porch and Lady chapel, and contains some stained windows; the high altar, sanctuary and Lady chapel are adorned with carving, gold and colours; in the nave are a series of sculptures; the Rev. Leo. M. Croutelle is the priest.

There is a spacious Congregational chapel, founded in 1662, with 300 sittings; one for the Baptists, founded in 1655, seating 350 persons; one for the Wesleyan Methodists, built in 1839, with 250 sittings, and The Brethren have a hall above the Assembly Rooms.

The Cemetery, consisting of three acres, a short distance from the town on the Charmouth road, was formed in 1856 at a cost of about £2,000: it contains two mortuary chapels, and a hall for the reception of bodies of those who may have died of infectious diseases, and it is under the control of a committee of the Corporation acting as a Burial Board.

The Assembly Subscription Rooms have been enlarged at a cost of £700, and contains a large ball or concert room, billiard room, and reading room facing the sea, with suitable offices: the hall will hold 400 persons.

There are two small charities for the poor, amounting to about £10 yearly, left by Capt. James and Mr. Burridge; and a larger one, arising from an amalgamation of several small ones, the money being invested in land at Thorncombe, now producing £35 yearly, half of which is given to widows and families of poor sailors, and the other half is for apprenticing poor boys of the town.

On the Charmouth road are four almshouses, devised by John Tudbold in 1548, for the poor of the town, the inmates (who get no money allowance) to be selected by the Corporation; they were rebuilt by subscription in 1887.

A Masonic lodge, named the Montague (No. 665), hold their meetings in the Masonic Hall at the Royal Lion hotel. The Independent Order of Oddfellows (3,976), Bridport district, have their place of meeting at the vestry.

The Guildhall was entirely rebuilt of stone and a tower added in 1887, the fabric at the cost of the town, whilst the cost of the interior fittings was defrayed by the Rev. E. Peek: on the first floor is a large and handsomely fitted room, for the meetings of the Corporation, and below is a covered space for market stalls.

The market days are Tuesday and Friday for butcher's meat, poultry and vegetables. The fairs are held on the first Tuesday after Candlemas and Michaelmas.

Here is a stove and range manufactory.

The principal hotels are the "Cups" and the "Royal Lion."

A regatta was held formerly, but is now discontinued and the money applied to maintaining a town band.

The head quatters of the No. 3 Battery of the 2nd Volunteer (Dorset) Brigade, Southern Division Royal Artillery, are in Coombe street.

A Cottage Hospital and Dispensary was established in 1875 and contains 8 beds: during 1888 there were 180 out, and 46 in-patients treated here.

Henry Cornish Henley esq. of Leigh House, Chard, is lord of the manor, and principal landowner. The area is 1,394 acres of land and 110 of water; rateable value, £8,998; the population of the borough in 1881 was 2,047, and of the parish, 2,290.

COBB is a hamlet.

Parish Clerk, John Harding, Bridge street.

MELBURY BUBB (with the chapelry of WOOLCOOMBE) is a small village and parish, about 13 miles north-north-west from Dorchester, 6 north-west from Cerne, 8 south-east from Yeovil, and 2 north from Evershot station on the Weymouth branch of the Great Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Yetminster, union and petty sessional division of Cerne, county court district of Yeovil, rural deanery of Whitchurch Cerne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a small Gothic structure of stone, consisting of chanel, nave, north porch, with embattled western tower, containing 4 bells, and was rebuilt in 1854, with the exception of the tower: some beautiful glass restoration was carried out in the church in 1887: the pre-Reformation glass is of the time of Edward IV.: the Earl of Ilchester, the patron, has restored all that remains of two north windows in the nave; the lower one contains the parable of the Ten Virgins: in the centre light is a beautiful head of Our Lord in Majesty, with Hands displaying His wounds, from which flow streams of blood towards the subjects on the left and right, which represented the seven sacraments of the Catholic Church, of which only one subject (Holy Orders) remains, replaced in the east panel: the west window was most beautifully restored, in 1888, by Dr. Buckler, in memory of his kinsmen, descended collaterally from the first rector of this parish; the work was carried out with great skill, the new and old glass being most admirably blended; in the upper portion of the window, above the central mullion, appear representations of the figures of the Holy Trinity, and on the left and right hand the Twelve Apostles and emblems of the Evangelists: the east window was also restored in 1888 by Mr. Buckler, in memory of his ancestors, who lie buried in the churchyard; the principal upper lights contain some of the arms of the Buckler family and the figures of the four beasts: a handsome stained window was inserted in 1888, on the south side of the sanctuary, to the memory of the late Rev. Barfoot Saunt, by his widow: a beautiful reredos of Caen stone was erected in 1888: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1750. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £200, with residence and 70 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Earl of Ilchester, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Percy Henry Milne M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at Evershot. This living was added to the rectory of Frome St. Quintin, with the chapelry of Evershot, in 1885. The Earl of Ilchester P.C. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is chalk; subsoil, sand. The greater part of the land is in pasture. The area is 1,227 acres; rateable value, £2,251; the population in 1881 was 147.

MELBURY SAMPFORD (or UPPER MELBURY) is a parish and village, 1 mile north-west from the Evershot station at Holywell on the Weymouth branch of the Great Western railway, and 7 miles south from Yeovil, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Tollerford, Sherborne petty sessional division, Beaminster union, Yeovil county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sherborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient cruciform structure of stone, in the Decorated English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and transepts, with a square embattled western tower, and was thoroughly restored in 1878: the windows are of ancient stained glass: it contains many tombs of the Ilchester family: there are [ ] sittings. The register dates from 1550. The living is a rectory, yearly value £57, united with Melbury Osmond in 1750 and with Stockton 1888, joint gross yearly value £360, in the gift of the Earl of Ilchester, and held since 1855 by the Rev. Robert Bradley Roe M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, hon. chaplain to the Earl of Ilchester. The Earl of Ilchester P.C., J.P. lord lieutenant of the county, is principal landowner and lord of the manor; his seat, Melbury House, is a stone mansion, some parts of which are Gothic and some Elizabethan; it was enlarged in 1692 by Thomas Watson esq. and has since undergone several alterations and has been again enlarged by the present owner: it stands in a park of 600 acres, which is well stocked with deer: there is one large lake and three small ones, all well stocked with trout. The soil is Oxford clay; subsoil, gravel. The greater part of the land is in pasture. The area is 1,024 acres; rateable value, £1,313; the population in 1881 was 70.

MELCOMBE BINGHAM (or MELCOMBE HORSEY) constitutes a parish, 10 miles north-east from Dorchester, 8 east from Cerne, and 9 south-west from Blandford, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Whiteway, petty sessional division of Cerne, Cerne union, Dorchester county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Melcombe Bingham, otherwise Bingham's Melcombe, is the eastern portion, in which the church and Bingham House are situate. Melcombe Horsey is the western portion, and covers the greatest area, and in which Melcombe Horsey House is situate, nearly two miles from the church; originally the whole parish was known by the latter title. The church of St. Andrew is a small Gothic structure, situate near the ancient mansion of the Binghams: it consists of chancel, nave, two chantries or transepts, the south one being appropriated to the possessors of Melcombe Horsey, and that on the north to the family of Bingham, south porch, and a western embattled tower containing 2 bells: here are some interesting fragments of ancient glass and monuments to the above families: there are 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1690. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £290, with residence, in the gift of Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers D.C.L., F.R.S. and held since 1882 by the Rev. Joseph Hall B.A. of London University. Bingham's Melcombe House, the property of the Bingham family, is a structure somewhat earlier than the reign of Elizabeth: there is a gate-house leading to a court yard, and the buildings are generally in their original state: an ancient bowling green and fish ponds are contiguous to the house: it is at present occupied by Edward John Eyre esq. Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is a varied loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, roots, and some land in pasture. The area is 2,151 acres; rateable value, £1,801; the population in 1881 was 183.

MELPLASH is an ecclesiastical parish, re-formed in 1846 out of the parishes of Poorstock and Netherbury (to which it was attached on the dissolution of the former church in the last century), situated 3 miles south from Beaminster and 3 north from Bridport railway station, in the Western division of the county, Beaminster hundred and union, Bridport petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Christ Church is a cruciform building of stone, in the Early Norman style, erected and partly endowed in 1846 by James Bandinel esq. of London: it consists of an apse chancel, nave, north and south transepts, south porch, and massive square central tower, containing 2 bells: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, net £285, with residence, in the patronage of the present vicar, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Samuel Jenkins Johnson M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, F.R.Ast. soc. The vicarage house is at Camesworth, half a mile south-west of the church. The mansion house, called Melplash Court, once a manor, is now a farmhouse belonging to the trustees of the late H. Compton esq. and is occupied by Edward Gapper Legg esq. who farms this estate, together with Coombe Down, Beaminster: it is a large and ancient building: over the chimney piece in the parlour are the following arms, viz:—1 and 4, England and France quarterly; 2, Scotland; 3, Ireland within the garter, and the motto of the same is on a scroll beneath; at the sides are the initials J. R. (for Jacobus Rex, James I.): over the hall chimney piece are the arms of the Paulets in stucco, with the date "1604," quarterly of nine: 1, Paulet; 2, three water bougets; 3, two bars a bend over all, on a chief a crescent; 4, .... on a chief 2 mullets; 5, two lions passant gardant; 6, Barry of six.... and ....; 7, a fret between three fleurs-de-lys; 8, a fret and a canton; 9, an orle of martlets; supporters, two leopards, semée of étoiles; below on a scroll the motto "Aimez Loyaulte"; crest, a hawk with expanded wings: adjoining the house at the back is a small building called the "Chapel": this mansion was anciently the seat of the Mores, a family of note in these parts, at least before the reign of Henry VI. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late Henry Compton esq. The soil is rich loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, flax and roots. The area is 3,500 acres; the population in 1881 was 415.

OXBRIDGE, 1½ miles south-west, is in this parish; also Loscombe, 1 mile south-east.

MILBORNE ST. ANDREW and MILBORNE STILEHAM, the former a parish, and the latter a hamlet of Bere Regis, form a village, generally called by the former name, situated on the road from Blandford to Dorchester, 8 miles south-west from Blandford, 8 north-east from Dorchester and 3 north-west from Bere Regis, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Puddletown, Blandford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch, Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient structure of stone and flint, in the Early English style; it consists of chancel, nave and north aisle, Norman south porch, with low square western embattled tower, supported by buttresses, with 3 bells and a clock: it was thoroughly restored, chiefly by the late vicar, the Rev. Lloyd Baker Waldron and J. C. Mansel-Pleydell esq. from designs by the late G. E. Street esq. R.A. at a cost of nearly £3,000: it contains a fine canopied marble tomb to John Morton, nephew of Cardinal Morton, and several handsome mural tablets to the Morton and Pleydell families: there are 240 sittings. The register dates from the year 1660. The living is a discharged vicarage, with that of Dewlish annexed, joint gross value £320, with residence here, in the gift of Lady Michel, of Dewlish House, and held since 1889 by the Rev. David Colquhoun Smart, of the Union Theological College, New York, and Edinburgh University. Morton's charity of £8 yearly, of which £6 10s. is for clothing for the poor, £1 for the vicar and 10s. for the clerk. Bernard Mitchell's charity of £1 yearly for the relief of the sick. Smith's charity, £1 11s. yearly, for the education of six poor children. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1867. Cardinal Morton, Archbishop of Canterbury in the reign of Henry VII. was born here. In this parish is Weatherbury Castle, an oblong double intrenched camp, of about 7 acres in extent. A cattle, sheep, corn, and cheese fair is held here on the 30th of November. Here was formerly a market. Here is an Industrial school capable of receiving 60 boys: it was opened in 1857 as a reformatory for 20 boys, but in 1881 the latter was done away with and the premises extended to meet its present use: the number of boys is now 58, who are trained for agricultural pursuits, tailoring, the sea and the army; some are trained for the band belonging to the school. Here is a working men's club with reading room. Besides STAPLE BARROW, there are several other barrows. Longthorns is the property of J. C. Mansel-Pleydell esq. D.L., J.P. which is now occupied by Lieut.-Col. Edmund Morton Mansel-Pleydell J.P. late 12th Royal Lancers. The principal landowners are J. C. Mansel-Pleydell esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, and Mrs. Erle-Drax. The soil is gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area of Milborne St. Andrew is 1,695 acres; rateable value, £1,601; Milborne Stileham is 869 acres; rateable value, £855; the population in 1881 was 309 in Milborne St. Andrew, and 258 in Milborne Stileham.

MILTON ABBAS is a parish and pretty village, formerly a market town, situated in a deep valley sheltered on the north and south by very steep and chalky hills and surrounded by scenery of the most picturesque description, 7 miles south-west from Blandford and 11 north-east from Dorchester, in the Northern division of the county, Whiteway hundred, Cerne sub-division, Blandford petty sessional division, union and county court district, Whitchurch rural deanery Milton portion, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese: the present appellation of this place is a contraction of its ancient name of Middleton, the adjunct being given from its ancient lords the abbots: the earliest mention of it is in the reign of King Athelstan, who founded a monastery here: the whole village was removed to its present site by the first Earl of Dorchester in 1787, when Milton Abbas Grammar school was removed to Blandford; the old town of Milton lay around the Abbey church. The parish church of St. James, situated in the centre of the village, was built in 1786 at the sole expense of the first Earl of Dorchester, in the Transition style, is of stone, and consists of chancel and nave, with a western embattled tower containing a clock aad 2 bells belonging to the old peal, the others having been sold: there is a fine old font of Purbeck marble removed from the Abbey, which is now placed in the centre of the tower: during the year 1839 the church was thoroughly restored: the chancel was lengthened 14 feet: there is an organ in an organ-chamber, vestry and a heating-chamber underneath; this was done by Col. Hambro M.P.: the western gallery has been removed, new south aisle added and an archway made between the tower and nave, which forms the main entrance to the church: all the windows have been re-glazed with cathedral glass: the church floor paved with wood and the aisle fitted with pitch pine seats and re-opened for divine service by the Bishop of Salisbury on the 17th Oct. 1839: the total cost of the restoration being £2,000 and defrayed by public subscription, with the exception of that borne by Col. Hambro: there are sittings for 300 persons. The earliest register dates from 1650. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £210, net £130, including a good residence, in the gift of Col. Charles Joseph Theophilus Hambro M.P., D.L. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Charles James Johnstone M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The vicarage house is the oldest in the present village, it had formerly been the dairy-house of the Laccombe farm, and was altered to a vicarage, when the present abbey house was built in 1771. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1865. There is a reading-room open during winter months, and a lending library containing over 200 volumes. An almshouse for six widows was founded and endowed by Madam Jane Tregonwell in 1674: the inmates receive an allowance of 2s. 6d. weekly and fuel, in addition to two dresses and 10s. 6d. given annually on St. Thomas' day. The late Mr. John Ham, glazier and brewer, who died in this parish in 1848, left the sum of £333 6s. 8d. in the £3 per Cent. (now £2¾), the proceeds to be given for the maintenance of a Sunday school, and the purchase of bread and fuel for the poor of this parish for ever. A Benedictine monastery, dedicated to St. Mary, St. Michael, St. Branwalader, and St. Sampson, was founded here in 934 by King Athelstan, the revenue of which, at the Dissolution, was about £720: it was originally a minster and a religious house occupied by secular canons; in King Edgar's time (964) it became an abbey, with 40 monks. The present Abbey church was built in the reign of Edward II. and is a magnificent structure, in the Decorated and Later English styles: the old abbey church was struck by lightning and burned to the ground on the 23rd Sept. 1306, and not rebuilt till 1392-1417 when Walter Archer was abbot; in this building no nave was added: a parish church, dedicated to St. James, was built at the south-east angle: the first lay owner was Sir John Tregonwell, king's proctor, to whom the place was surrendered by Abbot Bradley on the 11th March, 1539; there were then 12 monks: Sir John died 26 years subsequently, and is buried in the abbey: on an iron bracket in west wall of the south transept where it has been for four centuries, stands a tabernacle, it had previously stood over the high altar, and is supposed to be unique in England: service is held here every Sunday evening during summer months: the church was restored in 1865 under the superintendence of the late Sir G. G. Scott R.A. and a new oak pulpit and reading desk and an organ added. A Cottage Hospital was built and endowed by the late Baron Hambro: it was opened on the 1st August, 1873, and is supported by voluntary subscription. Here is also a brewery and a co-operative society. Milton Abbey was built by the first Earl of Dorchester about the year 1771, on the site of the old Abbey house: this splendid mansion, the style of which corresponds with the Abbey church, is beautifully situated in a valley, and is approached through an avenue of fine trees; the park and woods of this estate extend over an area of 5,000 acres; George III. visited here in 1804 and 1805; it is the seat of Col. Charles Joseph Theophilus Hambro M.P., D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is chalk; subsoil, chalk. The area is 4,609 acres; rateable value, £4,270; the population in 1881 was 873.

By a Local Government Order, dated March 25, 1882, a detached part of this parish, known as Liscombe, was amalgamated with Chesilborne, and at the same date another detached part, known as Holworth, was added to Overmoigne in the Weymouth union.

Parish Clerk, Charles Pride.

MONKTON WYLD is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1850 out of Whitchurch Canonicorum in Dorset and Uplyme in Devon; it is 5 miles west from Whitchurch Canonicorum, 3 north from Lyme Regis, 2½ north-west from Charmouth and 4 south-east from Axminster railway station, in the Western division of the county, Bridport petty sessional division, union and county court district, Bridport rural deanery Lyme portion, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese. The part of the parish called Harcombe, is in Devonshire: for civil purposes the parish is divided between Wotton Fitzpaine, and Uplyme, Devonshire. The church of St. Andrew is a handsome building of flint with stone dressings, in the Middle Pointed style, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, fine south porch and aisles, with a stone spire, containing one bell: the walls are tastefully adorned with fresco paintings, inscriptions and monograms, in gold and colours: there is an organ: the new pulpit, of finely carved oak, having figures representing St. Cecilia, St. Mary Magdalene, St. Elizabeth of Hungary, and St. Andrew, was erected in 1887, at the joint expense of the rector of the parish and of Rev. Canon R. S. Hutchings, to the memory of Mrs. Hodson, foundress of the church: the font is of Caen stone: the whole of the windows are stained: there is also a fine south porch and lych gate: the church, parsonage and schools were entirely built by Mrs. Hodson, and the church was consecrated in 1850: the spire was completed in 1857: the church has been decorated at great cost by the present rector, and contains most beautiful brass work, and is adorned with exquisite embroidery: a new rood cross was placed upon the chancel screen in 1884, and three splendid sanctuary lamps hang in front of the communion table: a handsome rood screen was erected in 1888, by the rector and his friends, in memory of Mrs. Arden; it is decorated with figures of Our Lord, reigning in glory, St. John and the Virgin Mary, with figures of seraphim and angels worshipping: beautifully carved oak choir stalls were erected by the rector in 1886, in memory of his mother: in 1887 a large sacristy chapel was added on the north side, for the keeping of the beautiful embroidery &c. and further additions are in contemplation: this is considered to be the most beautiful church in this part of the country: the churchyard is kept as a garden and is full of roses and other flowers: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1850. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £200, including 10 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1869 by the Rev. John Brooke Maher Camm M.A. of Brasenose and Hertford Colleges, Oxford. There is a small Baptist chapel at Harcombe. The principal landowners are Viscount Bridport, who is lord of the manor of Monkton Wyld, and John Reginald Francis George Talbot esq. J.P. of Rhode Hill, Uplyme, who is lord of the manor of Harcombe. The soil is gravel and light clay; subsoil, gravel and heavy clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area and rateable value are included in Wotton Fitzpaine; the population in 1881 was 224.

MORDEN—EAST and WEST form a parish, 5¼ miles north-by-east from Wareham, 8 south-by-west from Wimborne and 3 miles south-west from Bailey Gate station on the Somerset and Dorset joint railway, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Loosebarrow, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, Wareham and Purbeck union, rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The houses in the parish are much scattered. The church of St. Mary was erected on the site of the old one and was consecrated in 1873: it was built at the sole cost of the late Miss Drax, and comprises chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, organ, western embattled tower containing 4 bells and clock: at the west end of the church are two monuments (originally one) to the Erle family, they bear date 1597: the east window was presented by the late J. S. W. S. Erle-Drax esq: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1575. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £260, including glebe and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Erle-Drax, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Geo. Augustus Aldridge A.K.C.L. The soil is clay and sand; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 6,574 acres; rateable value, £4,499; the population in 1881 was 809.

WEST MORDEN is a hamlet 1 mile west; SANDFORD a hamlet, 4 miles south and about half a mile north from Wareham station. There are several barrows in the neighbourhood. At West Morden is a Wesleyan chapel, which was enlarged in 1873.

Charborough Park, formerly extra parochial, is an ancient seat of the Erle and Drax families, and comprises a beautiful undulating and well-wooded park of 650 acres, which contains a fine herd of deer: the mansion, a large brick and stone building of mixed architecture, contains a very fine oak staircase, on the ceiling and walls of which are several fine frescoes, the former painted by Thomas Thornhill in 1718, and represents the judgment of Paris: near the mansion is a small ancient chapel with fine oak carved benches and pulpit, two stained windows and several mural tablets; and, standing by itself on rising ground is a small octagon stone tower 120 feet high, from which there is an extensive view of the surrounding country and the English Channel: the mansion is occupied by Mrs. Erle-Drax. There is also an interesting grotto, the ornamental front of masonry being surmounted by a figure of Fame; over the entrance is the following inscription:—

Beneath this roof in the year MDCLXXXVI
A set of Patriotic gentlemen of this neighbourhood
concerted the great plan
of
THE GREAT REVOLUTION
THE IMMORTAL KING WILLIAM to whom we owe our deliverance
from Popery and Slavery
The expulsion of the tyrant race
OF STUARTS
the restoration of our Liberties, security of our properties and establishment of our Honour and wealth

MORETON is a parish, situated on the river Frome, 136 miles from London, about 7 east-by-south from Dorchester and 8 west from Wareham, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Winfrith, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, Wareham and Purbeck union, rural deanery of Dorchester, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The London and South Western railway company have a station a mile and a half from the village. The church of St. Nicholas (situated in the park) is a handsome edifice of stone, in the Gothic style, and consists of apsidal chancel, nave, aisles, west porch and square south tower surmounted by four pinnacles and containing 2 bells and clock: it was rebuilt and beautified in 1777 by James Frampton esq. is paved with encaustic tiles and contains eight handsome stained windows: in the south aisle there are several beautfully carved marble tablets and an ancient brass to the memory of the Frampton family, who have a vault in the church and have been buried here since the Reformation: in the churchyard is buried Prince Clarence, second son of the late king of the Mosquito territory, Central America, who came to this country for the purpose of being educated: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1741. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £262, with 42 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Frampton, and held since 1840 by the Rev. William Charlton Frampton M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The charities of this parish are two, one amounting to about £146 yearly, arising from land left in 1687 by William Frampton esq. applied in apprenticing poor children belonging to the parishes of Moreton, Affpuddle and Tonerspuddle; the other for the education of poor children, amounting to £5 a year, arising from £140 stock in the 3 per Cent. Reduced Bank Annuities, left in 1813, by Roger Coker esq. Moreton house is a handsome commodious mansion of Portland stone, built by James Frampton esq. in 1744, and is very pleasantly situated on rising ground near the River Frome, from which the Framptons derive their name: there is a fine library, an extensive collection of old china and many valuable oil paintings by Holbein, Domenichino, Tempesta and Reynolds: the mantel-pieces are of marble and are beautifully carved by an Italian sculptor: there are extensive flower gardens and a richly wooded park extending over 100 acres: in the park is an obelisk erected in 1785 by Capt. John Houlton as a public testimony of his gratitude and respect for the memory of his much esteemed and late lamented friend James Frampton esq.: at the summit of the obelisk is a stone urn (four tons in weight), and being on rising ground is a landmark in the county: Moreton House is the property of Rupert P. and Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh-Frampton, who are the sole landowners: it is at present occupied by John Croke esq. The soil is sandy gravel; subsoil, gravel and red sand. The chief crops are wheat, and there is good pasture land in the neighbourhood. The area is 2,311 acres: rateable value, £2,291; the population in 1881 was 309.

HURST is one mile north-west; BROOME HILL one mile south-east. Here are Knowle, Tadnoll and other barrows.

MOSTERTON is a village and parish, 3 miles north from Beaminster, and 2½ south from Crewkerne railway station on the London and South Western railway, situate on the Somersetshire border and on the Axe, in the Western division of the county, Beaminster hundred, union and petty sessional division, county court district of Crewkerne, rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a modern building of stone, in the Elizabethan style, consisting of chancel and nave, north porch and square western tower containing one bell: it is capable of holding 359 persons: the old churchyard contains the tomb of the Hood family, which was formerly in the old church. Sir Alexander W.A. Hood, the present baronet, was born here. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is consolidated with South Perrott, net yearly value £399, arising from tithe rentcharge and 83 acres of glebe, in the gift of the representatives of the late G. Coombes esq. and held since 1873 by the Rev. John Stroud M.A. of Merton College, Oxford, who resides at South Perrott. Here is a chapel for Plymouth Brethren. Through Horn hill, on the highway between this village and Beaminster, there is a tunnel, 125 yards long, for which the public are principally indebted to the zealous exertions of the late Giles Russell esq. of Beaminster: it was commenced in August, 1831, and finished in June, 1832, under the superintendence of M. Lane esq. civil engineer. The principal landowners are Thomas Hussey esq. D.L., J.P. of Bredy, Shipton, who is lord of the manor, Viscount Portman and Lady Oglander. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, peas, hay and turnips. The area is 949 acres; rateable value, £1,790; the population in 1881 was 321.

MOTCOMBE is a large scattered parish, 2 miles north from Shaftesbury and 2 to 3 south-west from Semley station on the London and South Western railway, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Sixpenny Handley, Shaftesbury petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary was rebuilt in 1846 of green sandstone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles divided from the nave by five arches, south porch, and square embattled western tower containing 6 splendid toned bells, hung in 1887 at a cost of about £300, two of which were presented by Lady Theodora Guest, the remaining four being subscribed for by the parishioners; the following inscription is on the two large bells:

"Lady Theodora Grosvenor, married in 1877 to Merthyr Guest esq.
Christened by God's mercy,
Married by God's love,
In this parish church
She, whose name's above,
Gives me to her beloved childhood's home,
To ring the Peals, and toll the knells of Motcombe."

In 1888-9 new heating apparatus was furnished and pipes laid for lighting the church with gas: there is an organ: the seats are open, and will hold between three and four hundred. The register dates from the year 1676. The living was formerly a chapelry annexed to Gillingham, but was separated in 1883 and is now a perpetual curacy, called Motcombe-cum-Enmore Green, gross yearly value £600, net £350, with house, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1883 by the Rev. John Smith of Queens' College, Cambridge, and St. Bees, canon of Salisbury Cathedral. Here are chapels for Wesleyans with 380 sittings, and Primitive Methodists for 200 persons. The whole of the parish is well supplied with water, the source of which is a spring rising on the range of hills close to Cowherd's Shute and conveyed to various parts of the parish through pipes laid down at the expense of Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster. The charities for distribution amount to £70 yearly. Here are numerous apple orchards and large quantities of cider are manufactured; this is likewise a great cheese district; market gardening, dairy farming and brick making are carried on in this parish; there is also a large butter factory conducted by Messrs. Prideaux, who also deal extensively in milk, cheese, bacon, eggs, poultry and all kinds of dairy produce, and employ a large number of hands. Motcombe House, the seat of Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster, is a plain stone structure, with portico over the principal entrance, situate in charming park-like grounds, planted with rhododendrons and well wooded. The marchioness is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The land is principally in pasture. The area is 4,837 acres; rateable value, £10,287; the population in 1881 was 1,411.

ENMORE GREEN is half a mile north-west from Shaftesbury. The church of St. John the Evangelist was erected at Enmore Green in 1843: it is a small cruciform structure of stone in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave (with organ at the western end) and north and south transepts with galleries, with a square embattled western tower containing one bell: it is seated with open benches for 300 persons: the Rev. John Edward Whitworth Godden M.A. Keble College, Oxford, is curate. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel with 350 sittings, and a Life Boat mission hall with 100 sittings.

SHERBORNE CAUSEWAY is 2 miles north-west from Shaftesbury, situated on the road from Shaftesbury to Sherborne.

NETHERBURY is an extensive parish, situated on the river Brit, 1½ miles south-west from Beaminster and 5 north from Bridport station on the Great Western railway, and 7 miles from Crewkerne station on the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, Beaminster hundred and union, Bridport petty sessional division and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Bridport Beaminster portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a beautiful structure of stone, of the date of the early part of the 16th century, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and vestry, with square embattled western tower, containing 6 bells and a clock: the south aisle contains a handsome alabaster monument to one of the More family: it also contains three stained windows, one the east window, the other in the south side of chancel, and the third the east window of the south aisle: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1580. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Ash annexed, tithes commuted at £400, gross yearly value £480, net £240, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1879 by the Rev. William Gildea M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The sum of £70 yearly is allowed by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the services of a curate, conditionally on the vicar subscribing another £50. Here are two Congregational chapels; and at Salway Ash are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels. The Grammar school has been amalgamated with the Tucker's charity and removed to Beaminster. Hannah Clare, of Lower Strode, spinster, by her will, dated 6th April, 1866, bequeathed £900 to the officials of the Charitable Funds, the dividend and interest to be paid to the minister and churchwardens of Netherbury parish for the time being, to be applied as follows: the dividend and interest of £500 in the purchase of bread, coals and fuel, for distribution among such of the poor residing in Netherbury tithing in that parish, at Christmas, as to the minister and churchwardens shall seem meet; and the dividend and interest of £300 thereof in the same manner for the poor of the tithing of Bowood, in the same parish; and the dividend and interest of £100 remaining for the poor of the tithing of Ash, in the same parish. Lake's charity of £18 yearly, derived from land, is for distribution amongst the sick and poor. Brodrepp's and Richard Gollop's charity, amounting to about £30, is devoted towards apprenticing. Smith's charity, of a little over £100, is for the maintenance of the Girls' school, and other purposes as the trustees think fit. Here is a flax and tow manufactory, carried on at Slape mill, owned by Messrs. Thomas Tucker and Co. Bridport. The principal residences are Strode Manor House, the seat of Captain George Gollop; and Slape House, the residence of Frederick Walter Gundry esq. The very ancient Manor house, formerly belonging to the More family, is at present occupied as a farm house, and called Melplash Court. John Russell Cox is lord of the manor of Netherbury in Ecclesiâ Yondover, Edwin Slade esq. is lord of the manor of Slape, and Captain Geo. Gollop is lord of the manor of Bowood. The principal landowners are Lady Oglander, the trustees of the late Henry Compton, Captain Gollop, William Colfox, of Bridport, and Mrs. Hy. Reeves. The soil is light sandy loam; subsoil, sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area of the entire parish is 6,167 acres; rateable value, £13,917; in 1881 the population was 1,584, including part of Melplash.

Parish Clerk, James Woodland.

BOWOOD is a tithing, 2 miles west; WAYTOWN, a mile south; KERSHAY, 2 miles south-west.

SALWAY ASH is a tithing, 3 miles south. Here is Holy Trinity chapel of ease, a building of stone in the Early English style (consecrated October, 1889), consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and western bell turret, with one bell: there are sittings for 220 persons.

OBORNE is a parish on the borders of Somersetshire, 1¼ miles east-north-east from Sherborne station, 1½ west from Milborne Port and 7 east-by-north from Yeovil, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division and union of Sherborne, county court district of Yeovil, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sherborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Pope Eugenius mentions this place by the name of Wobourn in 1145, and the bull of Alexander III. mentions Woborne in 1303. The church of St. Cuthbert was rebuilt on a new site in 1862 in the Early English style; it is of stone, consisting of chancel, nave and south porch, with small western bell-turret containing one bell: in the chancel are three fine stained windows: there are sittings for 129 persons. The chancel of the old church is still standing, and is used as a mortuary chapel. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £155, with resilence and 8 acres of glebe, in the gift of J. K. D. Wingfield-Digby esq. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Octavius Arthur Benthall M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. Charities of £6 12s. yearly, arising from £100 left in 1842 by John Pitman of this parish, and £100 bequeathed in 1854 by the Rev. John Parsons, a former vicar, are distributed in clothing. The whole of the parish belongs to Caius College, Cambridge, who are also lords of the manor. The soil is oolite; subsoil, oolite. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 593 acres; rateable value, £1,176; the population in 1881 was 143.

OKEFORD FITZPAINE is a parish and village, 1½ miles south-west from the Shillingstone station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, 7 north-west from Blandford and 4 south-east from Sturminster Newton, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division and union of Sturminster Newton, county court district of Blandford, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sturminster Newton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Under the operation of the Divided Parishes Act, a portion of the parish of Belchalwell has for civil purposes only been added to this parish. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays and aisles, north porch and embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells: it was thoroughly restored in 1866 at a cost of over £2,000, and contains an ancient stone pulpit, which was turned into a font about a hundred years ago by the then rector (Rev. D. Butler), but again replaced at the last restoration: three stained windows have been placed in the chancel, the centre one is to the memory of the late rector, the Rev. G. Rivers Hunter, who held the living 52 years: there are 344 sittings. The register dates from the year 1533. The living is a rectory: the tithes have been commuted for a rent-charge of £505, with residence and glebe of 74 acres, in the gift of Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers, and held since 1872 by the Rev. John Henry Phillips B.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Wesleyans and Primitive Methodists have places of worship here. There is also a chapel for Wesleyans at Fiddleford. There is a charity of about £15, derived from land in Haselbury Bryant, divided every two years in clothing amongst the poor. The brick and tile works of Alfred Charles Todd are here. Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is a deep sandy loam; subsoil, chalk, sand and clay. The land is chiefly in pasture, with some wheat, barley and roots. The area is 2,633 acres; rateable value, which includes a portion of Belchalwell, £5,706; the population in 1881 was 602.

FIDDLEFORD is a hamlet, chiefly in this parish, but partly in the parishes of Child Okeford and Sturminster Newton; it lies on the road from Sturminster Newton to Blandford, between Shillingstone and Sturminster Newton, and is equidistant about 2 miles from the churches of each.

OSMINGTON is a parish and pleasant village on the coast of the English Channel, 3½ miles north-east from Weymouth, 8 south from Dorchester and 3¼ east from Broadway station, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Culliford Tree, petty sessional division of Dorchester, union and county court district of Weymouth, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury: it is partially situated on a fine bed of stone, called horse-flesh, and derives its name from Osmund, its patron-saint. King Athelstan gave this manor to the abbey of Milton, which possessed five hides in it, also the wreck of the sea. The church of St. Osmund is built of stone in the Perpendicular style, having chancel, nave, with aisles separated by Pointed arches, and south porch, square embattled western tower with turret, pinnacles, clock and 4 bells: in the chancel is an ancient monument, with the arms of Walham and an inscription rudely cut upon it: the church was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1846, and the south aisle added: the chancel contains a handsome stained window placed there by E. A. Wood esq. to the memory of his first wife, and a stained window in the south aisle, inserted by the parishioners in 1879, is a memorial of his second wife: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £252, with 6 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1877 by the Rev. John Thomas Vaudrey M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. Mrs. Susannah Toogood left by will, in 1826, the sum of £200, the interest of which is yearly expended in providing warm clothing for the aged poor. There is the figure of a horse and rider, of nearly an acre in extent, cut in the chalk on a hill in this parish, representing King George III. on horseback: it is visible from a long distance at sea. At Osmington Mills, about a mile from it, there is a coastguard station in charge of John Jefferson, chief officer, and 5 men. Here also is the celebrated old inn, the "Picnic Inn," frequented by visitors from Weymouth for the lobsters and prawns caught in the bay; the distance is 3½ miles across from Weymouth by water. E. A. Wood esq. D.L., J.P. and Captain Serrell Wood are the chief landowners. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, clay and chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and some pasture land. The area is 2,182 acres of land and 125 of water; rateable value, £2,672; the population in 1889 was 294.

EAST RINGSTEAD, 3 miles north-east, near the sea, now a hamlet, was once a parish, and gives name to Ringstead Bay.

UPTON is a hamlet 1 mile east.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Tizzard.

OWERMOIGNE is a parish and liberty, about 7 miles south-east-by-east from Dorchester and 2½ south from Moreton station on the London and South Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, petty sessional division of South Blandford, union and county court district of Weymouth, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Michael was rebuilt of stone in 1883 in the Gothic style, at the expense of the late Rev. John Robert Cree, and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and square embattled western tower, containing 3 bells (which is ancient, and the only remains of the former edifice): the seats and pulpit are of pitch pine, and in the chancel is a stained window: there are 160 sittings. The register dates from the year 1689. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £350, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of George John Cree esq. and Miss Stone, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Henry Broadway Miles. Jones' charity of £50 yearly is for distribution, arising from lands and cottages left in 1635 by Adam Jones of Holworth. George John Cree esq. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats, turnips and mangolds. The area is 3,982 acres; rateable value, £3,040; the population in 1881 was 423.

By the Divided Parishes Act, a detached part of Milton Abbas, known as Holworth, comprising 10 houses and 67 persons in 1881, was added to this parish for civil purposes only.

GALTON is a hamlet half-a-mile south-east; SOUTH DOWN, a hamlet 3 miles south. Among the barrows on the heaths are Lord's Barrow and Mowlam's Barrow.

Parish Clerk, William Harding.

PARKSTONE is a tithing and ecclesiastical parish formed in 1834, and picturesque suburb to the east of Poole, on Poole harbour, with a station on the Wimborne, Broadstone and Bournemouth branch of the South Western railway, 1½ miles north-east from Poole and 3 west from Bournemouth; it is in the Eastern division of the county, Poole union and county court district, Great Canford parish, Poole municipal borough and petty sessional division, rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Water is supplied by the Poole Water Works Co. from works at Lilliput. The church of St. Peter, partly rebuilt in 1876, is a handsome edifice in the Early English style, of Purbeck stone with Bath stone dressings: the old part consists of a portion of the nave and a square embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 8 tubular bells: the new part comprises chancel, memorial chapel, transepts and two bays of the nave: the chancel, which is of large dimensions and very lofty, is surmounted by a vaulted roof of pitch pine, and surrounded by an ambulatory, from which it is divided by clustered columns of Bath stone: the communion table, which is of carved oak, and richly gilded, is approached by nine steps, the three uppermost being of white marble: the rood screen, of wrought iron, is lofty and of most elaborate design: the cost of building the chancel has been defrayed by the vicar, that of chapel and so much of the nave as is completed, by the parishioners: the organ is a very fine instrument presented in 1888, by the Rev. S. E. Pontifex, of Hillside, Parkstone, as a memorial to his mother: it is intended to complete the nave and western tower as soon as sufficient funds can be raised: there are 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1833. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £33 in the gift of the Rev. John Parr, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Ernest Edward Dugmore M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. The chapel of the Holy Angels, situated near the Salterns, is a small building of white brick, consisting of chancel, nave and western bell turret, containing one bell: it has 100 sittings. The chapel of St. Osmund's is a small iron building: it has 50 sittings. Both these chapels are in connection with St. Peter's church. The church of All Saints, erected in 1867, is a plain building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and organ chamber, with western bell turret, containing one bell: the cost of building church and vicarage and of the endowment was defrayed by the late Henry Bury esq. of Branksome Tower and others: there are 300 sittings, all free. The register dates from the year 1877. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £83, with residence, in the gift of the Bury family, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Charles Goddard Doyne M.A, Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. The views of the English Channel, Corfe Castle, Brownsea Castle, and other interesting objects, render Parkstone a delightful village. Canford Cliffs estate fronts the English Channel, and lies 2 miles south-east; it consists of an undercliff sea frontage with excellent sands, with heights clad with pines and Scotch firs sloping to the south-west, from which the Isle of Wight is beautifully seen, and having views of Poole harbour, Purbeck hills and Corfe and Brownsea Castles. Victoria Park, a piece of land of 5 acres, acquired from Lord Wimborne, in exchange for other land, is situated in the centre of the village, and is well wooded and laid out with shrubs and walks, with a fountain in the centre: it was opened for the use of the public in 1888. There are two other parks within the parish of Parkstone, viz. Parkstone Park and the Constitution Hill grounds, which are described under Poole. There is a coastguard station at Sandbanks, in charge of George Miller, chief officer, and 6 men. Lord Wimborne, who is lord of the manor, Lord Alington and Edward Harrison Solly esq. J.P. Dorset are the principal landowners. The land is generally poor heath, but has been cultivated. The subsoil is gravel, with an occasional stratum of clay, admirably adapted for terra-cotta articles and sanitary draining pipes, and is extensively used at the South Western works at this place for those purposes. The area is 1,253 acres; rateable value, £18,046; the population in 1881 was 1,984.

PILSDON (or PILLESDON) is a parish, 7 miles south-west from Crewkerne, 5 west from Beaminster, 7 miles north from Bridport station on the Great Western railway and 7 from Chard Road station on the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Whitchurch, Bridport petty sessional division and county court district, Beaminster union, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. In this parish there are several feeders of the river Char. The church of St. Mary, a building of stone in the Early English style, was almost entirely rebuilt in 1830, and in 1865 a western bell turret containing one bell was erected; it consists of chancel, nave and south porch: it was restored in 1875 by Mrs. Syndercombe Bower and her son, H. Syndercombe Bower esq. in memory of the Rev. Gregory Raymond, late rector of Symondsbury: there is a very ancient piscina, and the original holy water stoop still remains in the porch: there are 80 sittings. The register dates from the year 1760. The living is a rectory, yearly value £76, with 20 acres of glebe, in the gift of H. Syndercombe Bower esq. and held since 1870 by the Rev. Frederick Williams M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, who is also rector of and resides at Bettiscombe. Pilsdon Pen is an old Roman encampment and landmark. The ancient manor house, the residence of the Wyndham family in the time of Charles I. is now occupied as a farm house. H. Syndercombe Bower esq. of Fontmell, Child Okeford, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil varies, sandy and strong. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and hay. The area is 627 acres; rateable value, £589; the population in 1881 was 92.

Parish Clerk, George Mabey.

PIMPERNE is a parish, situated on the road from Blandford to Salisbury, 2¼ miles north-east from Blandford, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of the same name, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Blandford, rural deanery of Pimperne Blandford portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Peter is a handsome edifice of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, south-east porch and square embattled western tower, with pinnacles and containing 3 bells, and was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1874, at the expense of the late Viscount Portman: the porch has a fine Norman arch, and over the porch is a statue of St. Peter, holding a bunch of keys: in the east end is a stained window, by Alice and Elizabeth Wright, in 1868: there are 210 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value about £400, with residence, in the gift of Viscount Portman, and held since 1886 by the Rev. James Hussey M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. The Wesleyans have a place of worship, and there is a reading room. In the centre of the village are the remains of an old cross. Here are many barrows. Pimperne training stables are the property of Viscount Portman, Mr. William Walters being occupier and trainer. The principal landowner is Viscount Portman, who is lord of the manor. The soil is light loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,510 acres; rateable value, £3,185; the population in 1881 was 399.

Parish Clerk, Walter Ainsworth.

POKESWELL is a parish, 6 miles north-east from Weymouth, 6 south-east from Dorchester and 4½ east from Broadway, the nearest railway station, in the Southern division of the county, Winfrith hundred, petty sessional division of Dorchester, Weymouth union and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The old church was pulled down and the present one erected in 1868, the entire cost being defrayed by John Trenchard Trenchard esq. The new church of St. John the Baptist is a handsome building of dressed stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, short transepts, north porch and round western tower, surmounted by a spire, containing one bell: the interior of the base of the tower forms the baptistery: the windows are lancet-shaped, except the east window, which is Decorated and stained, representing the Ascension; the west window has a figure of St. John: the chancel is paved with encaustic tiles, and the ceilings of nave and chancel are elaborately carved: there are 270 sittings. The register dates from the year 1675. The living is a rectory annexed to Warmwell, joint gross yearly value £400, in the gift of Col. Jocelyn Pickard-Cambridge, but for the next turn of the Rev. J. Wood, and held since 1849 by the Rev. Edward Pickard-Cambridge M.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. On the downs is a circle of large stones, supposed to have been a Druidical temple. Col. Joycelyn Pickard-Cambridge is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is variable, clayey, but not heavy, and the arable, medium with some light. The chief crops are barley, oats, wheat and some land in pasture. The area is 887 acres; rateable value, £859; the population in 1881 was 86.

POOLE is a municipal borough, market and union town, parish and head of a county court district, 6 miles south from Wimborne, 9½ north-east from Wareham, 12 south-east from Blandford, 5 west from Bournemouth, Hants, 22 east from Dorchester, 30 north-east from Weymouth and 121 from London, is a station on the Wimborne, Broadstone, Parkstone and Bournemouth branch of the South Western railway, in the Eastern division of the county, and forms a petty sessional division, is in the rural deanery of Whitchurch Poole portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury: it is a town and county of itself, governed by a corporation, under the title of the mayor, aldermen and burgesses, who also act as the Urban and Port Sanitary Authorities. By the Municipal Boundary Act the tithings of LONGFLEET and PARKSTONE, both in the parish of Canford Magna, and also the parish of HAMWORTHY, were added to and now form part of the County of the town of Poole. The town and county, so constituted, has a sheriff, elected annually, who has the exclusive execution of all writs and processes in such county and borough, with the exception of those issuing from the Court of Record. The council consists of six aldermen and eighteen councillors, the representatives of two wards, into which the town and county is divided. Poole has a commission of the peace and a court of quarter sessions: it is a very ancient borough, possessing immunities before 1248, in which year the celebrated William Longespee, lord of the manor, granted it a charter: in this document a portreeve is mentioned. Poole formerly returned two members to Parliament, but by the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," this was reduced to one, and by "The Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," it was merged in the Eastern division of the county.

The borough is lighted with gas and supplied with water by two companies.

The railway stations here and in the immediate neighbourhood are now as follow:—the old Poole junction is now Hamworthy junction, and the former Poole station is named Hamworthy station. From Broadstone junction, 2 miles from Wimborne and 3½ from Longfleet (adjoining Poole), is a line to Poole station in the town and thence continued to West Bournemouth. From Broadstone junction is a loop line to Bailey's Gate for Sturminster Marshall.

Poole stands on a beautiful inlet of the sea, near the south-eastern extremity of the county of Dorset. The town, which is remarkably clean, is situated on a peninsula jutting into the harbour: it occupies a tract of ground nearly 1 mile long and three quarters of a mile broad: the principal streets are parallel from north-east to south-west and there are many substantial and well-built houses. The equable temperature here renders the town of Poole generally healthy and a desirable residence for those whose physical constitution may require avoidance of the more extreme variations in the heat.

Villa residences have been erected at Parkstone, on the hills, which are clothed with trees of the fir tribe, which afford shelter from the wind and secure an equable climate.

Poole harbour, more especially when the tide is in, presents much scenic beauty; and the traveller approaching the town from almost any direction, cannot fail to be struck with its picturesque situation: it is remarkable in having two tides: after flowing for six hours it ebbs for an hour and a half and flows again for the same period, making a second high water, and ebbing again for the remaining three hours; this feature is not peculiar to this place, but occurs along the south coast to Bournemouth, and is probably due to its position at the back of the Isle of Wight. The water, nearly surrounding the town, spreads over a surface broken by islands and projecting headlands; the shores, of a diversified character, here rise abruptly, then retire into a low flat, and are in many parts richly wooded; the background is formed by the bold and well-defined outline of the distant hills of the Isle of Purbeck, giving relief to the sombre ruins of Corfe Castle in their front. The island and castle of Brownsea form a pleasing termination to one side of the view, whilst the other is bounded by the undulation of the distant hills; the whole combine to produce scenery of a rare distinction and agreeable kind; and as the communication between the harbour is hidden by the overlapping of Brownsea Island and the opposite sand-banks, the appearance is that of a large inland lake.

The harbour has been famous from time immemorial for its oyster beds; thousands of barrels of pickled oysters were exported annually, and many of the warehouses on both sides of the harbour are built upon a foundation of oyster shells. In consequence of want of regulation of the fishery the beds had become exhausted, but in 1885 a regulating power over the beds was given by Act of Parliament to the Poole Corporation, and in 1887 200 acres in the Wareham Channel were granted to a local company, and it is expected that the beds will again prove as productive as in former times.

The parish church of St. James is of stone, erected in 1820 in the Tudor style on the site of an ancient building, and is surrounded by a large churchyard: the edifice consists of chancel, nave, aisles with galleries and square western tower with a peal of 8 bells and a clock: the ceiling is groined with rich gilt bosses: the principal entrance is by the west door, through the base of the tower: in the west is the organ and a clock: the galleries are supported by five clustered pillars on each side, of pitch pine coated with plaster: the reading desk and pulpit are of richly carved oak: the walls are all embattled: a handsome eagle lectern was placed in the church in 1887 in memory of Charles Schreiber M.A. who died M.P. for Poole, A.D. 1884: the interior was thoroughly repaired and embellished in 1371 at a cost of £300, raised by voluntary contributions: there are sittings for 2,000 persons. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is an impropriate rectory, net yearly income £300, in the gift of Lord Wimborne and other trustees, and held since 1868 by the Rev John Archibald Lawson.

St. Paul's ecclesiastical parish was formed in 1861: the church, situated near the upper end of the High street, is a small structure in the Grecian style, of white brick with stone dressings, erected in 1833, consisting of chancel, nave, south portico, western gallery and tower at the east end containing one bell: the organ is in the chancel: the cost of erection, including the purchase of land, was about £4,000, the whole defrayed by voluntary contributions: there are 500 sittings, of which 200 are free. The register dates from the year 1833. The living is a vicarage; the gross income, arising from endowments amounting to £60 and pew rents, is about £160; it is in the gift of five trustees, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Herbert Chidley Coote M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who resides at Parkstone.

The Catholic church, West Quay road, dedicated to St. Mary, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel and nave, and has about 120 sittings.

The Society of Friends' Meeting house, Lagland street, erected at the end of the 17th century and enlarged in 1820, has seats for 300 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1879, is in the Early English style, of Purbeck stone with Bath stone facings, comprising nave and transepts, which are divided into three bays and separated by granite columns; a tower of Bath stone unites the front and side elevations at the south angle: the roof and internal fittings are of pitch pine, the building is heated by hot water and well ventilated: it will seat about 1,000 persons.

The Baptist chapel, Hill street, erected in 1805 and restored in 1886, has 400 sittings. The Congregational chapel, Skinner street, built 1777 and renovated 1887, seats 1,150. The Primitive Methodist chapel, North street, erected in 1842 for 250 persons. The Unitarian chapel, Hill street, erected in 1868, has 400 sittings.

A Cemetery was formed in 1854 of 16 acres, situated at Parkstone, having been presented to the parish of St. James by John Bingley Garland esq. There are two mortuary chapels; it is under the control of a Burial Board of nine members elected by the vestry of St. James.

The Guildhall, in the market place, is a spacious and convenient structure of red brick with stone dressings, erected in 1761, at a cost of £1,500 (presented to the corporation for that purpose, in equal proportions, by Joseph Gulston and Thomas Calcraft esqrs. then representatives of the borough), and comprises a council chamber, a large hall of justice, and retiring rooms for the jury, having on the basement a series of open arcades, occupied only on market day (Thursday). The entrance to the Hall is by a double flight of stone steps at the west end, leading to a portico beneath a pediment. The judicial business of the borough, in the quarter sessions and other courts, is transacted in this hall, and the public meetings of the town are generally held here. The entire building was thoroughly repaired in May, 1874, at a cost of £550. The Hall will hold 600 persons.

The Public Free Library and School of Art was erected in 1887 at the sole expense of John J. Norton esq. at a cost of £2,500, in commemoration of Her Majesty's Jubilee. It is situated at the corner of High street and Mount street, and is a building of red brick with stone dressings from designs by Messrs. Lawson and Donkin, of Bournemouth, and is in the Free Classic or "Queen Anne" style, and consists of entrance hall, general reading room, ladies' reading room, lending and reference libraries. Above is the School of Art with separate rooms for male and female students. The whole building is fitted with hot water apparatus and necessary offices: it has a library of about 6,000 volumes: the old library, situated near the quay, in a building erected in 1830 by the Hon. W. F. S. Ponsonby, afterwards Lord de Mauley, has now been merged in the above. A wing was added and opened in October, 1889, by J. J. Norton esq.

Poole is the head quarters of No. 8 Battery, 2nd Dorsetshire Volunteer Brigade, Southern Division, Royal Artillery, and the D Company 1st Volunteer Battalion Dorsetshire Regiment.

The Cornelia Cottage Hospital, in West street, was established at the beginning of the year 1889, at the sole expense of Lady Wimborne, and contains 16 beds. Patients are admitted and kept in the hospital upon the payment of 3s. 6d. per week for adults, and 2s. 6d. for children. The charities amount to £224 yearly.

The almshouses at Hunger Hill, founded by George Garland, in 1814, consist of 12 tenements and have a small endowment. Rogers' Almshouses, in West street, were founded by Robert Rogers in 1604, and are for six poor persons or couples, each of whom receives 1s. per week. The funds have since been slightly augmented from other sources. The almshouses in Church street, for 12 poor persons, were supposed to have been founded in the 15th century, but not endowed. In 1866 Isaac Steele left £100, the dividend to be applied to the benefit of the occupants of these almshouses.

The market day is Thursday. Two fairs are held in the town—that of St. Phillip and St. James commencing on the first of May, and All Saints on November 2nd; each continues eight days.

Shipbuilding is carried on, one yard having a patent slip capable of hauling up vessels of 200 tons. Some very fast yachts have been built here. Ships of considerable tonnage can lie afloat at low water close to the quay. Cordage, netting, sail-cloth, and other articles requisite for the fitting out of shipping, are largely made here. The Poole Oyster Fishery Co. Limited have beds in Poole harbour.

Clay has for a long period been shipped hence for the Staffordshire potteries; potteries have also sprung up here. The corn, flour and timber trades are largely carried on; an extensive corn mill is at present in operation, which is most complete of its kind.

The neighbourhood of Poole abounds in remains of British antiquities. Early earthworks and sepulchral barrows are found on the hills. In the Isle of Purbeck, one hour's sail from the quay, is the far-famed Agglestone, a Druidical sacrificial stone computed to weigh 400 tons, standing on a mound of earth.

There are three public parks or pleasure grounds within the borough of Poole, viz. one adjoining the town and called the town park, the other two are locally in Parkstone. The Poole Park consists of forty acres of land, a salt water lake of 60 acres, and a fresh water lake of two acres. Lord Wimborne in 1885 gave 26 acres of this land to the inhabitants, to be laid out and kept as pleasure grounds in perpetuity, and in 1887 the Town Council obtained, by purchase and exchange, 14 acres additional land, and having borrowed £8,500, commenced the laying out in January, 1888, and completed the same at the close of 1889. The buildings erected thereon are two gardeners' lodges, cricket pavilion, band stand and shelters: the grounds are tastefully laid out and planted with choice trees, shrubs and flowers: the park has five main entrances with two pairs and two single gates to each, the gate piers being in red brick and terra cotta, with cast iron gates with the borough coat of arms on each: the salt water bay is beautifully arranged for boating and is very safe, having an average depth of three feet; landing places are provided: large hatches are fixed in the railway embankment for regulating the depth and for changing the water. The whole of the works were designed and carried out by Mr. John Elford M.S.A. borough surveyor the gardens were laid out from designs by Messrs. Veitch and Son, Exeter, who also supplied the shrubs and plants.

The Parkstone park is situated in the centre of Parkstone, a rising parish within the borough, and contains a little over three acres, valued at £1,200, and was exchanged for other lands belonging to the borough, and laid out at the public expense at a cost of £560; it contains some very fine trees, and has a centre walk or promenade, with a beautiful large terra-cotta playing fountain, the basin being well stocked with gold and silver fish: this was also designed and carried out by Mr. John Elford, borough surveyor.

The Constitution Hill grounds of 6½ acres has been the property of the Town Council for many years; it is not provided with footpaths, but left in its natural state, some parts being adorned with pine trees, while a part of the hill and the sloping sides are covered with heather: from the summit of the hill splendid views are obtained of Poole harbour, the English Channel, Brownsea Island, Corfe Castle, Wareham, Holes Bay, Lytchett, &c.

Lord Wimborne D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and the Right Hon. George A. Cavendish Bentinck M.P., J.P. are the sole landowners.

The population of the municipal borough in 1881 was 12,310, viz.: St. James' (Poole) parish, 7,179; Hamworthy parish, 668; Longfleet tithing, 2,207; and Parkstone tithing, 2,256. The area of the parish of St. James is 160 acres; rateable value, £17,310. It was found by inquisition, 13th Charles II. that the waste and oozy grounds in the harbour contained by measurement 8,026 acres.

HAMWORTHY, LONGFLEET and PARKSTONE, suburbs of Poole, will each be found under separate headings.

PORTESHAM (or PORTISHAM) is a village and large agricultural parish, with a station on the Weymouth and Abbotsbury branch of Great Western railway, 8 miles south-west from Dorchester, 128 from London, and 7 north-west from Weymouth, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Uggescombe, Dorchester petty sessional division, Weymouth union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Abbotsbury portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Here are extensive beds of Portland and Purbeck stone, with a railway connecting the quarries with the Abbotsbury railway. Also large beds of shale yielding 60 gallons to ton, worked from a shaft sunk to a great depth. The church of St. Peter is an old Gothic building of stone, which was restored in 1874, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and square embattled western tower containing 3 bells and a clock: there are 430 sittings. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £185, including 3 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of William Manfield esq. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Sir John Charles Molyneux bart. LL.B. Christ's College, Cambridge. Here is a Primitive Methodist chapel; also a Temperance Hall, erected in 1882. In this neighbourhood are the remains of several Druidical temples: on RIDGE HILL, a short distance from the village, is a cromlech, or Druid's altar, the only one in the county; it is called the HELLSTONE and has been restored: it consists of nine upright stones, with a horizontal one 11 feet long and 2 in thickness and stands on a barrow: near HELLSTONE are four upright stones. There are many barrows, and various antiquities have been found at Corton. The principal landowners are Lord Fitzhardinge, who is lord of the manor, William Manfield esq. Miss Chafyn Grove, Mrs. Warry, Mr. Crane, Mr. Samson and Mr. Thresher. The chief crops are grass and corn. The soil is heavy clay. The area is 4,540 acres; rateable value, £5,913; the population in 1881 was 705.

PORTLAND.

PORTLAND is a small island, or, more properly speaking peninsula, situated in the English Channel, united to the mainland by the long ridge of chessel or shingle called CHESIL BANK, 4½ miles south from Weymouth and 147½ from London, situated 2° 20′ west from the meridian of Greenwich, and in 50° 30′ north latitude, in the Southern division of the county, petty sessional division of Dorchester, Weymouth union and county court district, Dorchester rural deanery Weymouth portion, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese. The island is 4½ miles in length, 1¾ in width and 9 in circumference, and the boundary is formed by a ridge of lofty rocks, inaccessible on all sides, except towards the south, where the land slopes away to the shore; the highest ground is 496 feet above the sea. It contains several villages or hamlets, viz.:—CHESIL, FORTUNE'S WELL, CASTLETOWN, MAIDENWELL, EASTON, REFORNE, WAKEHAM, WESTON, SOUTHWELL, GROVE, YEATS, and VERNE HUTS. The Local Government Act of 1858 was adopted April, 1867, and the island is governed by a Local Board of Health of 18 members. The whole of the upper part of the island is a complete bed of stone, which was first brought into use in the reign of James I. St. Paul's Cathedral and many of our public buildings have been built with it; at present 70,000 tons are shipped yearly from the quarries; the stone is quarried in blocks from two to fourteen tons each, which are conveyed to the ships by means of a railway: the whole stratum rests upon a bed of bluish clay: in the quarries are found many petrified shells and fossils. There are many curiosities in the island, amongst which may be seen a fine specimen of a fossil tree, standing at Mr. Burridge's school; it is 20 feet in height, with two branches in the form of the letter V. The fossil remains of a wild boar have been discovered. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in the quarries and fishing, and are a hardy race of people. The soil is shallow but fruitful, and the sheep fed on the short grass produce the celebrated Portland mutton. A small delicious bird, the wheatear, is found here in great numbers. The supply of water is plentiful.

A railway from Portland to Weymouth is used jointly by the Great Western and the South Western railways. A railway is now (1889) in course of construction, which will go round the east side of the island, with terminus at Easton, joining the present Admiralty railway at Castletown, the island thus being brought into direct communication with the whole systems of the Great Western and London and South Western railways through their present station at Chesil. This railway, which will open up several new quarries, will have stations at Chesil, Castletown (for the steam-boat traffic), Grove, and the terminus at Easton, whence there will be two tramway lines, leading to extensive goods stations.

Portland Castle, situated at the foot of the loftiest part of the island, was erected by King Henry VIII. in 1520 as a place of defence; from 1558 to 1646 it suffered many disasters, being constantly taken and retaken by the King and the Parliament: in 1818 it was granted to the Rev. John Manning by the Duke of York, and since the accession of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the Castle has been appropriated to the Commander of the Engineers stationed here: the walls are in some parts from 12 to 14 feet thick.

The island is a liberty of itself, in the Weymouth union. The custom of gavelkind prevails here.

A fair is held on November 5th.

A fund is in existence here arising from a grant made by Charles II. in 1665, by which a royalty of 9d. for every ton of stone quarried from all parish or commonable land is payable for the use of the inhabitants, and by subsequent grants a further sum of 6d. was charged on stone raised from all Crown quarries, being for the Royal use; but this latter grant was withdrawn in 1878.

One of the most prominent objects on this island is the Convict Prison, situated on the top of the hill, in a locality called Grove, commanding a bold and magnificent view of the Channel: the building is chiefly constructed of wood and iron, so that it may be taken down and removed: it now contains about 900 convicts, who are chiefly employed in the stone quarries in getting stone and loading the wagons with the same, for export.

The parish church of St. George, situated at Reforne, is a plain stone building, erected in 1706, in the Classic style, and consists of a deep chancel with apse, nave, north and south transepts and western tower with cupola containing one bell: a handsome stained window was put in by Richard Lano, as a thank offering, in 1878: it is capable of seating 700 persons. The register dates from the year 1766. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £345, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Oxford, and held since 1872 by the Rev. John Augustine Beazor, of St. Augustine College, Canterbury.

The lower church, St. John the Baptist, at Fortune's Well, was erected in 1839, and a district was assigned to it in 1840; it is a Gothic structure of Portland stone, with chancel, nave, aisles and square embattled western tower, containing 3 bells with a clock: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1839. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £256, with 5 acres of land and residence, in the gift of Hyndman's trustees, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Thomas Alfred Ottley M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, and D.D. of Dublin. The area is 1,100 acres; rateable value, £17,838; the population in 1881 was 3,858.

The church of St. Peter, The Grove, is a modern stone building principally for the prison officials, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, north and south transepts, western porch and turret, containing one bell, built by convict labour, in the Byzantine style of the 12th century, after the designs of Sir Edmund Ducane, at a cost of £2,400: there are 600 sittings. The Rev. Josiah Meigh M.A. of St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, is the vicar.

St. Andrew's church, Southwell, opened July 3rd, 1879, as a chapel of ease, was erected to commemorate the loss of the "Avalanche," with all hands, off this island, September 11th, 1877, by collision with the "Forest;" it is built of stone in the Early English style, and consists of chancel, nave, baptistery, north porch and western bell turret with 2 bells: it contains several stained windows: there are 350 sittings.

In the Grove is a Catholic chapel dedicated to Our Lady and St. Andrew; Congregational, at Chesil, to hold 350; Wesleyan, at Fortune's Well, to hold 600, and Chesil to hold same number, and one at Easton to seat 100, and Southwell to seat 80; Primitive Methodists, at Fortune's Well, to hold 340, and Weston to seat 80; and Bible Christians, at Maidenwell, to hold 150. Here is a Seamen's Mission and Reading Room; also a Soldiers' Institute, with divine service on Sunday nights, and various other meetings.

Gas Works were established at Chesil in 1856, by a company.

A Dispensary was established in 1840, for the benefit of the labouring population, at Fortune's Well; her Majesty is the patroness: patients receive medicine at their own homes.

At Straits there is a reading room. The principal hotels are the "Victoria," and the "Royal," and the "Portland Arms," where King George III. often dined while at Weymouth.

On the east side of the island is Rufus or Bow and Arrow Castle, belonging to and forming part of the grounds of Pennsylvania Castle, formerly the property of the late Granville J. Penn esq. of Stoke Park, Buckinghamshire, but subsequently of his relative, Stewart Forbes esq.; it is now owned by J. Merrick Head esq. The castle is a handsome stone edifice, built by the late John Penn esq. of Stoke Park, Bucks (governor of the Isle of Portland), from designs by Mr. James Wyatt, architect; it was commenced at the end of the last century, and finished in 1800; it is charmingly situated and commands magnificent views of the Channel.

The island has ready access to Weymouth by rail with station at Chesil, and water, being within 3 miles; steamers run four times daily during the summer months, landing at the government pier at Castletown.

There are two lighthouses on the south of the island, one of which is built in the form of a cone, the diameter at the base being 20 feet; from the gallery is seen that dangerous sea called the Race, so named from the tides meeting at this part of the island; also the Shambles: the upper lighthouse was erected in 1817, and rebuilt in 1867, when the lower one was also erected, both being on the fixed principle, and worked with revolving lenses.

The design of a breakwater was first mooted by Mr. John Harvey, of Weymouth, his attention being directed to this subject in the year 1794, but it was not until 1847 that an Act was passed for the construction of the breakwater in the Portland Roads, from the designs of Mr. James Meadow Rendel, to form a harbour of refuge: the breakwater extends from the north-east point of the island to a distance of $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles into the sea, and forms a roadstead 4 miles in extent, within which a fleet of 200 sail can lie at anchor in complete safety, sheltered from all winds in the Channel, and be ready for sea at a moment's notice in case of emergency; the breakwater is $1\frac{3}{4}$ miles long, 120 feet wide at low water level and upwards of 300 feet at the base. There is a small fortification at the land end, mounting a few guns; and at the extremity a large circular fort, capable of mounting 21 heavy rifled guns. The harbour of refuge thus formed is now almost entirely inclosed by this stupendous sea-wall, covering an extent of no less then 2,107 acres. Near the breakwater is a hospital for patients from H.M. Navy, known as the Royal Naval Sick Quarters; Medical Officer, Edward Mahon, staff surgeon.

To protect the harbour and roadstead, extensive fortifications have been erected on the top and sides of the hill called the "Verne," on the northern side of the island; here a battery has been constructed and an artificial ravine formed, 100 feet wide and from 70 to 120 feet deep, to prevent access to the Verne from the land side, and batteries command this ravine; on the east side of the island (on the east weir) are other batteries at different altitudes.

The population of Portland in 1881 was 10,061, including 35 in the Royal Naval Hospital, 361 in Verne Citadel barracks and 1,620 in the Convict Prison, 845 on board vessels, of which 550 belonged to H.M. ships. The area is 2,884 acres of land and 162 of water, tidal water, and foreshore; rateable value, £20,921.

POWERSTOCK (or POORSTOCK) is a parish, having a station on the Bridport branch of the Great Western railway, 4 miles north-east from Bridport and 6 south-east from Beaminster, partly in the Western division of the county, hundred of Eggardon, but chiefly in the liberty of Powerstock, Beaminster union, Bridport petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary has been well restored at a cost of about £2,200: it is a building of stone, the original part is Early Norman, consisting of a chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells and a chiming clock, and also a handsome south doorway: the chancel contains six good stained windows: the original chancel arch is still preserved and is a highly interesting example of the Early Norman period; its capitals are enriched with characteristic sculpture and its pillars with a variety of arabesque patterns: there is a beautiful south porch of recent erection, but the inner doorway formed part of the ancient edifice; this doorway is surrounded by a large and elaborate arrangement of niches flanked by panelled and crocketed buttresses and pinnacles; the principal panel contains a figure of the Virgin and Child: in the under walls of the tower are some remains of sculptured stones which belong to the Early Norman period: there are 5 bells, 3 and 5 were cast by Thomas Bilbie in 1772; the tenor bell weighs 27 cwt.: the interior of the edifice is furnished with modern fittings, among which is a fine brass eagle lectern and a handsome panelled pulpit enriched with sculptured effigies of St. Peter, St. John and the Virgin: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1568. The living is a discharged vicarage, with West Milton annexed, joint gross yearly value £300, with residence and including 85 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Charles Lloyd Sanctuary M.A. Keble College, Oxford. The poor's land produces £2 5s. yearly for bread. Here was formerly a market. There is at the extremity of the Roman road from Dorchester a hill named Eggardon, which contains two Roman camps: the hill is partly in Powerstock parish and partly in that of Litton. The Earl of Sandwich is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is varied; limestone, sandy loam, clay and chalk; subsoil, rocky. The chief crops are wheat, barley, flax and some land in pasture. The area is 4,123 acres; rateable value, £6,551; the population in 1881, with the tithings, was 821, including part of Melplash.

WYTHERSTONE is a tithing, 1 mile north-east of Powerstock; here is an extensive cutting on the Bridport railway. There is no church, but the living is a decayed sinecure rectory, yearly value £100, in the gift of the trustees of the late Henry Compton esq. and held since 1849 by the Rev. Paulet Mildmay Compton, who is also rector of and resides at Mapperton.

South Poorton is a tithing in that part of the parish which is in the hundred of Eggardon, 1 mile north.

West Milton is a hamlet, in the parish and liberty of Powerstock, locally in the hundred of Eggardon, 1 mile west, on the river Asker. Here is a chapel of ease (St. Mary Magdalene) to Powerstock church, erected in 1873, in the Early English style; it consists of chancel, nave and small tower, containing one bell, and baptistery: all the windows are stained.

Nettlecombe and Castle Mill form a tithing, in the parish and liberty of Powerstock, locally in the hundred of Eggardon, 1½ miles south: it contains a fine old manor house, called Mappercombe, now a farm house, divided into two portions. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. The railway station is in this tithing.

LOSCOMBE, a portion of this parish, now forms a part of the ecclesiastical parish of Melplash.

Parish Clerk, John Gale.

PRESTON is a pretty village and parish, with the liberty of SUTTON POYNTZ, situate on the coast of Weymouth Bay, and on the road from Melcombe Regis to Wareham, 2½ miles west from Broadway, the nearest railway station, 2½ miles north-east from Weymouth, in the Southern division of the county, Culliford Tree hundred, petty sessional division of Dorchester Weymouth union and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient fabric of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, north porch and square embattled western tower, containing 4 bells: there is an antique font: the church has been restored and two handsome stained windows erected: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1693. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, net £230, including 3 acres of glebe, with house, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1877 by the Rev. Arthur Hill B.D. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Wesleyans have a chapel here. In a meadow by the stream below the church are the remains of a Roman villa, consisting of the foundations of the walls of two small rooms, and of a well preserved tesselated pavement, which occupied originally an area 18 feet square; the materials used are small cubes of hard chalk, burnt earth or brick, and umber; the pattern consists of a central ornament, slightly resembling a Tudor rose, in a square, on each side of which run two guilloches or cables, with a rectilinear figure between them: and on the south side there is besides a row of heart-shaped figures: it was discovered by Mr. Medhurst, in 1842, and permanently uncovered for the inspection, at the congress at Weymouth, of the British Archæological Association in 1871. George Gollop esq. of Strode House, Netherbury, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, various. The chief crops are grass, wheat and barley. The area is 2,609 acres of land and 70 of water; rateable value, £4,920; the population in 1881 was 689.

SUTTON POYNTZ, half a mile north, was a liberty or free manor of the Poyntzes, an ancient family in the western parts; Weymouth is supplied with water from a spring rising in this hamlet. Reginald Joseph Weld esq. of Lulworth Castle, is lord of the manor and chief landowner of Sutton Poyntz.

Parish Clerk, Robert Miller.

PUDDLEHINTON (or PIDDLEHINTON: in old times variously called Hyne Piddle or Honey Piddle, Hyne Puddle, Pyne Pydele, Pydelhenton, and Pudelhynton) is a parish and somewhat straggling village, situated in a valley on the river Trent or Piddle, 5½ miles north-by-east from Dorchester and 4½ south-east from Cerne, in the Southern division of the county, liberty of Puddlehinton, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Dorchester, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a very ancient flint and stone structure in the Perpendicular style; it was restored and enlarged in 1868 at a cost of £1,200, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and southern embattled tower, surmounted by pinnacles and containing 5 bells: there are some brasses of the early part of the 17th century—one, of the Rev. Thomas Brown, who held the living 27 years, has an inscription in Latin verse: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value about £400, including 40 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Eton College, and held since 1889 by Rev. John Edward Hawksley, of the Gloucester Theological College; it numbers amongst its former rectors a provost of Eton, a provost of Oriel College, Oxford, and a bishop, the successor of Wolsey in the see of Winchester. Eton College, who own the manor, and Mr. W. Mayo, are the principal landowners. The soil is light loam on chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is now 2,872 acres, being an increase of about 600 acres, taken in 1885 from the parish of Puddletown; rateable value, £2,873; the population in 1881 was 397, mainly depending on agriculture.

MUSTON is 1 mile south-east; HOLCOMBE, 1 mile south-west of the church.

Deputy Parish Clerk, Richard Lockett.

POST OFFICE.—Mrs. Mary Rose, receiver. Letters are received from Dorchester, through Puddletown, about 7.15 a.m.; dispatched at 5.40 p.m.; no delivery or dispatch on sundays. PUDDLETOWN (or PIDDLETOWN) is an extensive parish and small town on the river Piddle, 5 miles north-east from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, liberty of Puddletown, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a large handsome stone structure, principally in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle and south transept, otherwise called the Athelhampton aisle or chapel, north and south porches, and an embattled western tower with pinnacles and clock and containing 5 bells: the Norman font is wrought with trelliswork and foliage, and is very ancient: there are several effigies of the Martin family, and numerous altar tombs and brasses, all in the Athelhampton aisle: it has a splendid oak roof, which is much decayed: there are 480 sittings. The earliest registers date from the year 1538 for marriages and burials, and 1547 for baptisms, but they are not quite perfect until a much later date. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £450, with residence and 12 acres of glebe, in the gift of W. E. Brymer esq. J.P. and held since 1868 by the Rev. Frederick Earle Freeman M.A of Exeter College, Oxford. Here is a Congregational chapel, with minister's residence attached. Reading and recreation rooms were erected here in 1870 at the sole cost of the late J. Brymer esq. The houses are mostly compact and well built, with a few good shops. A market was held here formerly, but it has been for a long time discontinued. The fairs are held Easter Tuesday and October 29th: the fair was granted by Henry VIII. and the document bears the signature of Thomas Cromwell, vicar-general under Henry VIII. In 1638 Dr. Bradish, who was vicar of the parish, left the sum of £100 to buy a rent-charge of £6 yearly, which amount is expended in the purchase of great coats for six labouring men, 20s. is divided to four poor widows, and the residue for the purchase of Bibles, which are given to cottagers' children who can read. Dr. Henry Dawnay, also vicar, left £30 (probably about the middle of the last century); the interest is expended in the purchase of gowns for six poor women. Boswell's charity produces £15 18s. 2d. annually, and was left in the year 1868 for bedding, clothing and coals to be given to the poor and second poor of all denominations. Near Heedless William's Pond are the remains of a cross. Ilsington House, near the church, is the seat of William Ernest Brymer esq. J.P.: it is a handsome mansion, with pleasure grounds tastefully laid out in a park of 24 acres. William Ernest Brymer esq. J.P. owns a great portion of the parish, and is also lord of the manor. The soil is sandy; subsoil, chalk; there is much heath and moor land, with good shooting. The chief crops are barley, turnips and grass. The area is 7,653 acres; rateable value, £7,800; the population in 1881 was 1,175.

WATERSTON is a hamlet, about 2 miles west, and belongs chiefly to the Strangways family, of which the Earl of Ilchester is the head. Waterston House, a farm, is a very ancient stone building, one of the oldest in the county.

ILSINGTON is a tithing, 1½ miles south.

NORTHBROOK is a quarter of a mile north. There are many barrows on the downs.

Parish Clerk, William Hardy.

PULHAM is a small village and parish, situated on the river Lidden, 6 miles north-east from Cerne, 8 south-east from Sherborne, 13 north from Dorchester and 7 south-west from Sturminster Newton station, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Buckland Newton, petty sessional sub-division and union of Cerne, Dorchester county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Cerne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Thomas à Becket is a handsome Gothic structure of stone; it has chancel, nave of four bays and aisles, south porch, and western embattled tower with 4 bells, the fourth bell having been added by the present rector in 1884: it was thoroughly restored in 1870, partly from the designs of the Rev. F. C. Hingeston-Randolph, rector of Ringmore, Devon, all the windows being filled with stained glass: there is a good organ: the cost was partly borne by the parishioners, but chiefly by the late G. D. W. Digby esq. and T. F. Halsey esq. M.P.: the east window is in memory of the Hind family: there are 230 sittings. The register dates from the year 1734. The living is a rectory, yearly value tithe rent-charge £400, with residence and 44 acres of glebe, in the gift of T. F. Halsey esq. M.P. and held since 1874 by the Rev. Frederick Edward Tyrwhitt-Drake M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. There is a charity of £3, derived from land left in 1823, called the Monkwood Hill charity, which is distributed in money at Christmas to the second poor; also £100 in 2¾ per Cents, left in 1831 by the Rev. — Parsons, the dividends of which are distributed to the Sunday school children by the rector in clothing. The parish is divided into two manors, called East and West, John Kenelm Digby Wingfield-Digby esq. of Sherborne Castle, being lord of the Eastern manor and T. F. Halsey esq. M.P. lord of the Western manor, and they are the chief landowners. The soil is clay and sandy loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 2,370 acres; rateable value, £3,007; the population in 1881 was 269.

PUNCKNOWLE is a parish 4½ miles from Abbotsbury, the nearest railway station, 6½ miles south-east-by-east from Bridport, bounded on the south by the English Channel, in the Western division of the county, Dorchester petty sessional division, hundred of Uggescombe, Bridport union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Abbotsbury portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a small stone fabric in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, short tower with a very low conical spire and 3 bells by Purdue, on one of which is a curious inscription: with the exception of the north wall of the nave and tower, this structure has been rebuilt at different times during the present century: the font is probably Norman, the bowl ornamented with intersecting cable moulding, and stem, formed of the inverted capital of a large circular column, which has a bold face and foliage sculptured on it: the tower is probably Norman, the ascent of which is by a large circular turret at the south-east angle; over the keystone towards the nave is a date, 16 N. 78., R.M.: on the north wall is a mural monument of freestone composed of two columns with foliated capitals supporting a pediment on which are the arms of Napper; this monument was erected by Sir Robert Napper, knight and baronet, in memory of his father and mother, Ann, and his mother-in-law, Katherine, A.D. 1691: the helmet and gauntlets of a knight of the Napper family still hang in the church over the south door: there are 90 sittings. The register dates from the year 1630. The living is a rectory, yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of Col. Kemeys-Tynte, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Edward Denies Burrowes M.A., D.C.L. of Dublin University. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Puncknowle Knoll is a steep rocky hill, on which is a summer house, forming a landmark for mariners. At Bexington is a coastguard station, in charge of George Bendall, chief officer. Mrs. Morton G. Mansel is lady of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 2,040 acres of land and 120 of water and foreshore; rateable value, £2,194; the population in 1881 was 473.

PURBECK ISLAND lies in the south-east of the county, and contains the following parishes: CORFE CASTLE, CHURCH KNOWLE, LANGTON MATRAVERS, WORTH MATRAVERS, STEEPLE STUDLAND and SWANAGE, which see.

PYDEL-TRENTHIDE is a parish and very pleasant village situated in a valley and plentifully supplied with water, having some excellent springs in its neighbourhood, which feed the Piddle or Trent river, and extending nearly 2 miles on the Dorchester road, 8 miles north from Dorchester, 3 east from Cerne and 16 south-west from Blandford, in the Western division of the county, liberty of Pydel-Trenthide, petty sessional division and union of Cerne, county court district of Dorchester, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of All Saints, situate at the extreme north end of the parish, is a fine ancient Gothic stone structure, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, south porch, and a lofty embattled western tower with pinnacles and 5 bells: there are several stained windows in memory of the Bridge and Barkworth families; within the communion rails is a beautifully carved stone monument to John Bridge esq. of the city of London, who died in the year 1834: the church was beautifully restored in 1853, and has 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1650. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £100, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Winchester, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Sir George Ralph Fetherston bart. of the Theological College, Salisbury. Here is a chapel for Wesleyans (built in 1856), and one for Baptists (built in 1876) at Lackington, which is the southern part of the parish. Here are several barrows. This parish is called sometimes Piddletrenthide, sometimes Puddletrenthide, and less frequently Pydel-Trenthide; of these Puddletrenthide seems to be altogether untenable, and if an inscription bearing date 1487, on the west face of the tower, written in old English characters, be any value as an authority for the true name of the place, it is undoubtedly Pydel-Trenthide, for that inscription is "EST. PYDEL TRENTH' villa. in DORSEDIE COMITATU. NASCITUR IN ILLA QUAM. REXIT. VICARIATU." The Manor House, the property of Winchester College, is in the village, and is surrounded by fine pleasure grounds and gardens; it is occupied by Mrs. Bridge. The neighbouring hills command some very extensive views, the English Channel, Isle of Wight and Corfe Castle being distinctly seen from them on a fine day. The principal landowners are Henry Barkworth esq. and Winchester College, who are lords of the manor. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 4,487 acres; rateable value, £3,663; the population in 1881 was 747.

SHAFTESBURY.

SHAFTESBURY, a corporate and market town and municipal borough, is situated on the Wiltshire border, 102 miles from London, 28 north-east from Dorchester, 22 south-west from Salisbury, 15 east-north-east from Sherborne, 8 east from Sturminster and 12 north-east from Blandford; it is in the Northern division of the county, petty sessional division and union of its name, hundred of Monkton-up-Wimborne, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The town is governed by a mayor, elected from the town council under the directions of the Act 5 & 6 William IV. c. 76: the corporation act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. The Salisbury and Yeovil branch of the South Western railway was opened May 2, 1859, and affords communication with Portsmouth, Southampton, London, and also the West and North of England: the station at Semley, in Wilts, is 3 miles north-east from this town. This is a very ancient town, said to be the Mount Palladur Caer Septon of the ancient Britons, and was a Roman settlement: Roman coins have been found here: it rose on the ruins of Alcester, and had Pagan temples, on the site whereof an abbey, with a nunnery of the Benedictine order, was built and established by Alfred, A.D. 888: his charter in English and Latin is still extant: the site of the old abbey is well ascertained, though scarcely any remains of its buildings are to be seen: it was a place of great resort for pilgrims, and is said to have had one of the richest endowments in England. King Edward the Martyr, murdered at Corfe Castle by his mother-in-law Elfrida, A.D. 978, was buried here. King Canute died in Shaftesbury on the 12th November, 1035, and was buried in Winchester. In 1861 a stone coffin, containing a skeleton, and having also therein an abbot's crosier and gold ring, was discovered whilst some excavations were being made on the site of the old abbey.

Shaftesbury is situated on an eminence, the approach to which is by a steep ascent. The supply of water is derived from a large reservoir underground, pumped by steam power into an upper reservoir, whence the whole town is supplied. The streets are lighted with gas by a company. Some of the houses are very ancient, but the upper portion of the town is modern, and contains a large number of good houses, with excellent shops, hotels, banks and other buildings: many of the old buildings have been replaced by a better class of houses, and the streets have been much improved. St. James', or the lower portion of the town, consists chiefly of small tenements. A little to the south and west from the Holy Trinity church is a delightful promenade called the Park, sheltered from the north winds by a row of trees, partially extending over the walk: the view over the adjacent plains from this spot is most pleasing: this walk is one of the connections between the higher and lower portions of the town, and contains the Russian trophy gun mounted on its carriage.

The borough comprises parts of the parishes of Holy Trinity, St. Peter and St. James, and with some surrounding parishes returned one member to Parliament, but was disfranchised by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," and merged in the Northern division of the county.

Here were formerly twelve churches; there are now only three—St. Peter, the Holy Trinity and St. James.

St. Peter, the most ancient of the churches, is a building of stone and stands in the High street, the architecture of which shows that it was built in the latter part of the 15th century: the interior had succumbed to the influence of time to such an extent that it was pronounced unsafe: it has not been in constant use since 1878, and has only been used for service for a few months in the summer of 1886: since then the tower has been thoroughly repaired at a cost of about £700; a further sum of about £250 is still required to rehang the bells and complete the work: it has nave, a good organ and square western tower, which contains a peal of 6 of the sweetest toned bells in this county; they are of great age: this venerable relic of ecclesiastical note is of interest to antiquaries. The register dates from the year 1623.

The Holy Trinity church, situate in Bimport street, was rebuilt on the old site, A.D. 1842, chiefly in the Early English style: it is a handsome specimen of this kind of architecture, and consists of nave, aisles and large north and south galleries, with choir at west end, north and south porches and a square embattled western tower, 100 feet in height, with pinnacles, and contains 6 bells: the splendid organ was presented at the opening of the church by the late George Thomas esq.: it has a good east window, and will seat 834 people. The register dates from the year 1695.

The churchyard of the Holy Trinity contains three handsome avenues of lime trees, shading most of the walks through the burying ground and approaches to the church.

The parishes of Holy Trinity and St. Peter are consolidated. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £227, net £160, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Shaftesbury, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Frederick Ehlvers.

The church of St. James, situated in the liberty of ALCESTER, which is that part of the parish of St. James not within the municipal limits, is a handsome structure, chiefly Decorated, of greenstone, with Bath stone dressings, rebuilt in 1866-67, at a cost of £3,350, raised by subscriptions: it has a chancel, nave, aisles and vestry, square embattled western tower of 65 feet, with four lofty pinnacles, a clock and 6 bells: the chancel is paved with encaustic tiles: the aisles are divided from the nave by four arches resting on clustered piers with carved capitals: there are two entrances, one through the base of the tower at the western end and the other by a porch on the north side: the front of the porch is a moulded arch carved with capitals on clustered Purbeck marble shafts, with richly moulded bases: at the east end of the north aisle is an organ: the pulpit is of oak, elaborately carved: there are several stained windows: the interior is fitted with open benches and will seat 440 people. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, tithes commuted at £400, present gross value £324, net value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Shaftesbury, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Richard Thurlow M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, surrogate.

The parish has, in addition to the churchyard, St. John's burial ground or Bury Litton cemetery, the site of the old church of St. John's, all traces of which are now obliterated: this is situated at about 150 feet above the level of the main part of the parish.

The Society of Friends have a meeting house in St. James' street which has about 100 sittings.

A Congregational chapel was completed in 1858 on the site of the former chapel, erected in 1670: it is a handsome building of Bath stone, supported by four massive Corinthian columns of the same: it will seat from 400 to 500 persons, and the expense, £1,300, was raised by voluntary contributions.

The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, Parsons Pool, will seat 300 persons.

The Brethren meeting house, Salisbury street, erected in 1886, will hold 250 worshippers.

The charities of this town are numerous and valuable. In Salisbury street are some remarkably handsome almshouses, of very ancient foundation, for men and women, intended to hold 10 men and 16 women; both men and women have an allowance of six shillings per week each; the men's almshouses have been restored, and are a good specimen of Tudor architecture. The late Marquess of Westminster gave £5,000 in 1865 to these charities for the benefit of the women; and £1,000 was added in 1862 by George Wilkins esq. late of this town. There are a few other minor charities.

A Clerical Library, for the use of the neighbouring clergy, was established, with the assistance of the late Dr. Bray: this is kept in the vestry-room of Holy Trinity church, under the care of the rector, but of late years is not much used.

A Literary Institution, with news-room and library, was established in 1852, under the patronage of the late Marquess of Westminster; it has at present (1889) 72 members and 34 female subscribers; and it is well supplied with newspapers and periodicals, and has a library of about 2,000 volumes.

The Town Hall is a handsome edifice, built at the expense of the late Marquess of Westminster: a tower, containing a good clock, was added in 1879 by the corporation, at a cost of £264.

The Temperance Hall, in Bell street, was opened in the year 1878, at a cost of £775: it is a building of brick and stone, and contains in addition to the offices &c. a spacious hall, 52 feet long by 26 wide, and which is used for temperance meetings and lectures and will hold about 500 persons; an ante-room was added in 1883 at a further cost of £60.

The I Company of the 1st Volunteer Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment, have their armoury in Bell street.

The trade of the town is derived principally from the supply of the neighbouring agricultural villages, and from the sale of cheese and butter, the produce of the superior grazing land in the vicinity.

The market day is Saturday. A handsome Markethouse, 270 feet long, was erected at the sole expense of the late Marquess of Westminster, in which no tolls are taken.

The fairs are held on the Saturday before Palm Sunday, on the last Saturday in August, and 23rd of November, for sheep, cattle, cheese and agricultural produce, and pleasure.

The Westminster Memorial Cottage Hospital is a handsome structure, situated in the Park road: it was built of local stone with Bath stone dressings, at a cost of £2,000, raised by subscription, to the memory of the late Marquess of Westminster: it was opened by the Bishop of Salisbury on March 16th, 1874: over the arch of the front entrance is a fine oriel window with cusped heads, and pierced open parapet, and this is surmounted by a gable, in the face of which are the Westminster arms, carved in bold relief: the lower portion consists of convalescents' room, drug store, bath room, larder, kitchen and scullery; and on the upper floor are two wards, four single wards, and nurses' rooms: the hospital contains twelve beds, and one bed for accidents was added in 1884: the number of in-patients treated in 1888 was 65.

The population of the borough in 1881 was 2,312: Holy Trinity contains 988 inhabitants; St. Peter's, 895; St. James's, 1,001, including 93 officers and inmates in the workhouse; the area of the three parishes is 2,400 acres; rateable value, Holy Trinity, £2,860; St. James's, £4,565; and St. Peter's, £2,717.

LITTLE DOWN is a hamlet three-quarters of a mile north, consisting of a few houses and one farm.

ALCESTER liberty has a population of 458.

Parish Clerks, St. Peter's and Holy Trinity, Eli Brickell; St. James's, John Hayter.

SHAPWICK is a village and parish, situated on the river Stour, 5 miles west-by-north from Wimborne, 3 north-west from Baileygate station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, and 5 south-east from Blandford, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Badbury, petty sessional division and county court district of Wimborne, Wimborne and Cranborne union, rural deanery of Pimperne Blandford portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Bartholomew is an ancient and beautiful stone structure in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisle, north and south porches, with low western clock tower, containing 4 bells: it was thoroughly restored in 1879-80 at a cost of £1,300: Fredk. Keith Rogers esq. of London, was the architect; it has 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value tithe rent-charge £344, with residence, in the gift of Walter Ralph Bankes esq. and held since 1883 by the Rev. Richard Paget Murray M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and F.L.S. Here is a place of worship for Primitive Methodists. In the time of Henry III. there was a market. A small priory was founded in 1414. Here are the remains of a cross and likewise the curious British camp named BADBURY RINGS. Here King Edward the Elder once encamped. Walter Ralph Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is light loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 3,670 acres; rateable value, £3,191; the population in 1881 was 432.

STRAWBARROW and other barrows are near; Hemsworth is 3 miles north-by-east; Kingsdown 2 miles north-east. Blandford Down is one mile and a half north.

SHERBORNE

AND CASTLETON.

SHERBORNE is a market and union town, situated on the southern side of a hill, on the river Yeo, and on the borders of Somersetshire, with a station on the London and South Western railway, 18 miles north-north-west from Dorchester, 6 east from Yeovil, 11 north from Cerne, 2½ south-west from Milborne Port, and 118 from London by rail, in the Northern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of its name, county court district of Yeovil, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sherborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. By the Act 14 and 15 Vict. c. 98, parts of Sherborne and Castleton were constituted a Local Government district, and the town is governed by a Local Board of 12 members. In 1863 the portions of the two parishes not included in the Local Board district were added to the Sherborne highway district. The town is lighted with gas by a company, and the supply regulated by the Local Board.

Sherborne was for 336 years a cathedral city, having been constituted the head of a bishop's see in 705 by Ina, king of the West Saxons: in the year 905 the see was divided into several portions, one of these being formed into the bishopric of Wilton, the seat of which was sometimes at Ramsbury: Herman, 11th and last bishop of Wilton, on the death of Elfwold, became 26th bishop of Sherborne, and having united the two sees, transferred them to Old Sarum about 1076, whence the see was removed to Salisbury by Bishop Poore in 1218. Between 1122 and 1139 Bishop Roger of Salisbury amalgamated the Benedictine priory of Horton with Sherborne, which then became an abbey, and was rebuilt, only the western doorway of the north nave aisle, and part of the adjoining wall being suffered to remain; this bishop erected the piers of the central tower, the eastern chapel of the north wing of the transept and the south porch, the choir being arranged under the tower, with a rood loft: in the 13th century the Lady chapel was rebuilt, and in the 15th century cloisters were erected on the north side, and the present west doorway built by Abbot Ramsam: in 1436 the church was partially consumed by a fire, of which some traces are still left; Abbot Bradford rebuilt the presbytery, forcing the townsfolk to contribute, and eastern transeptal chapels were added, and the choir aisles extended to form other chapels: after 1459 the Norman triforium and clerestory of the nave were removed, the south aisle refaced and new windows inserted; the aisles were vaulted in 1475 and the Norman base story rebuilt. The abbey, which was mitred, was surrendered March 18, 1539, in the time of the twenty-third abbot, there being then eighteen monks, with a revenue of £682 yearly. After the Dissolution the church was sold to the inhabitants by Sir John Horsey, knight, of Clifton Maybank, the grantee of the Crown, for £200, in place of the dilapidated parish church of All Hallows, situated at the west end of the minster, and subsequently taken down.

The existing church consists of choir and presbytery of three bays, with aisles and clerestory and five chapels, nave of five bays with clerestory, aisles, transepts, south porch and a central tower of two stages: the choir and presbytery, Perpendicular, have peculiar fan-traceried vaulting, richly gilt, and decorated with shields of arms and foliage work by Crace of London; the bosses of the groining are carved with a fiery arrow, indicating the manner in which the church was set on fire: portions of stone traceried screens divide the choir from its aisles, and under the south tower arch are remains of a canopied chantry: the stalls and canopies have been restored: the east window exhibits in its tracery the three orders of Martyrs, and the clerestory windows are stained: the reredos, of Caen stone, designed by Mr. R. C. Carpenter, is enriched with carvings of "The Last Supper" and "The Ascension," executed by Forsyth; eastward of the presbytery is the Lady Chapel, originally of three bays, and south of it the chapel of St. Mary le Bow, both of which until lately formed part of the head master's house: on the floor of the presbytery is a brass with inscription, placed over the grave of Ethelbald and Ethelbert, brothers of King Alfred the Great: in the choir is a brass to the late Earl Digby, who died May 12, 1856, when the earldom became extinct; there is also a memorial to Beatrix (Walcot), wife of John, first Earl of Bristol; she died in 1658.

The north choir aisle contains a fragment of the tomb of Abbot Clement, 1163, dug up in the churchyard about 1860; it includes the head of the effigy and a portion of a pastoral staff, and is encircled by an inscription: Bishop Roger's chapel, Early English, and now used as a vestry, is entered from this aisle, and contains monuments collected from the nave and choir: the Wickham chapel adjoins it on the west, and is entered from the north transept: the ceiling is vaulted, and the south and east walls are relieved by arcading; in this chapel is the restored tomb of Sir John Horsey, knight, 1546, and Edith his wife, 1564. Attached to the south choir aisle is the chapel of the Holy Sepulchre, with a groined roof and piscina: St. Catherine's or the Lewston chapel is also vaulted and contains a canopied tomb, with effigies to John Lewston esq. 1584, and Joane his wife, 1579, erected by Sir John Fitzjames, knight; and the tomb of Abbot John Myer or Mere (1504-35), with effigy in black marble, bearing a pastoral staff.

In the north transept, which is boldly groined, and displays the finest bosses in the church, is placed the organ, erected at Easter, 1856, at a cost of £1,106, and repaired in 1878 at a cost of £300, raised by subscription; the south transept has a roof of Irish oak, with gilt bosses, brought here from Ireland by the Earl of Bristol: the very fine stained windows, illustrating the Te Deum, were designed by A. W. Pugin: here is a marble monument by J. Noel to John, third and last Earl of Bristol, who died September 12, 1698; and a tablet to two children of William Lord Digby, with inscription by Pope.

The nave, five bays in length, Perpendicular, has a very fine vaulted roof, described at length by the Rev. J. L. Petit, in the Arch. Soc. Pub. 1850; the north aisle retains four Decorated windows; in the south or St. Mary's aisle, is a memorial window to George Medd Butt esq. formerly M.P. for Weymouth, and a native of Sherborne, presented by his wife.

The piers and arches of the tower are Norman, and broader from north to south, than from east to west: the tower itself is Perpendicular, the upper stage receding on a set-off; it is at present 109 feet in height, with two windows, divided by buttresses, in each face, but was in 1885-86 completely restored from the designs of Messrs. Carpenter and Ingelow, architects, at a cost of about £4,000: much of the work has been rebuilt, and the parapet entirely renewed, with twelve crocketed pinnacles, instead of the former six, in accordance, it is believed, with the original design of Abbot Bradford. The tower contains a peal of 10 bells in the key of B flat, of which the tenor, weighing 62 cwt. 23 lb. and recast in 1865, was brought from Tournay and presented to the church by Cardinal Wolsey, and has the inscription,

"By Wolsey's gift I measure time for all,
To mirth, to grief, to church, I serve to call."

The first and second bells were added by subscription in 1558 as a testimonal to the munificence of the late Mr. Digby; there is also a sanctus bell, a fire bell of 1652 with the inscription:

"Lord quench this furious flame, Arise, put out the same,"

and a clock.

The nave and transepts were restored in 1851, at a cost of £13,868, under the direction of Mr. R. C. Carpenter, and the choir in 1858, by Mr. W. Slater, at an outlay of £17,847: and of the total amount nearly £18,000 was given by the late George Digby Wingfield-Digby esq. and about £8,000 by the late Earl Digby. The total length of the church is 200 (once 241) feet; width, 60 feet; length of the transept, 95 feet; height, about 60 feet. The remains of the abbey buildings now form part of the Sherborne School: the abbey has sittings for 1,550 persons. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £400, with residence, in the gift of John Kenelm Digby Wingfield-Digby esq. and held since 1868 by the Rev. William Hector Lyon M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and canon non-residentiary of Salisbury, who is also vicar of Castleton and rural dean of Sherborne.

In 1884 a monument was erected to the memory of George Digby Wingfield-Digby, of Sherborne Castle, in the form of an Eleanor cross, and is placed in the Abbey yard, on the site of the old town hall, and stands on octagonal steps. The base is of Ham Hill stone, moulded and with traceried panels; the upper part is of Ketton stone, and is beautifully moulded and carved and adorned with small shafts and pinnacles and flying buttresses, surmounted by a crocketed spire, rising altogether to the height of 29 feet. The details are in strict keeping with the abbey. At the south-west angle is a bronze figure of Bishop Aldhelm, founder of the abbey; on the north-west of Bishop Roger; on the north-east is Abbot Bradford, the builder of the main part of the present Perpendicular work; and on the south-east Sir Walter Raleigh, the builder of Sherborne Castle; in the centre of the south side, in a circular panel, is a medallion portrait, in bronze, of the late Mr. Digby, and below a plate with arms inscribed as follows:—

"To the memory of
George Digby Wingfield Digby
of Sherborne Castle, who, upon succeeding to a noble inheritance, made it his first care to complete the restoration of the Abbey Church, and after a life of generous beneficence died full of years, beloved by all classes of the community, this monument was erected by public subscription, 1884."

On the west side are the arms of the diocese of Salisbury, on the north those of the abbey, and on the east those of Sir Walter Raleigh. The work has been carried out from the designs of Messrs. Carpenter and Ingelow, of London.

Union Congregational chapel, Long street, founded in 1662, has 300 sittings.

Providence Baptist chapel, Abbey lane, restored in 1884, has seats for 130 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, near The Abbey, has 800 sittings.

The Brethren have a meeting room in Halfmoon street; it will seat 120 persons.

A Cemetery of about 6 acres, situated near Horsecastles, was formed in 1856, at a cost of £4,000; it contains two mortuary chapels and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

The charities distributed in money and kind amount to £190 yearly. There are charities for distribution, amounting to about £120 yearly, which are administered either by the parochial officers or by a body of trustees, and are given to the poor by annual distribution in money, or in kind, following as nearly as circumstances will allow the wishes of the donor.

The Yeatman Memorial Hospital was erected in 1865, in the higher part of the Abbey Precinct, at a cost of about £4,262, and a new wing added in 1869, at a cost of £500: this is a monument to the late Rev. Harry Farr Yeatman, of Stock House, chairman of quarter sessions, and was raised by a general subscription in Sherborne and in the county: it is supported principally by voluntary contributions, and contains 24 beds; the number of patients in 1888 was, in-patients, 154; out-patients, 212.

Sherborne was formerly a place of note for the woollen manufacture, on the decay of which button and lace making were carried on, which have been succeeded by silk mills; these are now in a flourishing state, are furnished with improved machinery, and employ a large number of hands.

The market days are Thursday and Saturday. The fairs are held on May 8, July 18 and 26, for cattle and sheep, and a large fair, well known as Pack Monday Fair, on the first Monday after the 10th of October.

A Literary Institution, now called the Macready Literary Institution, was established in 1850, with library and reading room attached. There is also a reading room in Cheap street, in connection with a Church of England Young Men's Society, and an Institute in connection with the Wesleyan body was established in 1887.

There is also a club for Young Women, and a laundry and training home for girls, the latter being the property of the Rev. E. M. Young M.A.

The Hospital of SS. John the Baptist and Evangelist was founded by the Benedictines on the site of an earlier Augustinian house, in the 7 Hen. IV. 1405-6, and refounded by Robert Nevill, Bishop of Salisbury, in 15 Hen. VI. 1436-7. The oldest portions are the chapel, with its ante-chapel, the hall and dormitories: the chapel has a south window of ancient glass: the ante-chapel opens into Trendle street and the doorway is flanked by bold niches, once containing figures of the patron saints: the room used for the meetings of the hospital masters contains a fine triptych, representing the miracles of Our Lord, removed from the chapel: the domestic buildings are separated from the chapel by a Perpendicular arch, inclosing an ancient oak screen: the buildings were enlarged in 1858, and the chapel restored and reseated in 1861 under the direction of Mr. Slater: divine service is held daily in the chapel, the vicar of Sherborne being chaplain: considerable sums of money have been bequeathed to the hospital at different times, including a benefaction of £4,000, left in 1865 by Mr. James Short. The hospital masters consist of twenty brethren, out of whom are elected a master, sub-master, steward and warder. There are 27 inmates, 18 males and 9 females.

The manor of Sherborne went with the bishop's see till the reign of Elizabeth, by whom it was alienated and given to Sir Walter Raleigh. Sherborne Castle, the seat of John Digby Kenelm Wingfield-Digby esq. J.P. was originally built by Sir Walter Raleigh, who erected the body of the house, on which, over one of the windows, appear his arms and the date 1594. After his attainder it passed to the ancestors of the present possessor, and the two wings were added by George Digby, 2nd earl of Bristol K.G. after the Restoration: it is in the Elizabethan style, and in plan resembles the letter H: the apartments are decorated with some fine paintings, among which may be particularly mentioned the famous picture on canvas, representing the procession of Queen Elizabeth to St. Paul's after the destruction of the Spanish Armada; there are also several fine portraits of the great Sir Kenelm Digby, and many other family portraits. A good description of the castle is furnished by Pope, who says:—"The house is in the form of the letter H, the body of which was built by Sir Walter Raleigh, and consists of four stories with four six-angled towers at the ends. These have since been joined to four wings, with regular stone balustrades at the top, and four towers more, that finish the building. The windows and gates are of a yellow stone throughout, and one of the flat sides towards the garden has the wings of a newer architecture, with beautiful Italian window frames, done by the first Earl of Bristol, which, if they were joined in the middle by a portico covering the whole building would be a noble front. The finest room is a saloon fifty feet long, and a parlour hung with a very excellent tapestry of Romans, which was a present from the King of Spain to the Earl of Bristol in his Embassy there." The dairy has a tesselated Roman pavement, discovered at Lenthay Common. A fine lake, bordered with trees and shrubs, separates the house from the castle ruins; there are numerous swans and other fowl. In the upper park there are fine herds of deer, numbering over 2,000. The park extends over an area of 470 acres and has five lodges—at Sherborne, Castleton, Crackmore, Haydon, and Gainsborough Hill. The surrounding country is very fertile, and varied with woods and hills. A splendid view is obtained from the hill known as "Jerusalem," the summit of which is covered with pines and other trees planted by the hand of Pope.

The area of the parish of Sherborne is 6,467 acres 31 perches, of which half is meadow and orchard land; rateable value, £27,591; the population of Sherborne in 1881 was 5,636, including 93 officers and inmates of the workhouse; of the Local Board district, 5,053.

CASTLETON is a parish and suburb adjoining the eastern part of the town, in the petty sessional division, hundred and union of Sherborne, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sherborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. All the houses in the parish, except about 12, were pulled down at the time the Salisbury and Yeovil railway was made, in order to leave room for an approach to the castle. The church of St. Mary Magdalene is a small building of stone, consisting of nave of four bays and aisles, and a western bell turret containing one bell: the material for the building is supposed to have been taken from the castle ruins: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1715. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £80, in the gift of John Kenelm Digby Wingfield-Digby esq. and held since 1854 by the Rev. Wm. Hector Lyon M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who is also the vicar of Sherborne. The Right Hon. John Earl of Bristol, by will in 1698 gave the sum of £100 for distribution, annual produce £4. Jonathan Beaton gave, by will October 30, 1717, a shilling per week to buy penny white loaves, to be given in the parish church every Sunday, producing annually £2 12s. This place takes its name from an ancient castellated residence of the bishops of Sherborne (originally built as a fortress by Bishop Roger-the-Rich, chancellor to Henry I. and Bishop of Sarum, 1107-40): it was a well-chosen position for defence, being protected by a large mere on the north, now a meadow, and commanding the ridge of hills on the south, and the valleys in its proximity on the north and west: during the Civil War it was held for Charles I. by the Marquess of Hertford, but after being defended against the parliamentary forces under Fairfax for sixteen days, by Sir L. Dives, the governor, it was surrendered August 15, 1645, and demolished by order of the Parliament in October of that year: it covered an area of 4 acres, and was originally octagonal in plan: the gatehouse, of three stories, covered with ivy, remains; as well as the ruins of the keep, state apartments, chapel and hall: at the east end of the court yard is a deep well. John Kenelm Digby Wingfield-Digby esq. is lord of the manor, and the whole parish belongs to him. The area is 69 acres; rateable value, £448; the population in 1881 was 81.

SCHOOLS :—

Sherborne School was re-founded as a Free Grammar school by letters patent of Edward VI. May 13th, 1550. In 1554 the governors acquired the Lady Chapel, the Chapel of St. Mary-le-Bow, the Chapter house, & other buildings belonging to & standing on the north side of the Abbey Church; a part of the Lady Chapel has been converted into a residence for the head master. This building was, about 1850, re-conveyed for the sum of £3,000 to the late G. D. W. Digby esq. who then erected for the school a new head-master's residence. The old school room was built in 1676, on the site of an ancient chapel; it contained a statue of Edward VI. now in the dining hall: to the left are the Bell buildings, a block of dormitories & other apartments. On the west side of the court are the Digby buildings, consisting of a library &c. & chapel, placed at right angles to each other; the former was the guesten-hall of the abbey; both have fine open oak roofs: the chapel stands on a vaulted Norman cloister leading to the class rooms & studies: it was consecrated February 17th, 1853, & has six stained windows: there are three smaller school rooms & forty studies, constructed from a portion of the abbey formerly used as a silk mill, but presented to the governors by the late Earl Digby in 1853, & restored from designs by Mr. R. C. Carpenter, at a cost of £5,000. The head master's house was erected in 1862, at a cost of £4,500. In 1879 a new school room was opened, which together with a lavatory & cloister, now occupies the west side of what is known as the Great Court. In 1883 a new block of class rooms was built, adjoining this at right angles. The school has four exhibitions of £40 a year to the universities, tenable for four years; one being given each year: the governing body consists of 16 members, of whom 3 are ex-officio, 5 representative, & 8 co-optative: there are 23 masters, 6 of whom are in holy orders: the number of boys at present is 330, inclusive of the preparatory school: the income from the endowment is about £1,200. Considerable additions have been made in recent years to the buildings, including new class rooms, laboratory, museums, workshops, swimming bath 50 yards long, & gymnasium & sanatorium; head master, Rev. Edward Mallet Young M.A. late fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; assistant masters, Rev. SPETISBURY is a parish and pleasant village, situated on the river Stour, over which there is a bridge of 9 arches connecting this place with Tarrant Crawford, with a station on the London and South Western and Midland (Somerset and Dorset) joint line of railway, 3 miles south-east-by-south from Blandford, 11 north-west from Poole and 120 by rail from London, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Loosebarrow, Blandford petty sessional division, union and county court district, Whitchurch rural deanery Milton portion, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese. The church of St. John the Baptist is of flint and stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and embattled western tower containing 5 bells, and was rebuilt (with the exception of the tower) in 1859: there is a monument in the north aisle to John Bowyer, d. 1599, and an old hour glass dating 1700: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1705. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Charlton Marshall annexed, joint yearly value (gross) £750, including 177 acres of glebe, with good residence, in the gift of W. S. Erle-Drax esq. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Samuel Arthur Walker M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here are Primitive Methodist and Congregational chapels. There is also a Priory of Canons regular: the house, formerly called the Mansion House, in 1800 passed from F. Fane to Mrs. Tunstall, who bought it for £3,150 for the English Augustinian Canonesses, who a few years before had returned from Louvain: they remained here until 1861, when they removed to their present priory, near Newton Abbot, Devon; the house was then occupied by the nuns of the ancient order of Brigittines: in 1887, the nuns having taken another house, the present owners, the Canons Regular, bought it for their ecclesiastical students: this order was well known in England before the Reformation, and its priests went by the name of Black Canons, and had houses in every county of England: a few years ago some members of this order landed in England, and have taken up again the work of their predecessors: there is a good church attached to the priory open to the public, where ceremonies are carried out in all the splendour of the Catholic ritual. Here is a hall let for public meetings. In the neighbourhood are the remains of a fortification, in which many coins and other relics of the Saxons have been found: it is called SPETISBURY RING, or Crawford Castle. The principal landowners are W. E. Sawbridge-Erle-Drax esq. of Holnest Park, Sherborne, who is lord of the manor, and Thomas Mackrell esq. The soil is a light and chalky loam; subsoil, chalk and gravel. Crops, wheat and barley. The area is 2,136 acres; rateable value, £3,019; the population in 1881 was 530.

Parish Clerk, John Knight, jun.

WEST STAFFORD (or STAFFORD WEST, with FROME BILLET) is a parish and pretty village, situated near the river Frome, 2½ miles south-east from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Culliford Tree, Dorchester union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church (not dedicated) is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a small embattled western square tower containing 3 bells: over the porch is the date 1640, in which year it is supposed to have been rebuilt: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £356, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of George W. Floyer esq. J.P. of Stafford House, and held since 1836 by the Rev. Reginald Southwell Smith M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford, canon of Salisbury. Floyer's charity of £9 3s. 4d. yearly, being the dividend on the third part of a capital sum of £1,000 Consols, left by the will of the late Rev. William Floyer, is distributed in money among the poor aged and infirm inhabitants of the parish. Stafford House is the seat of George William Floyer esq. B.A., J.P. lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is black loam; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley, with much pasture. The area is 995 acres; rateable value, £2,469; the population in 1881 was 199.

STALBRIDGE is a market town and parish, situated on the branch of the river Stour near the Somersetshire border of the county, having a station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, 5 miles north-west from Sturminster Newton, 5 east from Milborne Port, 7 east from Sherborne, 10 south-west from Shaftesbury and 114 from London by rail, in the Northern division of the county, Brownshall hundred, Sturminster petty sessional division and union, Shaftesbury county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, Stalbridge portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church, a building of stone chiefly in the Later Perpendicular style, and named St. Mary, stands on a commanding position at the north end of the town, and is a conspicuous landmark in the Vale of Blackmore, and consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, north and south transepts, organ chamber and vestry, south porch and western embattled tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells and a clock: it was considerably enlarged in 1840, and the tower was completely rebuilt in 1868, at a cost of £2,000, by the late Rev. H. Boucher, of Thornhill: the church underwent an entire restoration in 1878 under the direction of T. H. Wyatt; the galleries were removed, the whole church reseated with open benches, the organ removed from the west end and placed in a new chancel aisle, and the length of the nave increased by one bay; the whole cost amounted to about £2,800, Lord Richard Grosvenor, the Marchioness of Westminster, the late Rev. H. Boucher, the Rev. George Esmond Phillips, the late rector, Lt.-Gen. Sir W. Parke K.C.B. Mr. Allen and many other inhabitants being the donors: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1690. The living is a rectory, tithe rentcharge £1,100, with 53 acres of glebe, net annual value £350, with residence, in the gift of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and held since 1886 by the Rev. George Herbert Sing M.A. formerly fellow of that college. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels. There is a charity derived from money in the hands of the Charity Commissioners, called Boucher's charity (founded by William Boucher esq.

in 1818 and considerably augmented by his son, the late Rev. H. Boucher), which produces an income of about £70 a year, and is devoted to the maintenance of three pensioners, resident in the parish and members of the Church of England, preference being given to those living in Thornhill tithing. A market is held every alternate Monday, and the fairs for cattle are on the 6th of May and 4th of September. An auction is held here, at the Repository, on a very extensive scale by Mr. Allan Benjafield, for the sale of cattle, pigs and sheep, every alternate Monday on market days. In the centre of the town is an ancient sculptured cross of excellent workmanship and proportion; it is, however, much dilapidated. Robert Boyle, an eminent chemist and philosopher, lived here. Stalbridge Park lies on high ground in the north-west of the town and commands extensive views of the surrounding country: there is now no residence, the old manor house, belonging to the Marquess of Anglesea, having been pulled down about 1820. Lord Stalbridge P.C., J.P. is lord of the manor and principal landowner, and takes his title from this place. The soil is chiefly limestone; subsoil, limestone and gravel. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 5,681 acres; rateable value, £11,610; the population in 1881 was 1,816.

THORNHILL is a manor and tithing in the parish of Stalbridge, from which town it is a mile and a half south, near the Lidden: this was the birthplace of Sir James Thornhill, the eminent painter, whose ancestors had resided here for centuries previously, but his father becoming involved in difficulties, the estate passed into the hands of others: after the lapse of some years the estate was again in the market, and Sir James Thornhill became the purchaser, and pulling down the old mansion, designed and erected the present one: it is now the property of General Sir William Parke K.C.B., J.P. who has made extensive alterations in it. To commemorate the accession of George I. to the throne, Sir James Thornhill erected an obelisk in the park, which was partly blown down in 1836, but rebuilt by the late Rev. H. Boucher in 1874.

GOMERSHAY is a tithing, 2 miles east; WESTON, a tithing, one mile and a half south-west.

Parish Clerk, John Greenstock.

STANTON ST. GABRIEL is a chapelry, on the sea coast, 4 miles west-by-south from Bridport, and 5 east from Lyme, in the Western division of the county, parish and hundred of Whitchurch Canonicorum, Bridport union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Gabriel, erected in 1841, 1½ miles inland, is a plain stone building, without any architectural beauty, consisting of chancel, nave, west porch, western turret and one bell, and is capable of seating 108 persons; the old church is a picturesque ruin near the sea coast: the old rood beam has been restored and fixed in the new church; the register dates from the year 1825. The living is annexed, together with the chapelry of Marshwood, to the vicarage of Whitchurch Canonicorum, total gross value £700, net £300, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Richard Wykeham Stafford M.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, who resides at Whitchurch. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor. The land is held by numerous owners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, gravel. The land is chiefly pasture. The area is 1,052 acres of land, including 190 waste and foreshore; rateable value, £793; the population in 1881 was 71.

STEEPLE is a parish in the Isle of Purbeck, 5 miles south from Wareham, and 3½ west-by-south from Corfe Castle the nearest railway station, Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, hundred of Hasilor, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Michael, situated near the centre of the parish, is an edifice of stone, mostly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch, and small north aisle near the east end of the nave, belonging to Creech Grange, formerly the burial place of the Laurences, and another small south chancel aisle, belonging to the Blackstone farm, now used as a vestry, and a tower containing 3 bells: the south doorway is Norman: there are 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1548: the entries of the Bond family can be traced to the reign of Edward VI. The living is a rectory, annexed to that of Tyneham, gross joint yearly value £462, with residence and 24 acres of glebe, 5 of which are in Steeple, in the gift of Nathaniel Bond esq. D.L., J.P. of Creech Grange, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Christopher Wordsworth M.A. formerly fellow of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and prebend of Liddington in Lincoln Cathedral and examining chaplain to the Bishop of Peterborough. Creech Grange, the seat of Nathaniel Bond esq. D.L., J.P. is a noble and spacious mansion, in the Early Tudor style, partly rebuilt on the site and in the style of the old mansion: the two principal gables are surmounted by lions sejant bezanté, the old crest of Bond, and a similar lion over the front door holds a shield with the arms of Bond: the south front was added during the reign of William III. whose bust is over the south doorway: it is most delightfully situated at the foot of the chalk downs; the grounds are well-wooded, and exceedingly picturesque. There is a chapel of ease (St. John the Evangelist) in the grounds of Creech Grange, erected in 1746, but not used till 1840; it was consecrated by the Bishop of Salisbury in 1859; it was built from the ruins of Holme Priory in the adjoining parish, and contains a very beautiful Norman chancel arch, which was removed entire; all the rest is of modern construction: the chancel has a fine oak reredos and stained window. CREECH BARROW, a lofty conical hill of the tertiary formation, is in the immediate vicinity. This parish is principally the property of Nathaniel Bond esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, and Col. Pleydell-Mansel, of Smedmore, Kimmeridge. The soil on the south side of the hill which divides the parish is strong clay, on the north side it is gravelly subsoil, with a slight heather upper soil. The crops are principally grass, with some corn. The area is 3,362 acres; rateable value, £1,553; the population in 1881 was 295. The parish extends to the sea cliffs, and comprises 7 geological formations.

WEST CREECH is a hamlet, 1 mile north-west.

STINSFORD is a parish, most delightfully situated about 1 mile east from Dorchester, on the river Frome, which here abounds with trout, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of St. George, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Michael is a small ancient stone building, partly in the Norman style, restored in 1883, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a small square western tower, mantled with ivy, containing 3 bells: several stained windows and a marble and Caen stone reredos were presented by the late James Fellowes esq. of Kingston House: there are two fine monumental tablets of the Pitt family: the font of white marble was the gift of Mrs. Pitt; and the communion plate consists of a silver-gilt set, presented by Mrs. Strangways Horner, in 1737 and a smaller set, presented in 1819 by Mr. Floyer, who was then vicar: there are 190 sittings, all free. The register dates from the year 1535. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £190, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Ilchester, and held since 1837 by the Rev. Arthur George Sewallis Shirley M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford; the Rev. Charles Robert Baskett A.K.C.L. is curate in charge, and resides at the vicarage. Floyer's charity of £9 3s. 4d. yearly, being the dividend on the third part of a capital sum of £1,000 Consols, left by the will of the late Rev. William Floyer, is distributed in money among the poor aged and infirm inhabitants of the parish. Pitt-Strangways charity of £12, derived from land left in 1737 and 1740 by Mrs. Mary Strangways and Mrs. Laura Pitt, of Kingston House, is to assist in the schooling of children attending Bockhampton school. Darby's charity, of £1 yearly and £3 every third year, is derived from money left in 1655 by one Matthew Darby, for the apprenticing of poor children of the parish. Kingston House, the seat of James Fellowes esq. J.P. is a fine mansion cased with Portland stone, in the Corinthian style; there is a good sheet of water in front of the mansion. Stinsford House, the property of the Earl of Ilchester, is in the occupation of — Parry esq. James Herbert Fellowes esq. J.P. of Mortimer Lodge, Mortimer, Berks, who is lord of the manor, the Earl of Ilchester and Reginald Thornton esq. J.P. of Birkin House, are the principal landowners. The soil is black loam upon gravel; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are corn, with some root crops; also much pasture land. The area is 1,999 acres; rateable value, £2,911; the population in 1881 was 339.

The hamlets are—HIGHER and LOWER BOCKHAMPTON, about 2 miles east, KINGSTON MARWOOD, about 2 east, UPPER KINGSTON, about 2 east, and BOHMSTON, about 2 east.

STOCK GAYLARD (or STOKE) is a parish, bounded on the north by the river Caundle and intersected on the south by the Liddon, 8 miles south-east from Sherborne, 4 south from Stalbridge, 5 west from Sturminster Newton, and 12 south-west from Shaftesbury, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Brownshall, petty sessional division and union of Sturminster Newton, Shaftesbury county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Stalbridge portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. This parish has, under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act, been attached, for civil purposes only, to the parish of Lydlinch. The church, named St. Barnabas, was entirely rebuilt on the site of the old church and in the same form, by the Yeatman family, in memory of Harry Farr and Emma Yeatman, his wife, and was re-opened on the 23rd of April, 1885, by the Right Rev. Bishop Kelly D.D. acting as commissioner for the bishop of the diocese: it is a Gothic stone building, consisting of chancel, nave and south porch and bell turret at the west end containing 2 bells, and stands in the grounds of Stock House; beneath a recessed Gothic arch on the south side of the nave is the monument of the founder, a stone effigy of a man, recumbent, completely armed, supposed to be Sir Ingelramus le Waleys knt. who died about 1275, a Crusader or Knight Templar: there are sittings for 60 persons. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a rectory, and is held with the living of Caundle Stourton; the tithes have been commuted for £157, with 42 acres of glebe, in the gift of Mrs. Yeatman, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Richard John Milner M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Stock House, the seat of Major Arthur George Dugdale R.A., J.P. is pleasantly situated in a park of 80 acres, well stocked with deer. Mrs. Charlotte Yeatman is lady of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is mostly clay; subsoil, gravel. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 849 acres; the rateable value is now included with that of Lydlinch; the population in 1881 was 61.

STOURPAINE is a parish, situated on the river Stour, from which it takes its name, 3 miles north-west-by-north from Blandford, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Pimperne, Blandford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Pimperne Blandford portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of the Holy Trinity is a building of flint and stone in the Gothic style, and was rebuilt in the year 1858 by the then vicar, the Rev. Charles Tuffnell: it has a chancel, nave of four bays, south aisle and south porch: the western embattled tower is square with pinnacles; it was restored in the year 1871 and the bells rehung, a fifth bell being added, mainly by the liberality of Mr. Charles Flower: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1631. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £300, including 9 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, and held since 1867 by the Rev. Robert Rowley Watts M.A. of University College, Oxford, rural dean of Pimperne Blandford portion, and also rector of Steepleton Iwerne. The Wesleyan Methodists have a chapel here. On an eminence, called Hod Hill, is a fine and extensive British camp, containing within it the vestige of a small Roman work: the more ancient one of the Britons consists of a double agger and fosse, the outer ramparts being in the form of a semicircle: the camp has five entrances—two on the east, one on the west, one on the north and one on the south: in the area, which extends over several acres, there are many circular depressions in the soil, surrounded by shallow trenches, which are from 12 to 1 feet in diameter: while some labourers were digging for stones within the inner camp, they discovered numerous Roman relics, consisting of spear and arrow heads, fibulæ, knives, pruning hooks, and a variety of other articles, with coins of the following emperors:—Augustus, Claudius, Tiberius, Germanicus, Nero, Drusus and Caligula, from which it may be inferred that the Romans held a camp on this hill from an early time. Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox Pitt-Rivers who is lord of the manor and Viscount Portman are the principal landowners. The soil is a chalky loam, subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,272 acres; rateable value, £2,488; the population in 1881 was 563.

ASHE is a tithing half a mile north.

EAST STOWER (or STOUR) is a parish and village, through which the river Stour flows, on the high road from Shaftesbury to Sherborne and Yeovil, 4 miles west from Shaftesbury and 3 south-west from Gillingham railway station, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Redlane, Shaftesbury petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. Christ Church was built on the old site in 1841: it is a cruciform building of stone in the Norman style, and consists of chancel, nave and transepts, north porch, with large square embattled tower rising from the centre and containing 3 bells, and has three galleries and contains an organ, a stained east window and six other smaller stained windows: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1584. The living is a chapelry, annexed with West Stower to the vicarage of Gillingham, joint yearly value £1,529, net £340, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Edward Inman M.A. of Oriel College, Oxford, who resides at Gillingham. Here are a small chapel for Baptists, a Wesleyan chapel and a Temperance hall. Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster and Lord Wolverton, who is lord of the manor, are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, marl and stone. The land is chiefly in pasture. The area is 1,678 acres; rateable value, £2,978; the population in 1881 was 451.

STOWER (or STOUR) PROVOST is a parish and village, situated on the river Stour, 5 miles west from Shaftesbury, 5 north from Sturminster and 3½ south from Gillingham railway station, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Redlane, liberty of Stour Provost, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Shaftesbury, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, and embattled western square tower, with 4 bells and striking clock without face: there are three stained windows; that at the east end was presented by the late Rev. Henry James Slingsby, formerly rector, who also placed the handsome old oak roof in the chancel, part of which was taken from the north aisle: the other window in the chancel is to the Rev. Robert Abercrombie Denton, also a former rector of this parish; the one in the west end was placed by subscriptions, in 1882, in memory of the late rector, the Rev. Richard Arthur Francis Barrett: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1701. The living is a rectory, with that of Todber annexed, joint yearly value tithe rent-charge £780, with 41 acres of glebe, gross yearly value £745, net £550, and residence, in the gift of the Provost and Fellows of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Henry Whitting M.A. formerly fellow and dean of that college. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel at New Yeate and a Congregational chapel at Stower Row with 200 sittings. Archer's charity, arising from £228 4s. 11d. £2¾ per Cent. Consols, left in 1764 by the Rev. Benjamin Archer, then rector of this parish, is applied in education. There is a quarry on the Manor farm, producing stone suitable for building purposes and road metalling, and one flour mill in the village. The manorial rights are vested in the Provost and Fellows of King's College, Cambridge, who are the chief landowners: a court leet is held biennially. The soil is a rich loam; subsoil, rocky. The land consists principally of rich meadows, admirably adapted for dairy pastures. The area is 2,730 acres; rateable value, £4,779; the population in 1881 was 726.

STOWER ROW, a portion of this parish, is situated on the road from Shaftesbury to Marnhull, and is 3 miles west from Shaftesbury. The church of All Saints is of blue ragstone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and one bell, and will seat 120 people: it was built and opened for service in 1868 as a chapel of ease to the parish church, and was consecrated, together with the surrounding burial ground, in 1878: a stained east window was placed in the year 1882 by subscription, to the memory of the late rector, the Rev. Richard Arthur Francis Barrett (by whose efforts, and during whose incumbency this church was built): in the following year, at the west end, a two-light window was added, given by Mr. James Stone, to the memory of his son Stephen, who died in a decline, and was interred near the west porch.

STUDLAND is a parish and very picturesque village, embowered in trees, situated about 5 miles east-by-north from Corfe Castle, 3 north from Swanage (the nearest railway station) and 10 east-by-south from Wareham, in the Eastern division of the county, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, hundred of Rowbarrow, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Dorchester, Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The parish is situated at the eastern extremity of the Isle of Purbeck, and is bounded on the north by Poole Harbour, on the east by Studland Bay, and on the south-east by Swanage Bay. Studland Bay affords excellent anchorage for ships drawing 15 or 16 feet of water, but is open to the east and south-east winds. The church of St. Nicholas, a building of Purbeck stone, is a nearly perfect specimen of the Norman period; it consists of a chancel, nave, south porch and central tower with pinnacles: the erection of the tower, which has never been finished, was supposed to have been relinquished through the sinking of the chancel arch; the nave is a plain building of rubble work, with ashlar quoins; the chancel consists of one bay of groining, and the tower has groining of the same character, but more lofty: the arches are of the horseshoe character, which, with the circular heads of some of the piers, indicate the very Early Norman, supposed to have been derived from the Moorish: the east window, of three small lancet lights, is apparently of the Decorated period, and is a memorial; there is also another memorial window in the south wall of the name, to W. G. H. Bankes, who died at Lucknow from severe wounds received in action, April 6, 1859: the circular font is original Norman, and the tower contains 4 bells, one inscribed "Drawe neare to God," and bearing date 1065, evidently an error for 1605; the other bells are dated 1735: it became necessary in 1883 to repair the church in order to prevent it becoming a ruin, this was successfully done at great risk by Mr. W. M. Hardy, builder, of Swanage, under the direction of G. C. Crickmay esq. the characteristics of the original being strictly adhered to; during the restoration traces were found of what appears to have been Saxon work: there are 160 sittings. The register dates from the year 1532. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £195, including 62 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of John C. Mansel-Pleydell esq. B.A., D.L., J.P. and held since 1878 by the Rev. Charles Robert Digby B.A. of St Peter's College, Cambridge. There are a number of barrows on Studland Common, and a very remarkable insulated block of iron-stone, called Agglestone, about 80 feet in circumference and nearly 20 in height, surrounded by an artificial morass; Puckstone is another similar curiosity. The principal landowners are W. R. Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. of Kingston Lacy, and William Montagu Calcraft esq. J.P. of Rempstone Hall. The soil is various; subsoil, principally chalk. The chief crops are barley, oats and wheat. The area is 4,804 acres of land and 3,010 of water and foreshore; rateable value, £1,752; the population in 1881 was 607, including Brownsea Island.

GOATHORN is 3 miles north-west, and a quay on Poole Harbour, from which large quantities of clay are shipped. Redhorne, 2 north; South Haven, 3 north; Forked Down End, 1 mile south-west.

STURMINSTER NEWTON (CASTLE) is a market and union town and parish, situated on the banks of the river Stour, which, flowing through the vale of Blackmoor, empties itself into the sea at Christchurch, in Hampshire; it has a station on the Somerset and Dorset railway, 108 miles from London, 10 north-west from Blandford, 12 west from Sherborne, 5 south-east from Stalbridge and 8 south-west from Shaftesbury, in the Northern division of the county, petty sessional division and hundred of the same name, Blandford county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sturminster Newton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary was built by one of the last abbots of Glastonbury, in 1486 (of the old church, anterior to 1486, there is no existing record): it was in 1827 nearly rebuilt and considerably enlarged, at the sole expense of the Rev. T. H. L. Fox, the late vicar; it is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel and chancel aisles, nave of three bays, aisles and transept and south porch; the western tower, with pinnacles, contains 6 bells and a clock, and is part of the original building; its height was, however, increased at the time of the repair of the church: in 1884 the church was re-seated with open pine seats: the interior at the same time was restored at the cost of £600, which was defrayed by subscription: there are 580 sittings. The register dates from the year 1681. The living is a vicarage (the tithes have been commuted for £775, with residence and 79 acres of glebe), in the gift of Lieut.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers, and held since 1862 by the Rev. Richard Lowndes M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, canon of Salisbury. There are the following Nonconformist places of worship, with their respective number of sittings:—The Primitive Methodist 250, and the Wesleyan 300, each with Sunday schools: attached to the former a minister's residence has been erected at a cost of £440. There is also a chapel for Primitive Methodists at Broad Oak to seat 60 persons. A cemetery of 1½ acres, situated at the Bridge, was formed in 1882 at a cost of £1,200, one acre being given by Lieut.-Gen. Fox-Pitt-Rivers free of cost: it contains one mortuary chapel, and is under the control of a burial board of 12 members. Marsh's charity of £16 5s. yearly, is partly applied to the apprenticing of a boy and girl and partly given to the poor attending parish church; Moore's, of £9 12s. distributed in money; and another of £4, distributed in bread at Christmas; Hutchin's, interest of £105 9s. 3d. stock, with 14 acres of land, producing about £14, laid out in coals yearly; also a charity of the Misses Dashwood of £200, the interest of which is distributed in fuel yearly. On the Newton side of the river are the ruins of an old Saxon castle, within a vallum and ditch, seated on a hill: the ground-plan was in the form of the letter D. There is a market every alternate Wednesday, chiefly for cattle. A repository sale is held here on a very extensive scale by Mr. Allan Benjafield, for cattle, pigs and sheep every alternate Wednesday (not the market days). Messrs. Senior and Godwin also hold a sale for store cattle, pigs and sheep every Wednesday. The fairs are held on the 12th of May and 24th of October. The H Co. of the 1st Volunteer Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment is stationed here. A court leet is held annually, in the month of October. Lt.-Gen. A. H. L. Fox-Pitt-Rivers is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is partly clay and partly loam; subsoil is clay and gravel. The land is chiefly in pasture, with some barley and roots. The area of Sturminster Newton Castle is 4,240 acres; rateable value, £10,028; and the population in 1881 was 1,859, including 63 officers and inmates of the workhouse.

NEWTON tithing is divided from Sturminster by the river Stour, which is crossed by a bridge of 6 arches. BAGBER is a tithing 2 miles west, on the road to Sherborne.

SUTTON WALDRON is a parish on the high road from Shaftesbury to Blandford and Poole, 5 miles south from Shaftesbury, 4 east from Shillingstone station on the Somerset and Dorset railway and 7½ north from Blandford, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Redlane, Shaftesbury union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sturminster Newton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. A handsome church (St. Bartholomew) was completed in 1847 on land given by H. G. Sturt esq. M.P. for Dorchester, now Lord Alington: it is built on an acclivity near to the old site, in the Decorated Gothic style and consists of chancel, nave, north porch, with western tower and spire containing 2 bells: the church contains an organ: the entire expense of this structure was borne by the then rector, the Ven. Anthony Huxtable (late archdeacon of Dorset) and Mrs. Huxtable; the architect was George Alexander esq.; it was decorated by the late Owen Jones esq.: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1675. The living is a rectory, yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of Lord Alington, and held since 1871 by the Rev. Samuel Penrose Downing B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Lord Alington is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is various, chalk, green sand and clay; subsoil, principally chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is 1,105 acres; rateable value, £1,324; in 1881 the population was 188.

SWANAGE is a seaport, parish and railway station and rising watering place and town in the Isle of Purbeck, situated 10 miles south-east from Wareham, 6 south-east from Corfe Castle and 135 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Rowbarrow, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The Local Government Act of 1858 was adopted July 15, 1873, and the town is governed by a local board of 9 members, three of whom are elected annually; the board also forms a burial board. The line of railway connecting this town with the London and South Western railway at Wareham was opened in May, 1885. The port of Swanage is under the port of Poole. The old part of the town consists of a narrow, irregularly built street of about a mile in length; a new town has been erected on the Durleston Park Estate, the property of George Burt esq. (of the firm of John Mowlem and Co. of London), a native of Swanage, who, with Sir John C. Robinson F.R.S. of Newton Manor, is largely contributing to the improvement of the town. The estate is laid out in building sites, on which several houses have been erected; two miles of roads are made and the drainage designed in the most perfect manner: the Swanage Water Co. have an artesian well which insures an ample supply of pure water, pumped by steam power to a reservoir 200 feet above the sea, supplying the whole property. The properties of the water here are considered as good as those of Burton-on-Trent, as analyzed by Drs. Letheby and Graham, and is exclusively used by Messrs. Panton at their brewery, the produce of which has long been characteristically known as "Swanage Pale Ale." The town is lighted with gas by the Swanage Gas Co. The Royal Victoria Hotel, visited by Her Majesty, then H.R.H. Princess Victoria, in 1835, and by the Prince of Wales, is a good family hotel, with every comfort and convenience. The Ship Hotel for families and travellers is five minutes' walk from the railway station. The bathing is good, the sands being firm, clean and with a uniform slope at all states of the tide. To those fond of yachting and fishing, Swanage offers many attractions: good seaworthy boats and tackle can always be had. There is a pier, at which steamers plying between Poole, Bournemouth and Swanage land their passengers. The rides and drives in the vicinity are beautiful.

The daily variation in temperature is very small, amounting only to 10°; the sunshine is greater than in most parts of England and there is an entire absence of fog. Swanage Bay is a good roadstead in all winds except easterly, affording anchorage for vessels of from 300 to 400 tons within the heads of Peverel and Handfast points; a breakwater is much needed, which would greatly add to the safety of the bay as a roadstead; the long wooden pier is of great service for shipping the native products, large quantities of stone being sent from here annually. Purbeck stone, the staple of this neighbourhood, has for ages been an important article of export, but this has now declined, Lobsters are taken here. The church of St. Mary was, with the exception of the tower, entirely rebuilt of stone in the year 1859 to 1860 by voluntary subscription: it is a cruciform structure, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and tower; the latter is very ancient, supposed of Saxon origin; its massive walls rise in four stages to a height of 80 feet; it contains a clock and 8 bells: there are several good stained windows and tablets and brasses: on the south side of chancel is a memorial window to Rear-Admiral Sir Eaton S. Travers K.H. who died in 1858, and of Anne Palmer, his wife, who died in 1864; one in south transept to John Mowlem, who died in 1868, another to Susanna Mowlem, who died in 1849, and one to the infant children of George and Elizabeth Burt; on the south side of nave, one in memory of Elizabeth Sophia, wife of J. Davies Sewell, who died in 1880, and another in the north transept is in memory of Thomas Randall, who died in 1869: in 1888 4 new bells were added, each of which bears the following inscription: "To the memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Burt, who died at Purbeck House, January 6th, 1886:" there are 600 sittings. The ground now used as the cemetery, is a little to the north of the church, detached from the building. The register dates from the year 1500. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £550, net £300, with residence, in the gift of W. M. Calcraft esq. and held since 1887 by the Rev. Thomas Alfred Gurney M.A., LL.B. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is a chapel of ease at Herston named St. Mark's and a school in connection with it; also a reading room, built in 1867. A handsome Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1886, in High street, at a cost of £5,800: it is a stone building in the Gothic style, and will seat 600 persons. There are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels; also a mission hall, erected in 1872 by members of different denominations, which is now used by the Salvation Army: the basement of this building is fitted up as a workmen's hall and reading room. A cemetery of 1½ acres, situated at Northbrook, was formed in 1856 at a cost of £1,000 and is under the control of the Local Board acting as a burial board. There are three charities: viz., Toop's, a gift of £38, date unknown, which is invested in £2¾ per cent. Consols; the dividends are applied now in the circulation of relief and coal tickets amongst the deserving poor: Dudley's charity; this was a gift of £45 by will from Miss Dudley, date unknown; this is also invested in £2¾ per cent. Consols and the dividends are applied in the same manner: Isaac Fryer's charity; this was formerly an annuity of £5 for the poor of Kingston, Swanage and West Lulworth; the executors of Isaac Fryer's will were directed to purchase out of the personal estate of the testator a sum of £500 Consols for the purpose of securing these annuities. The Town Hall, in the High street, is a substantial stone building, erected in 1883 by George Burt esq. at a cost of £4,500; the front is a fine elevation with some handsome stone carving by Wren, formerly part of the front of Mercers' Hall, Cheapside, London. The Mowlem Institute, situate on the beach, was erected in 1863 at a cost of £1,100, entirely defrayed by the late John Mowlem esq. J.P. of this town, and also endowed with £200, invested in £2¾ per cent. Consols, for repairs and insurance, to which a sum of £800 has been added by Messrs. Freeman and Burt, partners of the late John Mowlem esq. the founder: the building is a handsome stone structure and was "established for the improvement of the inhabitants in the arts connected with their callings and in the principles of science and useful knowledge generally:" it has a well-supplied library of 1,450 volumes, a hall for lectures, attached to which is the reading room, well supplied with the London and local newspapers: the current expenses are met by annual payments of the subscribers and a nominal charge to casual visitors, which entitles them to full benefits of the institute. A Freemasons' lodge meets here every month, of which Mr. Mowlem was the first master. A well-proportioned pillar in proximity to the institute commemorates the naval victory King Alfred gained over the Danes in the Bay of Swanage in 877. No. 7 Battery of the 2nd Volunteer Brigade Southern Division Royal Artillery has head quarters in the town. An obelisk of Swanage stone at the entrance of the town is to the memory of "Albert the Good." A handsome clock tower in the grounds of Grove House and a prominent object from the bay was originally erected on the Surrey side of London Bridge to the memory of the Duke of Wellington, but the arrangements for the railway from Charing Cross to London Bridge necessitating its removal, it was presented by the firm of Mowlem and Co. to Mr. Docwra, who re-erected it in its present position. There was formerly a trade in straw plait, giving employment to a number of women and children: it was made into baskets, mats and other fancy articles, but the trade has declined considerably of late years.

On Peverel Point is the coastguard station, with a battery commanding the bay. Jutting out from this point into the sea is a dangerous ledge of rocks: a life-boat has been established here, and a light-house erected at Anvil Point, near Durlston Head, by the Trinity Board. It is about midway between the Portland and Needle lights, and lifeboats are also stationed respectively at Poole, Chapman's Pool and Kimmeridge. Purbeck House is the residence of George Burt esq. J.P. The chief landowners are the Earl of Eldon, who is lord of the manor, Captain Rogers George Burt J.P. and Sir J. C. Robinson, of Newton manor. The area is 2,923 acres of land and 240 of water and foreshore; rateable value, £9,455; the population in 1881 was 2,357.

Of the outlying farm houses the most ancient are Whitecliff, supposed to have been formerly a residence of King John, 1¼ miles north, and Godlingston, formerly a monastery, 1½ miles north-west; parts of the remains are of great antiquity; the farm buildings of Godlingston are very complete.

HERSTON is a hamlet, half a mile west; Tilly Whim, a remarkable ancient quarry in the face of the cliff, is distant 1½ miles south.

Parish Clerk, William Henry Tomes.

TARRANT RUSHTON (or RUSHTON) is a parish situated on the river Tarrant, 3½ miles east from Blandford, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Cranborne, petty sessional division of Wimborne, Blandford union and county court district, rural deanery of Pimperne Blandford portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is an ancient cruciform building of flint and stone, the architecture being chiefly of the thirteenth century, and consisting of chancel with Norman arch, nave and north and south transepts, the former in the Early English style, south porch and bell chamber containing one bell: it was restored in 1875, and contains some old stone tracery, notably a sculptured slab over the entrance, three perfect hagioscopes, of the Decorated period, one in the north transept and two between the nave and chancel: the piscina, also of the same period, is in good preservation, having a singularly beautiful cinque-foiled heading under an ogee arch: the church, which has a singularly pretty interior, underwent restoration from 1878 to 1887, and during the progress of the work the capital of a Norman piscina was discovered in a state of good preservation: in the chancel arch were also found two earthenware vessels, and the remains of what was once a very handsome cross, considered to have served as the cover of a tomb: the altar stone, removed at the Reformation, is still preserved in the vestry: the chancel has three stained windows, one being to the memory of the Rev. Francis A. Smith, d. 1877: in the south transept is another to Miss Isabella Wilson, d. 1887, and a tablet of brass with marble frame, to the memory of Captain Smith, who died 1885: there are sittings for 120 persons. The register dates from the year 1700. The living is a rectory with Tarrant Rawston annexed, joint yearly value £380, with residence, in the gift of Sir William Henry Smith-Marriott bart. and held since 1877 by the Rev. James Penny M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The rector has a fine collection of fossils peculiar to the county. Here was formerly an hospital, or charity, dedicated to St. Leonard, which was granted to the prior of Christchurch Tynham in the reign of Edward III. The principal landowners are Lord Alington, who is lord of the manor, and Sir William Henry Smith-Marriott bart. J.P. of Down House, Blandford. The soil is light loam; subsoil, chalk. Chief crops, wheat. The area is 1,891 acres; rateable value, £1,655; the population in 1881 was 170.

THORNCOMBE is a parish, on the borders of Somersetshire and bounded on the north by the river Axe, 3 miles east-south-east from Chard Road station on the London and South Western railway and 7 north-east from Axminster; it originally formed part of Devonshire, but was annexed to Dorset by the Acts 2 & 3 William IV. cap. 64, and 7 & 8 Vict. cap. 61; it is in the Western division of the county, union and county court district of Axminster, petty sessional division of Bridport, hundred of Whitchurch Canonicorum, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary was built in 1867, at a cost of about £4,000; it is a fine stone building in the Perpendicular style, embattled throughout, and consists of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south transept and western tower, containing 5 bells: the south transept was built at the sole expense and is the property of Mrs. Bertram Evans, of Forde Abbey: the church contains a monument to Sir Thomas Brook knt. who died April 10th, 1447; also three stained memorial windows to the Rev. Charles Egerton and Mary his wife and John their son: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1540. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £500, net £370, with residence, in the gift of Capt. John Arthur Bragge J.P. of Sadborow, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Charles Albert Bragge M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a meeting house for the Primitive Brethren, built 1881. Petty sessions are held here at the school house every two months on a Saturday, at which the magistrates for the Bridport division sit. A Hall, capable of holding 120 people was erected in 1889 by Miss Sarah B. Evans, of Forde Abbey.

Forde Abbey, situated on the banks of the Axe, unlike the neighbouring abbey of Newenham, was preserved from total destruction, and exhibits at this day the remains of a splendid building converted into a princely residence: the abbey was founded May 3, 1135, by Adelicia, daughter of Baldwin de Brioniis by Albreda, the niece of William the Conqueror: it was also of the Cistercian order, and one of the "greater Abbeys," being valued at the Dissolution, according to Dugdale, at £374 10s. 6d. and according to Speed, at £381 10s. 6d. yearly: the bones of the founder, and many of the early members of the Courtenay family, some of whom were munificent benefactors to the abbey, lie buried in the vaults of the church, which was dedicated in 1239, and measured 295 by 60 feet: the church, of which there are now no remains, consisted of choir, transepts, with aisles and nave with aisles: the abbey and some lands near it were given by Henry VIII. at the Dissolution to Richard Pollard esq. and after passing into several hands came, in 1649, to Edmund Prideaux esq. who was Attorney-General under the Protectorate, and who was probably the means of preserving the building at that period: the cloisters, on the north side of the church are in part extant, and include, in the east alley the chapter house (1165-90), with an east window of the 15th century, and north of it the vaulted common house of twelve bays (1190-1200) below the dormitory, the latter being now divided into various apartments: the north alley retains its vaulting, and here was the old refectory: on the west side was the hospitium: the portion of the cloisters now perfect, has windows divided by buttresses and filled with Perpendicular tracery: the parapet is enriched with quatrefoils and a series of 42 heraldic shields: the vaulting is of plaster work and the whole was erected by Thomas Chard, the last abbot: extending westward is the new refectory, 55 by 28 feet, built by the same abbot; it has a carved panelled ceiling, decorated in gold and colour and is lighted by tall mullioned square-headed windows: the eastern half is now divided into three stories, occupied by various apartments: the west wing was designed by Inigo Jones, and adjoining his porch is a Perpendicular tower of three stories, with splendid oriels on the two upper floors and an embattled parapet: the monastic kitchen is still in use: the abbey was surrendered March 8, 1539, by Thomas Chard, abbot, titular bishop of Solubria and coadjutor of Exeter: the 14th century gateway and conventual barn remain: some parts of the interior of the abbey are ornamented with splendid and valuable old Flemish tapestry, including five of Raphael's famous cartoons: the existing buildings, with modern additions, form the seat of Mrs. Bertram Evans, and contain some noble apartments. Holditch Court, formerly the residence of the Brook family, is now a ruin, and the chapel has been desecrated and is used as a barn; the castle keep and the ivy-clad tower still remain. Sadborow, the seat of Capt. John Arthur Bragge J.P. is an extensive modern mansion and commands a fine view of the surrounding country. Capt. John Arthur Bragge J.P. is lord of the manor, and holds a court leet every year, on the second Friday in October, at the "Golden Lion." The principal landowners are Capt. John Arthur Bragge J.P. and Mrs. Bertram Evans. The soil is chiefly light clay and stone brash; subsoil, flint. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and apples. The area is 5,331 acres; rateable value, £7,963; the population in 1881 was 1,118, including the tithing of Beerhall.

POST & M. O. O., S. B. & Annuity & Insurance Office.—Henry George Fowler, receiver. Letters through Chard, arrive at 8.40 a.m.; dispatched at 5 p.m. week days only. Chard Road station is the nearest telegraph office

THORNFORD is a parish, 2 miles north from Yetminster station on the Weymouth branch of the Great Western railway, 3 south-west from Sherborne and 4 south-east from Yeovil, in the Northern division of the county, Sherborne hundred, union and petty sessional division, Yeovil county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury Sherborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury; its situation is remarkably beautiful, overlooking the valley of the Yeo towards Sherborne on the east, and commanding views extending into Devonshire and the hill country of Dorset. The church of St. Mary Magdalen is in the Perpendicular style and has been restored at a cost of about £1,500, the late G. D. Wingfield-Digby esq. giving £1,000; it consists of chancel, separated from the nave by an ancient carved stone Perpendicular screen, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch, and embattled western tower containing 3 bells: there is a beautiful stained window on the north side of the chancel to the memory of the Rev. C. R. Dampier, a former rector, presented by his widow; another window has been added in the tower in memory of the late rector, R. H. Wingfield-Digby, by subscription; also a fine east window representing the Crucifixion: the reredos and pulpit are of stone, the former consisting of five panels, filled with Dr. Salviati's mosaics, and the latter of eight panels of inlaid marble: there is a good organ: the church has 220 sittings: at the entrance to the churchyard stands a stone and oak lych-gate, flanked by yew trees. The register dates from the year 1677. The living is a discharged rectory, a peculiar of the Dean of Salisbury, gross value £290, net £205, including 35 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of J. Kenelm D. Wingfield-Digby esq. and held since 1876 by the Rev. Wilfrid Roxby B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Here is a chapel for Wesleyans. In the valley below this village, especially near Bradford, Roman remains are frequently turned out by the husbandmen, and in one field there is a considerable portion of Roman tesselated pavement, apparently the floor of some of the offices of a villa. J. K. D. Wingfield-Digby esq. J.P. is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is Oxford clay; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are corn; some land is in pasture. The area is 1,407 acres; rateable value, £2,517; the population in 1881 was 413.

TINCLETON is a parish and compact village, situated on the north bank of the river Frome, 3 miles north-west from Moreton station on the London and South Western railway and 6 east from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, Puddletown hundred, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Whitchurch Bere Regis portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. John the Evangelist, a stone structure, was erected in 1851, in the Early Decorated style, on a site adjoining the old church; it consists of chancel, nave and north porch, and has a western turret containing a clock and 2 bells: a handsome reredos has lately (1889) been erected by Mrs. Porcher, in memory of the late Charles Porcher esq. of Clyffe, also a stained glass window in the chancel, in memory of the late Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Torin Kindersley, by E. L. Kindersley esq. of Clyffe: there are 175 sittings. The register dates from the year 1610. The living is a discharged rectory, annexed to that of Woodsford, joint gross yearly value £390, with residence, in the gift of Lord Alington, and held since 1877 by the Rev. William James Kendale M.A. of Caius College, Cambs. who resides at Woodsford. Clyffe, a beautiful mansion, standing on an eminence half a mile north of the church, and commanding one of the most extensive views in the county, is the residence of Edward Leigh Kindersley esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is light loam; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 886 acres; rateable value, £1,368; the population in 1881 was 146; wholly engaged in agriculture.

TODBER (or TODBERE) is a small parish, 5 miles south-west from Shaftesbury and 4½ miles north-east from Sturminster Newton railway station, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Redlane, Shaftesbury petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Shaftesbury, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church, dedication unknown, was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1879, by Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster, on the old site and in the original styles, partly Early English and partly Perpendicular; it consists of chancel and nave; the tower has been strengthened and supported by two well-proportioned buttresses at the S.E. and S.W. angles, the base of the tower forming the entrance to the nave; 2 bells bearing date 1736-7, one of which was recast in 1879: the north wall of the nave has been slightly projected, giving more space within, the chancel retains its old somewhat tiny proportions: a handsome chancel arch of Bath stone gives a beauty and dignity to the appearance inside, and a small vestry has been added on the north side: one of the old Early English two-light windows has been replaced in the north wall of the chancel, and filled with stained glass: an engraved brass fixed on the wall below thus explains the object of the memorial window:—"To the glory of God, and in memory of Richard Pratt M.A. of Merton College, Oxford, for 17 years curate of this church and Stower Provost, this window is erected by his old parishioners and friends. He was called to his rest Feb. 17th, A.D. 1878, aged 58:" a piece of old stained glass has been replaced in the east window: the communion table is formed of an old bevelled stone, found in the old floor, and from its size and mouldings was evidently the old altar stone; it is now supported on massive pedestals of oak: the old oak pulpit has been restored, it being simple but elegant work of the Caroline period: the old octagonal font has been used again, mounted on a handsome step, and standing in an open position near the door; it is surmounted by a carved oak cover. The register dates from the year 1653. The living, value £110, with 22 acres of glebe, is a rectory, annexed 150 years ago to that of Stower Provost, joint gross yearly value £745, net £550, with 41 acres of glebe, and residence at Stower Provost, in the gift of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1878 by the Rev. William Henry Whitting M.A. formerly fellow and dean of that college. Elizabeth Marchioness of Westminster is lady of the manor, and the principal landowner. The soil is sand and loam; subsoil, green sandstone, which is worked for building purposes and metalling roads. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is 384 acres; rateable value, £827; the population in 1881 was 167.

TOLLER FRATRUM is a parish and small village, situated near the river Frome, 9½ miles north-west from Dorchester and 1 mile south-west from Maiden Newton station, on the Great Western railway, in the Western division of the county, Tollerford hundred, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester, Dorchester portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Basil is a long narrow building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, without tower: there is a bell at the end of the porch and an ancient font: there are 80 sittings. The register dates from the year 1563. The living is a discharged vicarage, with the vicarage of Wynford Eagle annexed, joint gross yearly value £192, in the gift of Lord Wynford, and held since 1882 by the Rev. William Lloyd James, of St. Aidans. Browne's charity of £15 yearly is for distribution. The parish formerly belonged to the brethren of St. John of Jerusalem, and thence derived its name. Lord Wynford is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay and gravel. The chief crops are corn and pasture. The area is 500 acres rateable value, £636; the parish contained 54 inhabitants in 1881.

TOLLER PORCORUM (or GREAT TOLLER), with HIGHER and LOWER KINGCOMBE.

TOLLER PORCORUM is a parish, situated on a tributary of the river Frome, with a station on the Great Western railway (Bridport branch), 10 miles west-north-west from Dorchester and 150 from London, in the Western division of the county, partly in the hundreds of Beaminster and Redlane and Bridport petty sessional division, but chiefly in the hundred of Tollerford, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Bridport portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Peter, a building of stone, in the Norman style, has chancel, nave, aisles and two galleries, one erected at the expense of Mr. Brown for the school children, and a square embattled western tower with 4 bells: there are 160 sittings. The register dates from the year 1671. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £140, including 76 acres of glebe, net £110, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Blyth, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Robert McLellan Lawriston Lee. Toller Porcorum, or Swine's Toller, derives its distinguishing name from the great number of swine formerly bred here. George Browne, in 1774, charged his farm of Toller Fratrum with the payment of £15 yearly to the vicar of Toller Fratrum for distribution among sixty of the most industrious poor persons, settled parishioners and inhabitants of this parish and Toller Fratum, not receiving alms or parish relief, at the rate of 5s. each, which is distributed on the day after Christmas day. The Earl of Sandwich is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is strong clay; subsoil, clay and gravel. The land is chiefly pasture. The area is 3,144 acres; rateable value, £3,824; the parish contained 446 inhabitants in 1881.

FROGMOOR, half a mile south-east, BARROW LAND, 1 mile south-west, and WOOLCOMBE, 1½ miles south, are hamlets.

HIGHER and LOWER KINGCOMBE (or Kentcombe) is a tithing belonging to Toller Porcorum, one mile north-west.

TURNWORTH is a parish, 3 miles north from Shillingstone station and 6 miles west from Blandford, in the Northern division of the county, Blandford petty sessional division, union and county court district, forming, with the parishes of Belchalwell and Shillingstone, a detached portion of that part of the hundred of Cranborne which is in the West Shaston petty sessional division, being locally in the hundred of Pimperne, rural deanery of Whitchurch Milton portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a small edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays and north aisle, with a square embattled south-western tower containing 3 bells: it was originally built in the 13th century, and with the exception of the tower was rebuilt in 1869, in memory of William Parry-Okeden esq.: in the chancel is a stained window, and there are some memorial tablets to the Okeden and Twinyhoe families: there are 140 sittings. The register dates from the year 1552, and there is a list of vicars and rectors from the 14th century to this date. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £160, net £130, with residence and 22 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Reginald Townshend Selwyn B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Turnworth House, the seat of Lieut.-Col. Uvedale Edward Parry-Okeden J.P. lord of the manor and sole landowner, is a handsome and commodious mansion, pleasantly situated in a valley and surrounded by scenery of a most picturesque description. The soil is light; subsoil, chalk. The crops are wheat and oats, and there is excellent pasture land in the neighbourhood. The area is 1,149 acres; rateable value, £904; the population in 1881 was 115.

TYNEHAM is a parish, in the Isle of Purbeck, bounded on the south by the English Channel, nearly 5 miles west-by-south from Corfe Castle, the nearest railway station, 6 south-by-west from Wareham, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Hasilor, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, Wareham and Purbeck union, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a small cruciform edifice of stone, a great portion being modern and the main ancient portion has little of architectural character; the chancel is Early English and the south wall Decorated; it consists of a chancel, nave, transepts and west porch; there is a central bell-cot containing 2 bells: the south transept was added by the late Rev. William Bond: the north transept was a chantry chapel, belonging to the manor house: against the west wall of the south aisle are three very beautiful monuments of Caen stone, one in memory of the Rev. William Bond, former rector of Steeple with Tyneham, and a canon of the cathedral church of Bristol; and the other to William Bond esq. his eldest son, a police magistrate of the metropolis and recorder of Poole and Wareham, and the third to the Rev. Henry Bond, vicar of South Petherton; there are also other monuments: divine service was formerly performed in this parish only once on each Sunday in the year, and on Ash Wednesday, Good Friday and Christmas Day: in 1848 the Rev. William Bond, considering the increase of the population, gave the sum of £1,700 £3 per cent. Consols to the governors of Queen Anne's Bounty upon trust to pay the dividends half yearly to the rector of Tyneham, upon condition of his performing two full services, with a sermon, every Sunday, also on Good Friday and Christmas Day: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1654. The living is a rectory, annexed to that of Steeple, gross joint yearly value £462, with residence and 24 acres of glebe, 19 of which are in Tyneham, in the gift of N. Bond esq. D.L., J.P. of Creech Grange, Steeple, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Christopher Wordsworth M.A. formerly fellow of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, prebend of Liddington in Lincoln Cathedral, and examining chaplain to Bishop of Peterborough. Some interesting antiquities have been found in this parish: several of the barrows, which are very numerous in this neighbourhood, have been opened, and human remains, pottery and coal money found in them, a full description of which is given in "Hutchins' History of Dorset," to which Thomas Bond esq. was a large contributor. Tyneham House, the residence of Rev. John Bond M.A. and Thomas Bond esq. J.P. is a handsome structure of Purbeck ashlar, commenced in 1567 and mostly built in 1583, but considerable alterations and additions were made by the late Rev. William Bond in 1820; the east front has a porch and three gables, all of good proportion, and a new entrance in corresponding style has been constructed on the north side. There is no manor. The principal landowners are Nathaniel Bond esq. D.L., J.P. Rev. John Bond M.A. Reginald Joseph Weld esq. of Lulworth Castle, and Miss Richards. The soil is very various, but principally clay; subsoil, principally chalk. The chief crops are barley, wheat and oats; there is also some very good pasture land. The area is 2,840 acres of land and 75 of water; rateable value, £1,436; the population in 1881 was 275.

POVINGTON, one mile north, a hamlet, and formerly a manor, was, soon after the Conquest, given by Robert Fitzgerald to the Abbey of Bec, in Normandy, and at the suppression was given by Henry VI. to Eton College, and afterwards it came by exchange to the Crown, and was given by Edward VI. to the Duke of Somerset; after his attainder Queen Elizabeth (A.R.24) granted it to Edward, Earl of Hertford, who sold the demesnes and copyholds to the tenants, and thus extinguished the manor.

EGLISTON derives its name from Eglin, its ancient owner, anciently a manor and hamlet; it now consists of two farms, known as North Egliston and South Egliston, and a portion of Tyneham farm.

WORBARROW is a hamlet 1 mile south-west, at which there is a coastguard station, with a chief officer and 5 men. BALTINGTON, half a mile west; WHITEWAY adjoins POVINGTON, and was anciently parcel of that manor.

UPWAY is a parish, situated in a beautiful valley, open at the south and sheltered by lofty hills at the west and north, with a station on the Weymouth and Dorchester railway, 4 miles south-by-west from Dorchester, 141½ from London and 4 north from Weymouth, in the Southern division of the county, Wabyhouse liberty, Dorchester petty sessional division, Weymouth union and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The Dorsetshire Wey rises here and presents a beautiful fountain, formed by one of the largest springs in England, often visited by King George III. for drinking the water during his stay at Weymouth; it rises at the foot of Windbatch Hill, flows through several villages and empties itself into the sea at Weymouth. The church of St. Lawrence is an ancient Gothic fabric of stone, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, separated by piers and pointed arches, south porch with square western embattled tower, with pinnacles, containing 4 bells and a clock: in the chancel is a stained window, the gift of the late George Gould, of Fleet House: there is a carved oak pulpit, and a coat of arms on the gallery to commemorate the visit of King George III.: the church will seat 600 people. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £380, including 36 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Fredk. Broke Howell M.A. of Merton College, Oxford, chaplain to Earl Nelson. Here is a Congregational chapel, in the Early English and Decorated styles, to seat 300 people; also a Wesleyan chapel at Ridgway, built in 1870, to seat 200 people. The charities amount to £10 yearly for distribution, arising from a legacy left by Mrs. Daniells, to provide meat and bread at Christmas for the poor. A large Celtic barrow on John Mayo's farm has been opened and skeletons and bronze and flint implements were discovered. Eastbrook House is the residence of Arthur Edwin Sutton esq.; Westbrook of Robert E. Saunders esq. and Upway House, of Henry Charles Goodden esq. D.L., J.P. H. C.

Goodden D.L., J.P. and Miss Miller are the principal landowners. The soil is heavy clay; subsoil, clay and rock. The chief crops are wheat and barley, and some land in pasture. The area is 1,785 acres; rateable value, £4,849; the population in 1881 was 729.

ELWELL is an adjoining tithing where there is a barrow.

RIDGWAY takes its name from the Roman road.

WAMBROOK is a parish, situated at the extreme west of the county, between the counties of Devon and Somerset, and on the Wam brook, 2 miles south-west from Chard station on the London and South Western and Great Western railways, 5½ miles north-west from Axminster, and 12 from Lyme Regis, in the Western division of the county, hundreds of Beaminster Forum and Redborne, Bridport petty sessional division, Chard union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Mary is a small plain edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave and Early English north and south porches, with embattled western tower, with one pinnacle, and containing a peal of 4 bells : there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £214, with 27 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Admiral John William Dorville, of Great Malvern, and held since 1888 by the Rev. William Fretwell Newton M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. The principal landowners and lords of the manor are the trustees of the late Richard Thornton West esq. Stretham Hall, Exeter. The soil is stone brash and clay ; subsoil, flint and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The acreage is 1,857 acres ; rateable value, £2,114 ; the population in 1881 was 263.

WAREHAM.

WAREHAM is a municipal borough, formerly a parliamentary borough, but now merged by the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, in the Eastern division of the county, is head of a union, county court district and petty sessional division, and station on the London and South Western railway, with a line to Swanage, in the hundred of Winfrith, Whitchurch rural deanery, Poole portion, Dorset archdeaconry and Salisbury diocese, 125 miles from London, 17 south-east from Dorchester, 4 north-west from Corfe Castle, 8 south-west from Poole, and 6 south from Bere Regis ; it is situated between the rivers Piddle and Frome, occupying a rising ground, near their outfall into Poole Harbour, and consists of four spacious and open streets, intersecting each other at right angles, its area being nearly inclosed by high artificial ramparts of earth, and covering about 100 acres : these ramparts are of remote antiquity, supposed to be of British origin, and now form a healthful recreation ground for the inhabitants. Wareham was a Roman settlement, as was STOBOROUGH, and figures largely in history from the time of Canute to that of the Commonwealth. The space between the embankments and the present inhabited part has been converted into gardens, which are let by the lord of the manor at moderate rents. There is a substantial stone bridge of six arches crossing the Frome from South street, and connecting the county with the Isle of Purbeck, which was rebuilt about the year 1777. There is a salmon fishery in this river, but from the system of taking the fish out of season, on their ascending the river to spawn, it was nearly destroyed, but now under more stringent regulations has considerably revived ; the tides flow as high as Holme Bridge, 3 miles above the town. In 1762 the town, with the exception of three churches now standing, was entirely consumed by fire. Under a charter of Queen Anne (1703) the government of the town was formerly vested in a mayor, recorder, and six capital burgesses, but under the provisions of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1883 (46 & 47 Vict. c. 18) it received a charter of incorporation July 16, 1886, and is now governed by a mayor, four aldermen and 12 councillors, who also act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. There is an ancient court of record here, which has fallen into disuse, and is superseded by the county court.

The town is lighted with gas by a company.

This town contains three parishes:—Holy Trinity within, Lady St. Mary within and St. Martin's within. The churches of Holy Trinity and St. Martin are both standing, but neither of them are used for public worship ; the latter, now covered with ivy and forming a very picturesque object in North street, is only used for the burials of the members of one or two families. There are some traces of other parochial churches having existed in former times, called St. Michael, St. Peter and St. John, but the parishes have been consolidated with the others, and the only evidence of their existence is the name in the King's Books, which subjects the rector to a charge for first-fruits, tenths and land-tax.

The church of St. Mary is very ancient ; it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, with chapel, western porch and an embattled western tower, containing 8 bells, with vestry : the chapel in the south aisle is said to be the burial place of the Anglo-Saxon kings, and in it reposed for three years the remains of Edward the Martyr, who was murdered at Corfe Castle by Elfrida ; his bones were then removed with much pomp and ceremony by St. Dunstan and a numerous train of monks, to Shaftesbury : the nave of the church was rebuilt in 1841-42, and re-opened for public worship, September 29th, 1842 : the chancel contains a beautiful window, of the date of Henry VII. and the tower is a very handsome Gothic structure : near the west entrance is a font of the 11th century, it is of lead, hexagonal in form, mounted on a solid base of Purbeck marble, and on the sides are carved figures, representing the Twelve Apostles in high relief : in digging for the new foundation of the nave, a fine sarcophagus, of Purbeck marble, was discovered, supposed to have been the receptacle for the body of Edward the Martyr ; a slight groove surrounding the cist would imply that a metallic lid covered the remains on their being deposited, and which was doubtless removed by Dunstan : many singular inscriptions, on old stones, built in with the former structure, were also discovered ; these, it is deeply regretted were wantonly destroyed or built into the walls of the nave : from a small portion of the old structure still remaining, and which has been converted into a vestry-room, it would appear as if the old building was highly ornamented, and leaves the archæologist to regret that so nondescript an object as the new nave should have superseded the more artistic erection of the olden time : there is a monument to the Rev. John Hutchins, author of the "History of Dorset," who was formerly rector here, and is buried in the chapel formerly used for the burial of the Anglo-Saxon kings. The church was restored in 1882 from designs by Coulson and Son, of Winchester : the nave was reseated and the western gallery removed : the church was re-paved with Poole tiles and gas fittings introduced, the total expenditure was about £2,000 : the church is now capable of seating 1,000 persons, including the Sunday scholars. The Priory of SS. Mary, Peter and Ethelwold, founded by the Earl of Leicester, in the reign of Henry I. as a cell of St. Benoît-sur-Leyr, near this church is still standing : it was originally founded by St. Aldhelm, who died A.D. 709 ; in the year 1880 a double piscina, octagonal in form and of Purbeck marble, was discovered in the wall on the south side of the chancel. The register dates from the year 1762. The living consists of the rectories of Holy Trinity, St. Martin and St. Mary, with the perpetual curacy of Arne annexed, joint gross yearly value from tithe rent-charge £509, net £100, with 10 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of W. M. Calcraft esq. J.P. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Selwyn Blackett, surrogate. There are three chapels, viz. Congregational, in Chapel lane, seating 460 ; Wesleyan, North street, seating 250 ; and Unitarian, South street, seating 250. A new Catholic church, dedicated to St. Michael, is now (1889) being erected at Westport ; it is of Purbeck stone with Doulton dressings, in the Early English style, and consists of chancel and nave, and will seat about 200 persons.

A cemetery of about one acre, adjoining the church of St. Mary, was formed in 1882 at a cost of about £200, it contains one mortuary chapel and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members.

The Town Hall and Corn Exchange, situated in the Market place, is a Gothic building of red brick, with stone dressings, having tower and clock ; it is used not only by the corporation, but for other public meetings of the town and neighbourhood, and the sittings of the petty sessions of the borough and county justices; it contains a public reading room.

The head quarters of B Company, 1st Volunteer Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment, are situated in South street.

This town has long been noted for its extensive trade in potters', fire, pipe, tile and other kinds of clay, some thousands of tons of which are annually sent to Staffordshire, America, Stockholm, Belgium, France and other parts; the railway, laid down from the pits by Mr. W. J. Pike, with a gradual incline to the mouth of the river Frome, conveys the clay at a very trifling cost; there is also an extensive brewery belonging to Messrs. Panton, of Swanage: and there are brick and clay works at Sandford. The market day is Tuesday. There are two fairs, held on the Tuesday nearest the 17th April and 11th Sept. both for cattle, which are generally well attended; there are also five cattle markets, commencing about 14th February, and continuing every fortnight.

There is an almshouse for six men and five women, endowed by John Strech esq. and rebuilt in 1741 by Henry Drax and John Pitt esqrs.: each of the eleven almspeople receive seven shillings weekly, besides a new gown or cloak, beef and coals and Christmas: this income is continually augmented from the increasing value of the estate. There are also charitable bequests, amounting to £75 yearly, arising from Consols and land left in 1828 by Stephen Bird and others, divided annually in small sums to about 200 persons.

SANDFORD, the residence of Mrs. Rodgett, about 2 miles north-east, is a very elegant mansion, in the Elizabethan style, built of white brick of the neighbourhood with stone dressings: it occupies an elevated site overlooking Poole Harbour and Brownsea Island, and is well sheltered by fir plantations.

St. Martin's House, the residence of Freeland Filliter esq. is in North street.

The principal landowners are W. M. Calcraft esq. of Rempstone Hall, who owns the manor, the Earl of Eldon, Mrs. Erle-Drax, D. Sturdy esq. E. Sturdy esq. and Mrs. Rodgett, of Sandford.

The areas, rateable values and populations of the parishes are as follows:

| | Acres. | Rateable value. | Pop. 1881. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Holy Trinity, | 2,520 of land & 150 of water | £2,471 | 818 |
| Lady St. Mary, | 823 | 4,632 | *1,476 |
| St. Martin, | 4,033 of land & 840 of water, | 3,042 | 730 |

*Including 103 officers and inmates in the workhouse.

SWINEHAM is 1 mile east-by-north; Worgret, 1 mile west; Cold Harbour, 2 miles north-west; Trigon Hill, 2½ miles west-by-north; Giggers Isle and Broxes Isle lie at the mouth of the river.

STOBOROUGH Liberty is on the south of the Frome, over which is a substantial stone bridge to Wareham. The population in 1881 was 101.

Parish Clerk, Elias Dugdale.

WARMWELL is a village and parish, 3¼ miles south-west from Moreton station on the South Western railway and 6 south-east from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Winfrith, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of the Holy Trinity is a small fabric of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch, with low square western tower containing 4 bells: it was repaired and reseated in 1851: the chancel was rebuilt in 1881 at a cost of £1,300, defrayed by the Rev. E. Pickard-Cambridge, the rector, to whose wife a beautiful east window has been inserted as a memorial: the tower was almost entirely rebuilt and the bells rehung in 1887 at the cost of Lieut.-Col. A. B. Foster D.L., J.P.: there are 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1641. The living is a rectory, united to that of Pokeswell, gross joint yearly value £400, net joint yearly value £260, including 83 acres of glebe, 53 of which are in Warmwell, with residence, in the gift of Col. Jocelyn Pickard-Cambridge, and held since 1849 by the Rev. Edward Pickard-Cambridge M.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Warmwell House is a mansion of stone in the Elizabethan style, erected in 1600, and is the property and residence of Lieut.-Col. Augustus Billett Foster J.P. who is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats and turnips. The area is 1,532 acres; rateable value, £1,437; the population in 1881 was 173.

WATERCOMBE is 1 mile south and SKIPPET, forming part of Watercombe, 2 miles north; Watercombe, formerly extra-parochial, is now a parish in Dorchester union, but ecclesiastically attached to Warmwell, with 10 houses, 54 inhabitants and 378 acres, rated at £353.

WEYMOUTH and MELCOMBE REGIS.

WEYMOUTH and MELCOMBE REGIS are parishes which form a seaport and municipal borough, union and market town, the whole being usually known as Weymouth, which is head of a county court district, in the Southern division of the county, Dorchester petty sessional division, hundred of Culliford Tree, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury, 8 miles south from Dorchester, 20 south-east from Bridport, 24 south-west from Blandford, 28 west-by-south from Poole and 128 by road and 145½ by rail from London, on the London and South Western railway, and the Wilts and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, the station being a commodious building at the north end of the town.

By an Order in Council of 6th December, 1881, Weymouth was constituted a port, the limits to commence at Alban's Head, county of Dorset, being the western limit of the port of Poole, and to extend in a westerly direction along the coast of Dorset to the western bank of the river Char in the same county, being the eastern limit of the port of Exeter and to include the Island of Portland.

Weymouth is more ancient than Melcombe Regis, although the latter appears to have enjoyed more privileges. Between the two arose a great controversy; both enjoying like privileges, and both challenging the particular immunities of the haven and each having overthrown the other, they continually commenced new suits; at last, having wearied the Lords of the Council with their importunities, by the advice of William Cecil, the Lord Treasurer of England, they were, by an Act of Parliament, passed the 13th year of the reign of Elizabeth, amalgamated. Melcombe Regis is situated on the northern side of the harbour, and takes its name from an old mill which formerly existed here: the second part, Regis, from its being part of a royal domain. In the Norman survey, no mention is made of this place, it being then included in the parish of Radipole. Weymouth takes its name from the river Wey, over which there is a bridge connecting it with Melcombe Regis, which was reconstructed and widened in 1885. This town is situated on the English Channel, at the western side of a beautiful and expansive bay, which forms a semicircle, making a sweep of upwards of 2 miles, sheltered by a range of hills to the north and the Isle of Portland to the south. The site of the town is supposed to have been known to the Romans: its existence in the time of the Saxons is undoubted, and in the time of Edward III. it became a place of consequence: during the civil wars it fell alternately into the hands of the King and the Parliament, and subsequently to this period it sank gradually into decay and was merely an inconsiderable fishing town, till it began to acquire celebrity as a fashionable bathing-place through its beautiful situation and its convenience for sea-bathing. The Duke of Gloucester afterwards visited it, and in 1789 George III. and his family made it their summer residence, and having experienced great benefit from its air and sea-bathing, frequently honoured it with their presence: from these circumstances the reputation of the town was restored, and in a few years it was rebuilt and enlarged to meet the demands of its numerous and distinguished visitors.

The Harbour is protected on the south-east by a concrete breakwater, extending about 500 feet northerly from the Nothe fort; the pier forms the north-east and the Nothe the south-west sides of the harbour, which is now (1889) being enlarged.

The backwater, or estuary of the river Wey, is formed into a lake by means of a dam, and a small island in the centre has been converted into a swannery and there are at present about 150 swans on the lake, the property of the corporation.

The Esplanade is a handsome terrace, fronting the sea, about a mile in length and asphalted from end to end, and defended from the sea by a stone barrier; from this there is an easy descent to the sands, of which the declivity is so gradual that at 400 feet from the shore the water is not more than knee-deep: benches and seats are placed at convenient distances for the use of invalids, who may sit and enjoy the sea breeze, with a view of the extensive headlands to the east and the English Channel and Isle of Portland to the south. At the south end of the esplanade is a pier constructed of stone on wood piles, running out 1,050 feet northerly; at the end is an octagonal pavilion with promenade on the top: at the entrance to the pier are lavatories and ladies' waiting rooms: daily marine excursions are made uring the summer months by a service of steamers from this pier, which is also a favourite resort for morning walks.

The town is well built, paved, and lighted with gas by a company, and well supplied with water by a company, who obtain it from a spring rising at Sutton Poyntz in the parish of Preston, 4 miles north-east, and conveyed by iron mains: the town has a police force. The principal houses front the sea; the streets in the town are narrow and of great antiquity: the principal road to the town has been planted with trees: large numbers of houses and streets have been planned and built in the north-east part of the town and a new suburb has sprung up (in the parish of Wyke Regis), on the opposite side of the backwater, called Westham.

By the Municipal Reform Act the borough is divided into two wards, governed by six aldermen and eighteen councillors, from whom the mayor is chosen; they also act as the urban sanitary authority: the borough has a commission of the peace: this place originally returned four members to parliament, subsequently redueed to two, and by the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, it was disfranchised. The borough includes the parishes of Weymouth and Melcombe Regis and parts of the parishes of Wyke Regis and Radipole.

The church of St. Mary, Melcombe Regis, rebuilt in 1817, is a plain building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, galleries and west porch: in the chancel is a beautiful altar-piece, The Last Supper, painted by Sir James Thornhill and one of his best efforts; he for some years represented this borough in Parliament; the church contains a fine organ, erected by subscription, and has a full choir, and is capable of seating 2,300 persons, 500 seats being free. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, with Radipole and Christ Church annexed, joint gross yearly value £230, with residence, in the gift of Simeon's Trustees, and held since 1889 by the Rev. John Lovell Gwatkin Hadow M.A. Trinity College, Oxford, who is also a surrogate.

Christ Church is a chapel of ease to St. Mary's and was built in 1874 by public subscription; it is a building of stone in the Gothic style, and has chancel, nave, aisles, tower and clock and spire and a peal of 10 bells, which were the gift of Sir Henry Edwards, late M.P. for the borough: there are 450 sittings.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1836 from the parish of Wyke Regis: the church, which was erected at the sole expense of the late Rev. George Chamberlaine, of Wyke Regis, is a plain building of stone without tower, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, with east and west transepts, and contains gallery: in the chancel is a beautiful painting, by Vandyke, of the Crucifixion: it has a full choir: under the gallery, on the right hand of the entrance, is the baptistery: the font is of veined alabaster, white and brown, supported by four shafts of Devonshire marble on an alabaster base; it is octagonal in shape, in four of the panels being carved the symbols of the four Evangelists: in the smaller or east transept is a large seven-light stained memorial window; in this transept too stands the organ (J. W. Walker, 1867), above which is a smaller stained memorial window: the church has been restored, considerably enlarged and beautified, and reopened in 1887: there are 900 sittings. The register dates from the year 1836. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value £185, with house, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1884 by the Ven. Archdeacon Francis Briggs Sowter M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The area is 205 acres; the population in 1881 was 4,880.

St. John's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1856 from the parishes of Melcombe Regis and Radipole: the church is a Gothic structure of stone, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles and transepts, west and south porches, north-west tower, clock and spire, containing one bell: it has a fine organ and several stained windows, and was opened in October, 1854: the chancel was embellished in 1883 by the addition of a beautiful reredos in Caen stone and by mural decoration: there are 950 sittings. The register dates from the year 1854. The living is a vicarage, with residence, gross yearly value £500, in the gift of the rector of Melcombe Regis, and held since 1855 by the Rev. John Stephenson M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, canon of Salisbury Cathedral and rural dean of Dorchester Weymouth portion. The area is 170 acres; the population in 1881 was 2,563.

A Mission Hall, in connection with St. Mary's, was erected in 1883, at a cost of £500; it is a red brick building, with bands and dressings of Broadmayne stone.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. Augustine, in the Dorchester road, is a building of stone in the Gothic style.

The Congregational chapel in Gloucester street, erected in 1864, designed by R. C. Bennett esq. is an adaptation of Norman, with two spires 9 feet high, and will hold 700 persons. The Baptist chapel is in Bank buildings, erected In 1830, to seat 500. The Wesleyan chapel is in Maiden street, erected in 1870, to seat 800; it contains a handsome altar-piece and a fine organ: there is a small Wesleyan chapel in the Park, seating 108: the Hope Congregational chapel in Trinity street, erected in 1882, enlarged and rebuilt in 1862, and will seat 700: the Primitive Methodists' in St. Leonard's road, built in 1876, will seat 240.

A Cemetery was formed in 1856 at a cost of £4,000, about a mile west-by-north-west from the town, to facilitate the approach to which a bridge was constructed across the backwater: it comprises about 7 acres, and contains two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of a Burial Board of tweive members.

Many legacies have been left for the purposes of education, apprenticing, and for the relief of the poor; there is a fund of £100, to be lent to young tradesmen for three years; there are several societies for clothing the poor; also charitable institutions and benevolent societies.

In Wyke road are four almshouses, for the benefit of four poor widows of the borough of Weymouth, built in 1829, by the Rev. — Chamberlayne, with funds accumulated from a legacy left by Mr. Buxton.

A Port Sanitary Authority has been established, and an hospital erected in 1880 at Wyke Regis, at a cost of between £5,000 and £6,000: it is built of concrete and brick, and consists of four wards (two for small-pox and two for fever patients): each ward is isolated, and has room for 20 beds; the average yearly number of patients is about 18.

The Guildhall, in St. Edmund street, is a handsome building of Portland stone, with a fine façade and Ionic pillars, containing a public hall, magistrates' room, police station and lock-up.

The old Town Hall of the borough of Weymouth stands at the end of High street.

The general Market House is in St. Mary street; it has a very handsome front; attached is a small fish market; the market is held daily, and is well supplied with meat and vegetables.

There are four banks: Stuckey's Bank, situate in Bond street, R. and R. Williams, Thornton, Sykes and Co. (Dorsetshire Bank), in St. Mary street; Wilts and Dorset Bank, also in St. Mary street; and the Weymouth Old Bank (Eliot, Pearce and Co.), St. Thomas street. The Savings Bank is in St. Mary street.

Weymouth is the head quarters of the Queen's Own Dorset Yeomanry Cavalry, the 2nd Volunteer Brigade Southern Division Royal Artillery and the E Co. of the 1st Volunteer Battalion Dorsetshire Regiment.

The prosperity of the place depends mainly on its visitors; and since the railways have been extended to the town, the number of these has much increased. The exports are Portland stone, bricks, tiles and corn; the imports are coals, timber and wines. Ship and boat building, sail and rope making and brewing are carried on.

The Alexandra Gardens, situated at the south of the town, adjoining the esplanade, is an attractive pleasure ground, the property of the corporation, at the north end of which is a full length marble statue on a granite pedestal of Sir H. Edwards, formerly M.P. for the borough; at the north end of the esplanade are also other gardens, known as the Greenhill Gardens, laid out by Sir Frederick Johnstone bart. in 1872, and since maintained by him.

A yacht club was formed in 1875, called the Royal Dorset Yacht Club, and the Lords of the Admiralty have granted permission to fly the blue ensign of Her Majesty's Fleet, with a burgee with the distinguishing marks of the club thereon—a blue cross with red edge and a crown in the centre on a white ground: their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught K.G. joined the club as original members; the members now number 330, and about 150 of them belong to Dorset; the flag officers are, commodore, Lord Stalbridge; vice-commodore, the Earl of Eldon; rear-commodore, Montague Guest esq.; the united tonnage of their vessels amounts to over 12,000.

A Life Boat was presented to the borough in 1869, through the Royal National Life Boat Institution; and a new one in 1887 by E. Homan esq. of Finchley, who also gave £2,000, conditionally on the institution naming in perpetuity a boat to be called the Friern Watch.

The Masonic Hall, in Frederick place, is a chaste building, erected in 1826; it is in the Ionic style, and contains an organ and all the necessary appliances for the order.

Royal Victoria Jubilee Hall, St. Thomas street, erected in 1887, is a brick and iron building, and the property of a limited company; is 120 feet long and 91 wide, and cost £5,000: arrangements are being made by which, when completed, the hall will hold 5,000: it is used for concerts &c.

The Working Men's Club in Mitchell street, was built at the sole cost of Sir H. Edwards, late member for the borough; it is in the Romanesque style and contains a library of 1,200 volumes, lecture and reading rooms.

Weymouth and County Club, on the Esplanade, established 1862, has 80 members.

The Royal Baths, built for George III. are situated in St. Mary and St. Thomas streets; the entrance is through a lofty corridor, on each side of which are arranged the baths and retiring rooms.

At the top of St. Mary street is a life-size figure, on a granite pedestal, of George III. standing and robed; it was erected to commemorate the 50th year of his reign.

The Jubilee Memorial four-faced illuminated clock was erected on the Esplanade, by public subscription, the clock being the gift of Sir Henry Edwards, formerly M.P. for the borough; it is on an iron pedestal 44 feet high.

The Weymouth and Dorset County Royal Eye Infirmary was established in 1836; the present building was erected by public subscription in 1872: it is a Gothic building of Portland stone, and will make up twenty beds: out-door patients are relieved on Sundays, Tuesdays and Fridays, from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.; the yearly average number of in-patients is about 180 and of out-patients about 970.

The Weymouth Royal Hospital and Dispensary was erected in 1872, and is a substantial building faced with red and black bricks; it will make up twenty beds; out-patients are relieved every Tuesday and Friday; the yearly average number of in-patients is about 85, and of out-patients 1,751.

The Weymouth Sanatorium, founded by the late W. Johnson Smith M.D. in 1848, is for diseases of women and children: it is a stone building: it will make up twenty-five beds; out-patients (from all parts) are relieved every Tuesday and Friday: yearly average number of in-patients was for 1888 192, and of out-patients 1,007; a marble bust of the founder was unveiled in 1883, and stands in a niche in the entrance lobby; it is the work of Donald Haggart, of Glasgow.

The borough Fire Brigade consists of one superintendent, the whole of the police and five turncocks of the Waterworks Company. No. 1 station is in St. Helen's lane and contains two hose carts, stand pipes and hose fitted with instantaneous couplings, and fire escape and Tozer's patent hand pump; No. 2 station is in Chapelhay, and contains hose cart, stand pipes, ladders and hand pump.

The Theatre Royal, in Nicholas street, was rebuilt in 1884 and handsomely decorated.

The principal hotels are—the Imperial Burdon Hotel, Victoria terrace; the Royal Hotel; the Gloucester Hotel, Gloucester row; Victoria Hotel, Augusta place; the Crown Hotel, St. Thomas street; and the Queen's Hotel, King street.

The rides and walks in the vicinity of Weymouth are very delightful and abound in beautiful scenery.

To the west of the town, on an eminence, is a place called the Nothe and Look-out; infantry barracks are also situated here. A Fort, in the shape of a horse-shoe, stands on the cliffs and commands the bay from the east side of the Nothe. Further along the cliffs are the ruins of Sandsfoot Castle, erected in the year 1533 by King Henry VII.; it is situated at the edge of the cliff, and is fast going to decay, part of it having fallen into the sea.

The population of the municipal borough in 1881 was 13,715; of Weymouth parish, 360, including 67 in the infantry barracks and 162 officers and inmates in the workhouse; Melcombe Regis parish, 7,920; part of Radipole parish, 915; part of Wyke Regis parish, 1,250; the area of Weymouth parish is 52 acres, and of Melcombe Regis, 1,548 acres; rateable value, Melcombe Regis, £43,281; Weymouth, £9,772.

Schools.

Weymouth College.

There is accommodation in the school for about 60 boarders; the vice-master & science master also receive boarders at their residences. There is a large school-room, with class-rooms, lecture room, library, museum, chemical laboratory, botanical laboratory, carpenter's shop, bath-room, covered gymnasium, play-ground & play-field. In the preparatory school pupils are received from 7 years of age to prepare for Weymouth College. A scholarship of £40 yearly, tenable at the college, is offered biennially to pupils educated at Cleeveland House, under the Rev. A. Sewell

Scholarships & Exhibitions.—There are 12 scholarships worth £30 to £40 a year, & tenable at the school for 3 years. Three entrance scholarships, at least, are offered each year, & exhibitions value £20 to £30 a year given at the same time, if candidates of sufficient merit present themselves. An exhibition or prize of the value of £21 is given yearly to the boy who does best at the annual school examination. One scholarship of £50 a year, tenable for 3 years, is given annually to a boy who distinguishes himself in the University Scholarship examination, or in the Indian Civil Service examination, or the entrance examinations for the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, & for Sandhurst. The school is examined every year, partly by the Joint University Schools' Examination board & partly by the syndicate of the University of Cambridge. Prizes are awarded on the results of these examinations. There are all the usual adjuncts of a public school, viz. cricket & football clubs, hockey, lawn tennis, library & reading-room, debating society, natural history society, school magazine

WEYMOUTH COMMERCIAL SCHOOL.

This school was founded in 1862 by the late Mr. Edward Thurman on a purely commercial basis & was successfully carried on by the founder until his death in 1882. After his decease the school became the property of Mr. Samuel Bragge, who was succeeded by the present principal (Henry John Rogers M.C.P.) in 1886. Mr. Rogers was for many years under the tuition of the founder & for some time senior assistant master. The subjects taught are thorough english, latin, french, book-keeping, mathematics, drilling, drawing, shorthand & music. The terms are moderate; boarders & day scholars are received & at this time the school numbers 70, thus showing the appreciation by the public of the education given by the present principal, who is assisted by three resident masters & visiting professors. The school room is separate from the house, which is situated in one of the best parts of the town. Boarders receive every home comfort & supervision. The school is annually examined by the College of Preceptors & boys are also prepared for the Cambridge Local & other examinations

WEYMOUTH HIGH SCHOOL.

WHITCHURCH CANONICORUM is a very large parish, over 6 miles in length from east to west and 4 in width, on the river Char, 4½ miles north-east from Lyme Regis, 5 west-north-west from Bridport railway station and 2½ north-east from Charmouth, in the Western division of the county, hundred of its name, Bridport petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport Lyme portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. White, or Candida and the Holy Cross, originally dedicated to the saint only, is a fine cruciform building of stone, showing various styles of architecture; it consists of chancel, nave of four bays with clerestory, aisles, transepts and south porch, and embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and peal of 5 bells: the tower, south porch and transepts are Perpendicular; the south arcade, a fine specimen of Norman work, and the north arcade is Early English: in the north transept is an old tomb supposed to be the shrine of St. Candida, and the chancel contains a very curious elaborately carved monument to John Jeffery, of Catherstone knt. dated 1611: there are 312 sittings. The parish register dates from the year 1560. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelries of Marshwood and Stanton St. Gabriel annexed, gross joint yearly value, £700, net £300, with residence and 40 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1886 by the Rev. John Richard Wykeham Stafford M.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford. There is a small chapel of ease, St. John the Baptist, at Fish Pond Bottom, a stone building consisting only of a nave and a western turret containing one bell, and has 80 sittings.

There is a Congregational chapel at Morecombelake.

Salter's charity of £10 yearly and Bullen's of £12 yearly, derived from interest of £500 in funds, is for linen and blankets. From Conig Castle Hill in the north of the parish, and Hardown Hill in the west, fine views of the surrounding scenery and of the English Channel are obtained: on the former hill is an ancient entrenchment. The land is all held by small owners. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Sarum. Henry Knight esq. is lord of the manor of Wells. Large quantities of cows are kept in this parish, and wheat, barley, oats and beans are grown here. The soil is various, but principally a light clay; subsoil, red sand and strong clay. The area is 4,103 acres; rateable value, £5,957; the population in 1881 was 1,124.

MORECOMBELAKE and RYAL are hamlets 1 mile south and south-east.

WHITCOMBE is a parish and very small village, situated 3 miles south-east from Dorchester, on the road from Dorchester to Wareham, in the Southern division of the county, Dorchester petty sessional division, union and county court district, hundred of Culliford Tree, rural deanery of Dorchester, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church (not dedicated) is a small ancient building of stone, partly Saxon, with several modern additions of mixed architecture, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and embattled western tower with 2 bells: the burial ground contains several ancient tombs, one bearing date 1626: there are 60 sittings. The register dates from the year 1696. The living is a donative, yearly value £13 13s. in the gift of the Earl of Portarlington, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Herbert John Underhill Charlton M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who is also rector of Winterborne Came, where he resides. The Earl of Portarlington is lord of the manor and the sole landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 738 acres, comprised in one farm; rateable value, £731; the population in 1881 was 68.

Letters are received from Dorchester viâ Winterborne Came at 6 a.m. The nearest money order office is at Broadmayne & telegraph office at Dorchester.

The children of the parish attend the school at Winterborne Came

WIMBORNE (or WIMBORNE MINSTER) is a market and union town, head of a county court district and petty sessional division, 10 miles north-west from Bournemouth, 25¾ east-by-north from Dorchester, 10 south-east from Blandford, 6 north from Poole and 114½ from London, having a station known as the Wimborne Junction, on the South Western and Somerset and Dorset railways, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Badbury, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury; the town is supplied with water by the Wimborne Minster Water Works Co. established in 1887 by a company with a capital of £8,000 in £16 shares, works at Walford, and is supplied with gas by the Wimborne Gas Co. Limited. From the small river Wim, or Allen, and the Saxon word "bourne" (a brook), and its minster, its name is derived. It is called by Richard of Cirencester "Venta" and "Ventageladia;" by Antonine, "Vindocladia;" and by Ravenna, "Bindogladia;" the Saxons called it "Viburnan," and Henry of Huntingdon styles it "Winburnham." During the Saxon period, according to Camden, it was a place of much note and may have been a Roman station.

The collegiate church of St. Cuthberga belonged to a college of secular canons founded here in 1043 by Edward the Confessor, on the site of the nunnery of St. Mary, founded by Cuthberga, sister of Ina, King of the West Saxons, in A.D. 712, and destroyed by the Danes in the reign of Ethelred the Unready, 978-1015. In 11 Edward II. (1317-18) the church and college were declared to be free from ordinary ecclesiastical jurisdiction, a privilege confirmed in the succeeding reign: the list of deans is complete from 1224 to 1547, in which year the college was dissolved.

The church is a cruciform structure, consisting of choir and presbytery, with aisles, transepts, central tower, nave of 6 bays, with aisles, north and south porches, crypt below the choir, sacristy and a western tower containing clock, 8 bells in the key of D, and chimes which play every four hours: the total interior length is 182 feet; width, 51 feet; length of transept, 102 feet.

The finest part of the building is the Early English choir and presbytery, 1220, an addition to the Norman choir, one arch of which remains next to the tower piers: the clerestory of the choir was several times altered and finally removed: the fine east window consists of a triplet of lancets with foliated openings above; inside, these are divided by clustered shafts of Purbeck marble, supporting foliaged caps and elaborate mouldings round the head of each light: the arched ceiling is of wood: on the south side are three graduated sedilia, with canopies, continued over a piscina: the reredos is adorned with fine mosaic work, encaustic tiles and carving in Belgian marble: fourteen of the eighteen stalls, dating from 1610, remain, but the screen and canopies have been removed: below the choir is a Decorated crypt, vaulted and divided by columns into three aisles; it is lighted by four windows and has openings above into the choir aisles: on the south side is a small stoup: the presbytery is considerably higher than the rest of the church and is approached by fifteen steps disposed at intervals: on the south side is an altar-tomb, with alabaster effigies, to John Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, 1444 (grandson of John of Gaunt), and Margaret (Beauchamp), his wife; and opposite, another altar-tomb to Gertrude (Blount), wife of Henry Courtenay, Marquess of Exeter, 1557; near this tomb is a floor slab of Purbeck marble, with a copper plate bearing an inscription to King Ethelred, eldest brother of Alfred the Great, who was buried here in 871: the north choir aisle, also called St. George's aisle, retains a piscina in the east wall and a chest with six locks, containing muniments belonging to the trustees of Collett's charity, founded in 1621: here also is the parish chest, the records preserved in which include accounts from 1475: there is a fine mural monument in the Renaissance style to Sir Edmund Uvedale knt. 1606, with effigy in plate armour recumbent on a high base; also the mutilated effigy of a Crusader, bearing a shield with the arms of Herbert: the south choir, or Trinity aisle, has a piscina and contains a chest formed out of solid oak trunk with six locks: in this aisle is a brass to William Smith B.D. fellow of Eton College, schoolmaster, vicar of Sturminster Marshall and preacher here, 1587: and a tomb, with arms, to Anthony Ettricke, first recorder of Poole, who as a magistrate committed the Duke of Monmouth, 1703: on the east tower pier is a brass to Eleanor Dickenson, 1571: and there remains a portion of the tomb of John de Berwick, dean, 1312: in this aisle was a chantry, founded by Margaret, Countess of Richmond, in 1496.

The arms of the transepts are unequal; the north wing includes Bembre's chantry, an addition in the Decorated period to the original Norman work, and it retains a Norman stoup: the south wing has an altar recess and aumbry, and in the south wall a fine Norman piscina: at the intersection are the massive Norman piers and arches sustaining the central tower; these constitute the oldest portion of the existing church and formed part of the original fabric: the lantern has triforium and clerestory, and with the exception of the topmost storey is open to the church: the exterior exhibits interlaced arcading, and over this a corbel table, surmounted by a heavy embattled parapet and pinnacles, added after the fall of the spire in 1600: the total height is 80·5 feet.

The nave, Transition Norman, is of six bays, the easternmost being the smallest; the next three are of later date, and the two westernmost Decorated; between the Norman and Decorated portions are traces of the original Norman west front: the clerestory is Perpendicular, 1448-84, and has square-headed lights: the nave aisles are Decorated, c. 1350: the north porch of two bays, early in the same period, is vaulted and has a parvise over: the turre stair was removed in 1668: the south porch is small and plain: in the north aisle is a mural monument of white marble to Thomas Hanham, 1650, and Margaret (Doddington) his wife.

The western tower, erected at intervals between 1448 and 1464, is 87 feet in height, disposed in four stages, with an embattled parapet, having at each angle an octagonal turret, pinnacled: on the restoration of the church the tower arch was opened, and a western screen reconstructed in part from the remains of the ancient screen: the ceiling of the lower stage is vaulted, and here is placed the font, a plain octagonal basin of Purbeck marble, on a spirally carved shaft: on the south wall is a curious old orrery on the Ptolemaic system, with the earth in the centre, worked by a rod from the clock, and dating from c. 1320.

Attached to the south choir aisle is a vaulted sacristy of the Decorated period, and over it a Perpendicular library, reached by a turret stair; the books were given in 1686 by the Rev. William Stone, for the free use of the townsfolk; they are about 243 in number, many having chains, and include Walton's Polyglot Bible, 1657, 7 vols. a Black Letter Bible, 1595, Raleigh's History of the world, 1614, and a M.S. dated 1343, which contains Arabic numerals: portions of alabaster sculpture, a Purbeck marble cross and an ancient alms box are also preserved here.

The brass eagle lectern was given by Anthony Wareham in 1623; the hexagonal pulpit of Caen stone and Derbyshire marble was presented by Lord Alington in 1868 and bears fine carvings of the Beatitudes, by Earp: thirty-six of the windows are filled with stained glass, including the Eastern triplet, which retains some 15th century glass, brought from a Belgian convent, and a memorial window, erected in the north aisle in 1884 to the late Dr. Druitt M.D.: the organ was entirely rebuilt in 1867, under the direction of Mr. Whitehead Smith; it contains 2,318 pipes, some of which are over 200 years old: the choir and presbytery were restored in 1855, and the nave and western tower in 1857: there are sittings for 1,000 persons. The register dates from the year 1560.

The living was a peculiar, and in the gift of the governors of the Grammar school, re-established here by Queen Elizabeth by a charter of whom the tithes of the parish are vested in such governors (one-third for the Grammar school and two-thirds are to be for the minister); up to 1848 these were the nominees of the landowners, and the tithes were kept down at £600; they have been, at the instance of the Commissioners of Charities, raised to £2,416, which is expended at present for the support of two vicars, one for Wimborne Minster and one for Holt, now a separate ecclesiastical parish, for an organist and a certain number of choristers and singing men: the Wimborne Minster vicar is the Rev. Francis John Huyshe M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, appointed in 1881 with an annual stipend of £350, and the Holt vicar is the Rev. Cecil George Paget M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford: a vicarage house was erected on an excellent site near the minster and completed Midsummer, 1880.

The church of St. John the Evangelist was built and partly endowed 17th August, 1876, by the Rev. Carr J. Glyn, of Witchampton, with the object of supplying the rapidly increasing requirements of the neighbourhood of the station and the new district of Rowlands: the structure has been designed and carried out in the simplest style of Early English architecture, and with the advantage of an excellent situation, is a handsome, without being a striking, edifice: the outside walling is of red Fareham stone, and the inside walls are stuccoed, the interior stone work being dressed with Bath stone: the church consists of an apse chancel, with nave and north and south transepts, south porch: the roof is open and filled in with plaster between the rafters, which are varnished at the east end: a handsome double bell-cot, containing 2 bells, crowns the roof at the west end: the floors are laid with ornamental tiles, and the seats, which are of varnished pitch pine, are all open: the pulpit, reading desk and communion table are of oak; there is a vestry on the north side: the cost of the church and fittings amounted to £2,500: the architect was Mr. Walter Fletcher, of Wimborne: there are sittings for 360 persons, 60 of which are free. The register dates from the year 1876. The living is a vicarage, yearly net value, endowment fund, £32; pew rents from £40 to £50 and fees about £5 annually, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1876 by the Rev. John Bodden Watson, of St. Aidans.

The Congregational chapel in East Borough will seat 400 persons: in 1885 the building was reseated and renovated at a cost of £200: a school room is now (1889) being added at a cost of £350.

The Baptist chapel, West Borough, has been superseded by a new building, erected in 1885, in the Grove road, which will seat 150 persons.

The Salvation Army barracks are in the Corn market.

The Wesleyan chapel, East street, erected in 1869, has sittings for 500 persons.

There is a Good Templars' Hall in the East Borough, which is sub-let to the Primitive Methodists, who hold services every Sunday; it has capacity for 120 persons.

A cemetery of about 4 acres, situated at the west end, was formed in 1856, at a cost of about £3,000: it contains two mortuary chapels and is governed by a Burial Board of 9 members.

Immediately opposite St. John's church is a coffee and temperance boarding house, with mission room.

Here are St. Margaret's Hospital (or almshouses), Courtenay's Hospital, and a school and almshouse at Pamphill, in this parish.

The Victoria Cottage Hospital is a brick building on St. Margaret's hill, and erected in 1887, at a cost of £1,250, of which Lord Wimborne gave £500; it will hold 10 in-patients; Lord Wimborne, president.

Exclusive of the Church estate and St. Margaret's, there appear to be charities of the amount of about £360 yearly, distributable according to the will of the donors.

The market is held on Fridays; sales of cattle, sheep and horses are also held on Thursdays in a field adjoining the railway station: in 1876 the rights of the lord of the manor to market tolls were purchased by the inhabitants, who raised the money by public subscription, and by an Order in Council the tolls and fairs were ordered to be discontiuued. Manorial courts are held Lady Day and Michaelmas, for the purpose of receiving rents from copyholders.

The F (or Wimborne) Troop of the Queen's Own Dorset Yeomanry Cavalry and the F Co. of the 1st Volunteer Battalion, Dorsetshire Regiment, are stationed here.

The principal inns are the King's Head hotel, the Crown hotel and the Griffin hotel.

Kingston Lacy, the seat of Walter Ralph Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. is a handsome stone mansion standing in a park of 420 acres.

Sir John Alexander Hanham bart. and Walter Ralph Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. are the lords of the manors within the parish The principal landowners are Walter Ralph Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. Sir John Alexander Hanham bart. J.P. and Sir Richard G. Glyn bart. D.L., J.P.

The soil is light loam; subsoil, clay and gravel. Wimborne parish contains 12,848 acres; rateable value, £24,034; the population in 1881 was 5,390, including 110 officers and inmates of the workhouse.

KINGSTON LACY MANOR includes the hamlets of ABBOTT STREET, 2 miles west from Wimborne; BADBURY, 3 miles north-west, one of the first Roman encampments in England; BARFORD, 3 miles west; BARNSLEY, 3 miles north; COWGROVE, 2 miles west; PAMPHILL, 2 miles west, and STONE.

By a Local Government Order, dated March 25th, a detached part of Chalbury parish, known as Uddens, was amalgamated with this parish, and at the same time a detached part of Gussage All Saints, known as Mannington, was also added to it.

LEIGH is a tithing, half a mile east.

HOUND HILL is 2 miles north-west.

HOLT, formerly a chapelry and parochial district annexed to Wimborne, is now a separate ecclesiastical district, 3½ miles north-east from Wimborne railway station.

The church of St. James is a plain brick building erected about the year 1600, and consists of chancel, nave and aisle, and is now (1889) being enlarged, at a cost of £800, defrayed by subscriptions, with bell turret at the west end and one bell: there are sittings for about 300, all free.

The register dates from the year 1836.

The living is a vicarage, yearly stipend £240, with residence, in the gift of the governors of Wimborne Minster, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Cecil George Paget M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford.

Here is a Wesleyan chapel, with 120 sittings.

The area is 4,695 acres; the population in 1881 was 1,100.

WIMBORNE ST. GILES is a village and parish, 2 miles south-west of Cranborne, 4 north-west from Verwood station, on the Salisbury and Dorset branch of the London and South Western railway and 8½ north from Wimborne, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of the same name, and petty sessional division, union and county court district of Wimborne, rural deanery of Pimperne Wimborne portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Giles is a structure of flint and stone in the Georgian style, consisting of chancel and nave with a square western tower, containing 8 bells and clock : it was rebuilt and enlarged in 1732, and repaired by the then Earl of Shaftesbury in 1785, and remodelled by the then Earl in 1852, and in 1887 the present Countess restored and beautified the interior with an Early English arcade, to the memory of her husband the 8th Earl, Mr. Bodley being the architect : here are tombs of the Earls of Shaftesbury : one to Anthony Ashley and his wife, who died 1627 ; here is also a monument to Anthony Ashley Cooper, who died 1683 : there is a mural tablet of the 7th Earl, who was buried in the family vault. The following are the inscriptions on the bells :—

No. 1—I to the church the living call, and to the grave do summon all.
No. 2.—Peace and good neighbourhood. A. R. 1737.
No. 3.—When you us ring we'll sweetly sing. 1737.
No. 4.—May the Church of England for ever flourish.
No. 5.—Prosperity to our noble factor. A.R.
No. 6.—We were all cast at Glos'ter, by Abel Rudhall, 1737.

The register dates from the year 1589. The living is a rectory,gross value tithe rent-charge £545,with residence and about 155 acres of glebe, net £520, in the gift of the Earl of Shaftesbury,and held since 1887 by the Rev.Reginald William Wynter M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. The charities are almshouses for aged persons,endowed by Sir Anthony Ashley with land in the parish of Gussage All Saints, but owing to some neglect in the appointment of trustees in the room of those dying, the endowment was lost, and the land reverted to the Earl of Shaftesbury for the time being ; Anthony 7th Earl of Shaftesbury K.G. and the present Earl have, however, continued the payment as a voluntary benefaction. St. Giles's House, the seat of the Earl of Shaftesbury, is a noble structure, principally in the Elizabethan style ; towers at the entrance and opposite side of the mansion were within a recent date surmounted by Renaissance turrets, but these latter have been removed : it is situated in a beautifully wooded park, containing 423 acres, including the lake, which is 7 acres in extent: in the pleasure grounds attached to the mansion is a magnificent grotto, principally composed of Indian shells, erected about 150 years since, at a cost of £10,000 ; the river Allen (a trout stream) skirts the pleasure grounds on the west side. The Earl of Shaftesbury is lord of the manor and sole landowner. Soil, chalk ; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 5,789 acres ; rateable value, £4,209 ; the population in 1881 was 453.

WINFRITH NEWBURGH is a parish, about 3 miles south-west from Wool station on the South Western railway and 8 west-by-south from Wareham, in the Southern division of the county, Wareham petty sessional division and county court district, hundred of Winfrith, Wareham and Purbeck union, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Christopher is an ancient structure of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and embattled western tower, containing 6 bells : in 1854 it was fully restored and enlarged, the nave was rebuilt and north aisle added ; the chancel has been refitted and floored with encaustic tiles : the church presents some interesting remains of Norman architecture, especially the north doorway : an organ was built by subscription in 1886 : there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1585. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Burton annexed, gross joint yearly value £700, including 95 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Stawell Webb Mackenzie Nash M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin : two-thirds of the great tithes belong to the vicar of Chipping Campden in the county of Gloucester. This parish is very ancient, giving name to the hundred, and with the manor formerly belonged to the Newburgh family, who occupied the Manor house. Near the hamlet of BROMHILL, a rivulet, tributary to the Frome, is crossed by three bridges, erected in 1769, at the expense of Edward Weld and James Frampton esqrs. The soil is chalky loam and sand ; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are barley, wheat and oats ; there is also a large area of pasture land. WINTERBORNE ABBAS is a parish, 5 miles west from Dorchester, and 3 south-by-west from Grimston station on the Great Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Eggerton, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Dorchester, rural deanery of Bridport Abbotsbury portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The village is pleasantly situated in a vale, on the high road from Dorchester to Bridport: the surrounding hills are covered with barrows, and here was supposed to have been a great encampment of the Romans. The South Winterborne stream rises about a mile west of the village, in the remains of an ancient British circle, consisting of several rough stones thrown into circular form, called the Nine Stones. The church of St. Mary is a small stone building, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel and nave, with square embattled western tower with turret, containing 3 bells: and low porch at the north side: there is a fine Early English tower arch; there are about 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1791. The living is a rectory, united to that of Winterborne Steepleton, gross joint yearly value £470, including residence and 88 acres of glebe in Winterborne Abbas and 114 in Winterborne Steepleton, in the gift of Lincoln College, Oxford, and now (1889) vacant. Here is a chapel for Baptists. Robert Williams esq. D.L., J.P. of Bridehead house, Little Berdy, who is lord of the manor and R. Henville Simonds esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is light gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are corn and some land in pasture. The area is 1,500 acres; rateable value, £1,194; the population in 1881 was 198.

WINTERBORNE CAME (or Came), with WINTERBORNE FARRINGDON.

THIS parish is situated in a sequestered spot, 2 miles south-east from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Culliford Tree, liberty of Frampton, Dorchester union and county court district, petty sessional divisions of Bridport and Dorchester, rural deanery of Dorchester (Dorchester portion), archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Peter is a small stone structure in the Later English style, consisting of chancel, nave and north porch with square embattled western tower containing 2 bells: there is a carved oak screen and there are two full-sized effigies in a recumbent position: there are also stained windows in memory of Sir Arthur Charles Magenis, Countess Fortescue, the Hon. Mrs. Damer, Colonel Damer and Mrs. Wilmot Williams; there are 100 sittings: in the churchyard is the Damer family vault, and a tomb erected to the memory of the Rev. William Barnes B.D. (the Dorsetshire poet), rector here 1862-86. The register dates from the year 1696. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Portarlington D.L., J.P. and held since 1889 by the Rev. Herbert John Underhill Charlton M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who is also incumbent of Whitcombe. The charities amount to £19 yearly, derived from the rent of land in the parish of Loders, left by Sir Robert Mellor and Dame Margaret his wife 1620, and money in the funds, the bequest of John Tuck, a former tenant of Came farm. Came House is a large handsome mansion of Portland stone in the Corinthian style, built in 1750, and is the property of the Earl of Portarlington, who is lord of the manor and sole landowner, and is occupied by his eldest son, Viscount Carlow D.L., J.P. The soil is gravel; subsoil, chalk. The chief crops are wheat and oats and a large portion of pasture. The area is 1,970 acres; rateable value, £1,319: the population in 1881 was 144, including CRIPTON hamlet, 1½ miles south, with 24 inhabitants; MIDDLE and HIGHER CAME, 1 mile south-west; CONYGORE HILL, 1 mile north-west. Here are many barrows.

WINTERBORNE FARRINGDON is a parish, without a village or any population, having been burnt out some years since. The church is in ruins. The living is annexed to Winterborne Came.

WINTERBORNE ST. MARTIN (or MARTINSTOWN) is a parish and village, situated in a valley on the high road from Bridport to Weymouth, 3 miles south-west from Dorchester, in the Southern division of the county, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Dorchester, hundred of St. George, rural deanery of Dorchester, (Dorchester portion) archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The church of St. Martin, situated in the middle of the parish, is a very ancient edifice of stone, of mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave and north aisle, south porch, and embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing one bell: the eastern end appears to have been rebuilt at a much later period than the residue of the church: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a discharged vicarage, gross yearly value £120, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1837 by the Rev. Edward Ludlow M.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford, surrogate, who resides in the vicarage house, which was built in 1839, chiefly at his expense. Blanchard's charity of £33 yearly is for distribution. The fair is held on St. Martin's day, and is well supplied with cattle; there was once a market. There are several well-built modern houses. MAIDEN CASTLE, one mile east, in this parish, an ancient and extensive Roman camp, of oval shape, covers 115 acres of land, with a treble ditch and ramparts; from the summit is a fine prospect. Near Clandon are many barrows, as likewise on Four Barrow Hill. Lord Alington is lord of the manor and the principal landowner. The soil is loam; subsoil, gravel and chalk. The chief crops are corn and pasture. The area is 3,503 acres; rateable value, £2,790; the population in 1881 was 430.

WORTH MATRAVERS is a parish, about 4 miles south-east from Corfe Castle and 4 south-west from Swanage, the nearest railway stations, 8 south-east from Wareham, on the coast of the English Channel, in the Isle of Purbeck, Eastern division of the county, hundred of Rowbarrow, petty sessional division and county court district of Wareham, union of Wareham and Purbeck, rural deanery of Dorchester Purbeck portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury : it stands on the extremity of a spur from the middle Purbecks, and has a pleasing rustic aspect. The church of St. Nicholas is a building of Purbeck stone, of great antiquity, consisting of chancel, nave, tower and south porch : the nave and west tower are Norman and the chancel Early English : the tower consists of three stages and contains 3 bells : a heavy projecting eaves-course runs the whole length of both nave and chancel, and is supported by rude grotesque blocks and heads : the entrance doorway is surmounted by an ornamental semicircular arch, inclosing a tympanum on which are remains of rude and very ancient sculpture : the chancel arch, an interesting specimen of Early Norman work, is stilted semicircular, and on the west side consists of three members, the two outer ones having a bold zigzag tooth-moulding similar to each other : the jambs have five shafts, with simple bold imposts and bases of the character usual at the period : the east window is Decorated, of the reticulated pattern and stained : the other chancel windows are of lancet form with wide interior splays : there is a trefoil-headed piscina, with a cinquefoil-headed niche above it ; the font is good Perpendicular : here is the tombstone of Benjamin Jesty, noted for having been the first person known who introduced the cowpox by inoculation : the whole fabric has been restored and refitted, chiefly at the cost of the Earl of Eldon : there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1564. The living is a vicarage, gross yearly value from tithe rentcharge £152, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Swanage, and held since 1879 by the Rev. John Williams, of St. David's College, Lampeter. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1868. This parish contains the lofty promontory called St. Alban's, or St. ALDHELM'S Head, which rises 450 feet above the level of the sea, and forms the southern extremity of the Isle of Purbeck : about fifty paces from the edge of the precipice stands the interesting and ancient chapel of St. Aldhelm, a square structure of Norman architecture ; it was anciently served by a royal chaplain, and, since its entire restoration by the present Lord Eldon, service is conducted here every Sunday evening during the summer months : the roof is vaulted and has a circular construction on the summit, supposed to have carried a light or beacon : in 1878 an elegant stone font in the Norman style was presented by the Earl of Eldon: the officiating clergyman is the Rev. John Williams. The principal landowners are William Montagu Calcraft esq. J.P. of Rempstone Hall, who is lord of the manor, the Earl of Eldon and W. R. Bankes esq. D.L., J.P. The soil is stiff clay; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are barley, wheat and oats. There is also a large area of pasture land. The area is 2,645 acres; rateable value, £1,610; the population in 1881 was 302.

EMMIT HILL, a large barrow, is situated on the cliff, 1½ miles south-west; on St. Aldhelm's Head are old quarries of freestone.

WYKE REGIS is a village and parish, pleasantly situated in a valley open to the sea from the south-west, 1½ miles south-west from Weymouth, and partly within that municipal borough, in the Southern division of the county, Weymouth union and county court district, petty sessional division of Dorchester and liberty of Wyke Regis, hundred of Culliford Tree, rural deanery of Dorchester Weymouth portion, archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. This place commands some fine views; to the south and east are the Isle of Portland and the Portland Roads, with St. Alban's Head in the distance; to the west is that part of the sea called the West Bay, and to the north are a variety of villages and lofty hills: from its very pleasant situation it has become the residence of many families. The church of All Saints is a stone building, affording a fine specimen of Gothic architecture, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, separated by cylindrical piers and lofty arches, an embattled square western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells and clock (which, from its great height, 261 feet above sea level, serves as a landmark to vessels passing up and down the English Channel), and a Gothic south porch: in the chancel are two handsome stained windows, presented by R. H. Swaffield esq. and Mrs. Munro; another window was added in 1885 by Capt. Pretor J.P. in memory of his father: the church contains some monuments and tablets and an organ: in the graveyard are several stones bearing inscriptions to persons shipwrecked on this coast: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1676. The living is a rectory, gross yearly value £623, net £420, including 26 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Oxford, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Richard Alexander England M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, who is non-resident; Rev. Thomas Morgan Bell-Salter M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford, is curate in charge. A new cemetery was dedicated 1888; cost £470: the ground was given by Rev. Robert Francis Lymes M.A. Here is a hospital in connection with the Weymouth port sanitary authority, erected at a cost of about £5,000, opened in 1880, to hold 50 patients. Belfield House, the residence of Samuel Ashton Pretor esq. J.P. stands on an acclivity, and commands a fine prospect. Wyke House, the property of Lieut.-Col. Charles James Orton Owen-Swaffield, the residence of Rev. Frederick Tufnell M.A. is a handsome modern villa. Belfield Park is situated next to that of Ashton Pretor esq. on Wyke road, and is the residence of Charles Holland esq.: the building is a handsome Gothic stone structure. The Earl of Ilchester, who is lord of the manor, and Col. Owen-Swaffield J.P. are the principal landowners. Soil, loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and pasture. The area is 1,702 acres; rateable value, £19,194; the population in 1881 was 2,748, including 68 in the Nothe Fort, of which 1,250 are in Weymouth.

The Business of this Company consists in the Purchase of, or Loans upon
REVERSIONARY INTERESTS, vested or contingent, in WELL SECURED PROPERTY; also
LIFE INTERESTS in POSSESSION or in EXPECTATION.

LOANS UPON REVERSIONS may be obtained either at an Annual Interest, or in consideration of redeemable deferred charges, payable upon the REVERSIONS falling in.

PRESENT INCOMES are likewise advanced upon the latter principle to persons entitled to Reversionary Interests, who may thus obtain the means of support until their property falls into possession, without being called upon for any payment until that event.

Prospectuses and Forms of Proposal may be obtained from the Secretary, to whom all communications should be addressed.

Policy Claims Paid ..... 9,200,000

The expenses are small, being less than 3 per cent. of the premiums and interest income.

An investigation of its affairs is made every year, and the surplus is applied in reducing for the ensuing year the premiums entitled to reduction. The first seven premiums are payable in full, and the right to reduction begins with the eighth. During the last thirty years the rate of reduction has increased on the average by about one per cent. per annum; so that in the case of some of the older policies not only has the premium been reduced to nothing for some years, but a small addition has been made to the sum assured.

For the year beginning 1st July, 1889, and ending 30th June, 1890:

PREMIUMS commenced before July 1883 (4th series) are reduced 71 per cent.
" " July 1876 (3rd series) " 81 "
" " July 1865 (2nd series) " 96 "
" " January 1856 (1st series) " 100 "

And, as the reduction of premiums in the First Series can be carried no further, an addition of six per cent. of the annual premium has been this year made to the sum assured.

Totland ✣ Bay ✣ Hotel,

NEAR

FRESHWATER AND ALUM BAY,

ON THE

ISLE OF WIGHT.

THIS HOTEL overlooks one of the most charming Bays in the Isle of Wight. Its Terraces and Windows command full views of the Solent, and the yachts and steamers constantly passing by. It is contiguous to the Needles, and about two miles from Freshwater and Yarmouth.

The Hotel has been fitted up with every regard to comfort and convenience; and in front of the Hotel are large TENNIS LAWNS for the amusement of visitors.

From the Cliff-walk there is a magnificent view of the Needles and the surrounding scenery.

An ample supply of the PUREST SPRING WATER comes from the neighbouring DOWNS.

Splendid Bathing, a good ANCHORAGE for YACHTS, and a FINE PROMENADE PIER will be found in the Bay.

The AIR in this part of the Island is peculiarly bracing and dry, and the Climate has been pronounced by distinguished physicians to be unsurpassed by any in England. It is well adapted for winter residence.

H. L. DOWSING, MANAGER.

ON THE TOTLAND BAY ESTATE

The furnished houses and apartments are always in great request, so that there is an excellent opportunity afforded for persons with small means to adopt this mode of adding to their income.

Houses will be built to suit the requirements of intending purchasers, and liberal advances of money made to those parties who incline to build for themselves.

Leases are granted for 999 years, which, being equivalent to freehold property, effect a large saving in the first outlay for land.

Applications for Building Sites or the erection of Houses, or for Furnished or Unfurnished Houses may be made to

Devizes and Wilts Advertiser.

EIGHT LARGE PAGES. FORTY-EIGHT COLUMNS.

HAS a very large circulation in the County of Wilts, embracing in its range the towns of Devizes, Salisbury, Bath, Chippenham, Calne, Cricklade, Marlborough, Malmesbury, Westbury, and Wilton; also of Trowbridge, Melksham, Bradford-on-Avon, Swindon, Pewsey, Wootton-Bassett, and all the surrounding districts.

Finding access to persons of all classes and of all shades of opinion, it is recognised as a most eligible medium for advertisements, the charges for which are very moderate.

PUBLISHED ON THURSDAY AFTERNOON, BY

C. GILLMAN, 19, Brittox, DEVIZES.

HEAD OFFICE: 13, MARKET PLACE, DEVIZES.

— BEST COUNTY PAPER. —

BRANCH OFFICE: NEW ROAD, CHIPPENHAM.

"THE DEVIZES AND WILTSHIRE GAZETTE."

ESTABLISHED 1816.

Correspondents in every Town in the County. As an Advertising Medium "the Gazette" is unsurpassed.

THE PAPER UNANIMOUSLY SELECTED FOR THE COUNTY ADVERTISEMENTS.

At a full meeting of the members of the Wilts County Council, held at Warminster, July 1, 1889, "THE DEVIZES AND WILTSHIRE GAZETTE" was unanimously selected as one of the Papers for the County Advertisements. This is the best proof which can be afforded of the position "the Gazette" holds in the County of Wilts, the consideration which influenced the Council being, in the words of the mover of the resolution, "the highest reputation and the largest circulation." While some of the papers selected were warmly opposed, and two papers which formerly received the county advertisements were struck off the list, there was not the slightest opposition to "the Gazette" from any part of Wiltshire, and it was universally admitted that a more influential journal does not exist in the county. It should be borne in mind that the Wilts County Council is composed of a most independent body of men, representing all shades of opinion, and that could anything have been successfully urged against "the Gazette," there were members present who would, without any hesitation, have opposed it.

SCALE OF CHARGES FOR ADVERTISEMENTS.—SALES BY AUCTION and PRIVATE CONTRACT, HOUSES AND LAND TO LET, and all Ordinary Notices, 6d. per line up to seven lines, and 4d. for each additional line. LEGAL AND OFFICIAL NOTICES, 6d. per line. TRADE ADVERTISEMENTS, of not less than three inches, if ordered for a series of not less than 26 insertions, 1s. per inch. SITUATIONS WANTED OR EMPLOYERS WANTING SERVANTS.—These advertisements are inserted in two papers, the Devizes and Wiltshire Gazette, and Wiltshire Telegraph, at the low price of halfpenny per word, if prepaid.

Advertisements should reach the Office at Devizes at the latest by Thursday morning's post.

THE WILTSHIRE TELEGRAPH

Is published, price Halfpenny, at "the GAZETTE" Office, Market Place, Devizes, on Saturdays. It has numerically a larger circulation than any other paper within a radius of ten miles of Devizes, and by combining this paper with "the GAZETTE," Advertisers may rely on reaching all classes. WANTED advertisements inserted in both papers at the usual price of one—halfpenny per word. (13)

FAREHAM.

Principal - - T. EASTMAN, M.A.,

CLARE COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE, MATHEMATICAL HONOURS (ELDEST SON OF THE LATE MR. EASTMAN, R.N., SOUTHSEA).

Assisted by Resident University and Foreign Masters.

A limited number of Pupils are received for preparation for Naval Cadetships; Assistant Clerkships, Royal Navy; and the Public Schools. Sections are also formed for the preparation of Candidates for the Army and Universities.

Pupils have at recent Examinations for Naval Cadetships secured First Places, and on an average, during the last four years, not one Candidate in every ten has failed to pass. Since 1885 several Pupils have obtained Assistant Clerkships in the Royal Navy; many have passed the Army Preliminary Examinations, and all Candidates for the Public Schools have been successful.

AND HAMPSHIRE EXPRESS.

Every Saturday Morning. All the Town and County News of the Week.

THE Circulation of the SOUTHAMPTON TIMES AND HAMPSHIRE EXPRESS, published at the popular price of One Penny, GREATLY EXCEEDS THAT OF ANY OTHER LOCAL JOURNAL. It averages between 15,000 and 16,000 each issue, and increased during the year ending April 3rd, 1889, to the highest number ever reached, as proved by the Publishing Books of the Company.

This Journal is recognised as the BEST ADVERTISING MEDIUM for all Classes of the Community, both in Town and Country, and ensures GREATER PUBLICITY THAN CAN BE OBTAINED BY ANY OTHER MEANS.

The Value of Advertising depends upon Circulation. The "SOUTHAMPTON TIMES" is read by upwards of 75,000 persons every week.

It is the permanent Local Record for the Public Club, the Reading Room, the Place of Business, and the Home; and is sent regularly to all parts of Great Britain and Ireland, the Colonies, and Foreign Countries.

The "SOUTHAMPTON TIMES" has recently been enlarged by the addition of reading matter equivalent to six columns, making it the largest local paper in the district.
